Labor Board Fights Court Exposure of Errors

ECCLES ADMITS GOVERNMENT AT FAULT IN SLUMP

Big Mistakes Made in Spending Policy.

Atlantic City, N. J., May 13.—[Special.]—Chairman Marriner S. Eccles of the federal reserve board admitted today that the government was partly responsible, along with business and organized labor, for the present "depression." He spoke at the thirty-eighth annual convention of the New Jersey Bankers' association.

Marriner S. Eccles.

Eccles conceded that the government had made mistakes in the "timing" of its deficit spending and debt management program by helping to create an inflationary psychology with a huge bonus payment in 1936 and then quickly changing into a deflationary psychology with large collections of social security taxes and a too rapid decrease in public expenditures in 1937.

Defends New Spending Plan.

Eccles defended the new government spending program as essential to prevent a prolonged depression, declared it "too modest if anything," and asserted that speed in getting it started, especially in public works and public housing, was vital.

He urged reforms in typical policies of the Roosevelt administration to encourage private investment in the utilities, railroads, and housing. He advocated peace between the government and the private utilities on the basis of no further use of public funds to subsidize competition with private enterprise, a suspension of the 1937 wage increases to railroad workers until trafic warrants them, and readjustment of high hourly wage rates as well as material prices in the building industry.

Asks Changes in Policies.

Eccles also declared for "modernization" of federal and state bank examination policies, and other "restrictive" governmental banking policies which "confuse soundness with liquidity, or true worth with current depressed market values," in order to encourage bankers to meet changed credit conditions and discourage the multiplication of governmental credit agencies as an alternative to private banking.

Discussing the causes of the present slump, Eccles said the recovery which began in 1934 had produced a situation in 1936 under which "private business expansion was going ahead at a satisfactory rate, business indexes uniformly reflected a broad recovery, and corporate profits in most lines were largely restored and in some instances even exceeded 1929 levels, despite a smaller volume of business."

Admits Big Mistakes.

"However," he continued, "relief and other expenditures were not reduced, and in addition between $1,500,000,000 and $2,000,000,000 of bonus funds were poured into the spending stream in the last half of 1936. . . . Similarly the collection of a billion dollars of social security taxes in 1937 diminished buying power at the very time an increase in retail sales was most needed. Had it not been for these two measures, national buying power would have increased less in 1936 and more in 1937."

He said that a combination of forces beginning late in 1936—"predictions of inflation, sharply rising prices of basic materials, widespread labor troubles, foreign demand for war materials, the policy of many lines of industry of advancing prices"—created a wave of inventory buying, "which was not geared to current consumption or consumer buying power."

The outlook in industry and agriculture now is such that only "united action, under the leadership of government, with the support of the organizations of business, finance, labor, and agriculture," can assure recovery. Otherwise, he predicted a prolonged depression.

ATTORNEYS SEEK WRIT TO BLOCK NEWEST DEFEAT

Battle for Retreat in Steel Case.

BY CHESLY MANLY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 13.—[Special.]—Moving to prevent judicial review of the methods it has pursued in cracking down on employers, the National Labor Relations board today rushed into the United States Supreme court with a petition for a writ of mandamus and prohibition against the third federal Circuit Court of Appeals at Philadelphia.

The Circuit court at Philadelphia earlier in the day had made absolute its previous temporary order refusing to permit the labor board to withdraw its case against the Republic Steel company. The board sought to set aside its order—which required the reinstatement of 5,000 strikers with back pay—for the purpose of instituting new proceedings.

Rate Case Gives Board Pause.

Charles Fahy, general counsel for the board, said tonight that the Supreme court decision April 25 in the Kansas City stockyards rate case had caused the board to take action looking toward a revision of its proceedings in accordance with the court ruling.

In the Kansas City stockyards case the court held that Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace had denied commission men a full and fair hearing before fixing the maximum rates which they could charge, and the labor board's procedure confessedly has been just as arbitrary as the conduct of Secretary Wallace which the Supreme court condemned.

Fearing judicial examination of its own procedure in view of the Supreme court's rebuke to Secretary Wallace, the labor board rushed into courts throughout the country seeking permission to set aside its orders against employers.

Courts Deny Requests.

The Circuit Court of Appeals at Covington, Ky., at first granted but later denied the board's request to withdraw its order against the Ford Motor company.

Today the Circuit Court of Appeals at Philadelphia not only denied a request to permit withdrawal of the order against the Republic Steel company, but also restrained the board from taking any steps or proceedings in the case before certifying the entire record to the court.

This sweeping decree, announced from the bench after a private conference of the three judges—Joseph Buffington, J. Warren Davis, and J. Whitaker Thompson—will prevent the board from beginning new proceedings against the steel company, pending judicial determination of the propriety of its conduct in the original case.

Petition Rushed to Court.

Robert B. Watts, counsel for the board in Philadelphia, reported the Circuit court's action by telephone to Mr. Fahy. Fahy hurriedly conferred with Solicitor General Robert H. Jackson, and the two government lawyers drafted a petition for a writ of mandamus and prohibition, which they rushed to the Supreme court in typewritten form.

The lawyers arrived at the office of Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes, with whose law clerk the petition was filed, just before the court closed for the day.

No copies of the petition were available, but its substance, as read over the telephone by a government lawyer, was that the Circuit court acted without lawful authority in restraining the board from setting aside its own order prior to the filing of the transcript of the trial examiner's hearing.

Speedy action was sought by the government lawyers because the Supreme court will adjourn the present term on May 21. It is their hope that the justices will consider the petition, which seeks to force the Circuit court to permit the board to withdraw the case against the Republic Steel company, at their secret conference tomorrow, and that an announcement will be made Monday.

Worker Tells Intimidation by C. I. O. Leader

A veteran of thirty-one years' service with the American Steel and Wire company in Waukegan charged yesterday that threats, intimidation, and a brickbat attack on his home followed his refusal to join the union of the Committee for Industrial Organization in the plant.

His story brought the arrest of Oakley Mills, C. I. O. organizer who is under sentence for 180 days in jail for his part in the violence of the Fansteel Metallurgical corporation sitdown strike at North Chicago in February, 1937.

Mills was charged with intimidation and released on $1,000 bond after he had spent seven hours in the Waukegan lockup. Police Magistrate Clarence Brown set the hearing for May 23.

Tells of Threats.

The workman is Frank Markkula of 206 Dorchester court, Waukegan, a member of the independent union in the plant—the Steel and Wire Workers' Protective association.

"A week ago Thursday," he said, "a man telephoned my home and asked me if I wanted to join the C. I. O. union [Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel, and Tin workers]. I asked who it was and he said Oakley Mills. I told him I belonged to the independent union.

"'Don't you want to go over to the C. I. O.?' he hollered.

"I didn't like the way he talked and I told him to come over and talk face to face. He came and said, 'My name is Mills.'

Calls Him a Job Killer.

"He commented on the fact that I am a fine wire drawer and have been working on more than one machine at the same time in an experiment.

"'You're a job killer,' he said.

"He asked me again if I didn't want to join the C. I. O. I told him I didn't and he said:

"'I'd be willing to bet a hundred dollars to a dime you'll join up with the C. I. O.—or else!'

"'We'll stop you one way or another from coming to work,' Mills told me.

"We finally shook hands and he started to leave. He said:

"'I'll be sorry if anything happens to you.'

"A car trailed me home from work a little before midnight Monday. As I went to bed there was a loud noise. I ran outside in time to see a man run to a car and hurry away. Half a dozen bricks had been thrown at the house.

"I don't intend to be told what to do. I joined the independent union because I wanted to. I have a right to join or not join anything I choose. I'll prosecute this case."

Earl Cook, attorney for Markkula's union, said the National Labor Relations board had refused its request for an election to determine the workers' bargaining agency. He said the union has 1,500 members among the 2,000 employés.

Lester F. Collins, C. I. O. union attorney, said the charges were trumped up by the company and the independent union. He said the C. I. O. union has a majority.

TINY TWINS LEFT BY FATHER WITH FRIEND TAKEN TO HOSPITAL

Twin babies, a boy and a girl, not yet 3 weeks old, were taken from the home of their godfather by Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the board of health, last night after he had made a personal investigation of the case. While police stood by the babies were placed in an incubator and moved to the County hospital.

Louis Ersing, 24 years old, the godfather, who lives at 2340 Princeton avenue with his mother, told Dr. Bundesen that the father of the twins, Timothy Alonzo, 28 years old, living on the outskirts of Aurora, left the two at his home on May 2 for the christening. They were born April 25. Ersing said that the father has not returned since.

Dr. Bundesen said that the conditions in the home for caring for the babies were deplorable. There was little heat. Each baby weighed about four pounds and was reported below normal in body temperature.

Judge Pales at Dark Deed in Green Suit

A tall, strapping prisoner in a handsome green suit [green tones are popular this spring] stood yesterday before Chief Justice Cornelius J. Harrington of the Criminal court. A purple cravat emblazoned the prisoner's shirtfront, and an orchid handkerchief peeped from the top pocket of his coat.

Judge Harrington had heard the evidence. One Dewey Johnson, he of the sartorial splendor, and another colored man, Robert Lewis, had stolen an automobile from a cab driver on April 15. The judge prepared to impose sentence. He faced the thieves.

Disorder in the Court.

"I am going to send you to prison for——" he began. The judge stopped as an anguished wail came from somewhere in the first row of spectators. A gangling Negro, mopping his brow, leaped up and clattered hastily toward the bench.

"You can't do it, your honor," he cried. "You can't send that nice new suit and that good name to jail!"

Bailifs surrounded the intruder threateningly. Judge Harrington waved them away.

"Your honor," said the man, "my name is Dewey Johnson and I live in Gary. This fellow [indicating the prisoner in the green suit] stole my clothes and now he's taken my name, and both of 'em are going to jail."

When investigation disclosed that the label in the suit indeed bore the name of Dewey Johnson, the prisoner admitted his right name was William Delk, and that he was from Indiana Harbor. He said he had stolen the clothing.

In Market for a Barrel.

Judge Harrington thereupon sentenced Delk and Lewis, who lives at 6622 Vernon avenue, to one to twenty years in the penitentiary.

"As for you," the judge told Delk, "it looks as if you will have to go to prison in a barrel."

At the county jail Warden Frank Sain disrobed Delk and handed the green suit to Johnson. The unfortunate Delk, shivering in a wholly inadequate suit of underwear, happened to glance at a calendar on the wall.

"Friday, May 13," it read.

Twins Borrow Black Cat and Mark 13th Birthday

Pays and Pays Her 15 Years; Now It's More

For twenty-three years Harry Labadie and his wife, Rose, have lived apart. For fifteen of these years he has paid for her separate maintenance a total of $45,000 and is in arrears $7,515.

Mrs. Labadie's suit is the oldest separate maintenance action in the file of the Circuit court. Twenty-one judges have heard phases of it during the years. Six lawyers who have argued it are dead. Many of the documents are yellowed and faded.

Yesterday Labadie heard Judge John Prystalski order that his payments of $25 a week be made permanent, that he pay off the arrearage at $50 a week, and that he post securities and a life insurance policy to guarantee obedience to the order.

Meet First Time in Years.

The husband, who is 65 years old and is president of the Knickerbocker Case company, lether goods manufacturers at 1342 Howard street, Evanston, came face to face in court yesterday with his wife, whom he has not seen in many years. She is 64 years old and lives at 1011 Thomas street, Oak Park. They were married forty years ago. She has never sought a divorce.

Unless she asks for a divorce or he finds grounds for one, he must, under the court order, continue to pay for the remainder of his life and cannot remarry. Mrs. Labadie has indicated she will not give him a divorce. In 1934 she said:

"If I let him out of everything now after having given the best years of my life to our marriage he would just laugh at me. I doubt if he wants to get married, but he wants to get rid of me."

Lives Quietly with Sister.

Mr. Labadie refused to comment at that time. He lives quietly in the home of a sister on the north side of Chicago.

Twice since 1934 the legislature has passed a law which would have made two years of paying separate maintenance grounds for divorce. The first was held unconstitutional by the State Supreme court and the second was vetoed by Gov. Horner.

In addition to his other orders yesterday, Judge Prystalski directed that Labadie pay $2,500 in fees to his wife's attorney, Benjamin B. Davis. Davis announced that an accounting suit filed some years ago in behalf of Mrs. Labadie would be withdrawn at once. An alienation of affections suit which she filed in 1918 was dropped several years later and was never tried.

"Needn't Worry," Says Woman.

The woman named in the suit is Mrs. Mattie Schweitzer of 613 South Prospect avenue, Park Ridge. Once before, when the Labadie case was in the courts, Mrs. Schweitzer commented:

"Mrs. Labadie is afraid her husband will marry me if she grants him a divorce, but she need not fear. There was never any romance between us; I haven't seen him in years. But I do know that his life has been ruined."

Mrs. Schweitzer is 53 years old now.

RECALLS ENVOY IN DISPUTE OVER SEIZED OIL LAND

Brands Demands of London 'Unfriendly'

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MEXICO CITY, May 13.—Stung by London's bluntly worded demands for a settlement of claims, many of which grew out of Mexico's recent expropriation of $450,000,000 worth of foreign owned oil properties, the Mexican government tonight severed diplomatic relations with Great Britain.

Primo Villa Michel, Mexican minister to London, and his staf were ordered to return home. It was explained by the Mexican foreign relations department that this was done "in view of the unfriendly attitude" of the British government.

Expect British Envoy's Recall.

What action the British would take in the crisis was not definitly known tonight. It was expected, however, that Owen St. Clair O'Malley, British minister to Mexico, would be withdrawn. He said this evening that he had received no orders, and added that he did not intend to decode any cablegram that might arrive before tomorrow.

Friction between the two governments has been growing since President Lazaro Cardenas on March 18 announced the oil expropriation [a word that means seizure with a promise of payment]. Both British and American interests suffered heavily by his action.

Strong representations were made by British diplomats in early April, shortly after representatives of the oil companies declined to accept Cardenas' offer to pay for the properties with 20 per cent of the proceeds of oil sales abroad.

Ask Return of Lands.

One of the early British notes formally requested the return of the Aguila [Royal Dutch Shell] lands and equipment to the original owners. The note charged that the Mexicans were actuated by "political desire" in seizing the properties.

The Mexican reply was sharp and to the point. It argued that expropriation was within the national rights. It rejected the British contention that political motives were involved and asserted the government was acting in the best interests of Mexico. Further, the Mexican government said, it intended to pay for the properties and its ability to do so was "a certain fact."

Great Britain regarded this as unsatisfactory. The crisis came to a head this afternoon when Minister O'Malley called at the foreign office to receive checks for 361,737 pesos [$84,000] due as an instalment on claims of Britishers growing out of damage done during civil wars.

Several Protests Registered.

O'Malley had protested several times recently about dilatory tactics of the government. As late as yesterday he had written that Mexico's "attitude toward government indebtedness generally was far from reassuring."

With much outward courtesy, Foreign Minister Eduardo Hay told O'Malley of the withdrawal of Villa Michel and added that the British foreign office had been informed. He then handed over the check for the 361,737 pesos and a reply to O'Malley's note.

It stated that the Mexican offer to pay for destruction of British properties during revolutions from 1910 to 1920 was made as a polite gesture and was not an obligation imposed by international law. It also took up the British remark that expropriation of the oil fields was unjustified because the Mexican government had failed "to discharge even existing obligations." The reply retorted that Britain had no right to analyze Mexico's domestic situation.

Cites British Repudiation.

"I allow myself to call the attention of your excellency," Hay continued, "to the fact that even powerful states, having at their command abundant resources, may not pride themselves on being up to date on the payment of all their monetary obligations."

It was regarded as a fair guess that Hay in this statement was prodding the British about their failure to pay their war debt to the United States.

Indications that there is to be a vast difference in the estimates placed on the value of the expropriated oil holdings was given on April 23, when a Mexican investigating board announced that about $7,500,000 would be a proper indemnity to all the oil companies.

This would be sufficient, the board judged, to cover the actual value of the pipe lines, refineries, and other similar assets. Even though the cost was much higher, its members held, depreciation shown in inventories of the companies made the price a fair one. In the estimate no account was taken of lands, wells, or oil output. The committee said all subsoil wealth belongs, under the constitution, to Mexico.

Aguila alone had estimated its holdings were worth $250,000,000. The Standard Oil company and other American firms figured theirs had a value of $200,000,000.

No Comment in London.

[Copyright: 1938: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, May 14 [Saturday].—Word that Mexico had severed relations with Great Britain reached London at 4:30 a. m., after a night of tension during which dispatches from the United States had shown a wave of anti-British sentiment had "swept over Mexico City," following the presentation of a British note demanding immediate payment of 20,000 pounds sterling regarding the British claim for losses incurred in revolutions.

From late editions of their newspapers, Londoners learned that Mexicans anticipated the British government would assume an "even stronger" attitude over the petroleum conflict and thus severance of relations was not altogether a surprise, although with Foreign Secretary Halifax engaged in Geneva and Prime Minister Chamberlain deeply involved in reorganization of the air ministry little attention had been paid to it.

Actually, the problem of compensation for expropriated foreign oil companies was moving toward a settlement. According to the Financial Times, it is understood in usually well informed quarters in London that the proposal is that proceeds from sale of 60 per cent of the oil produced from expropriated properties is to be devoted to a special fund for repayment of the eventually agreed amount to pay the companies.

At an early hour it was impossible to reach any government official to forecast the extent of retaliatory action.

Washington Is Surprised.

Washington, D. C., May 13.—(AP)—State department officials received with surprise tonight news dispatches from Mexico City that Mexico had broken diplomatic relations with Great Britain.

They declined to comment until official dispatches had been received, but they gave the impression that they regarded the development with anxious interest.

Persons close to the state department said the United States would not offer to mediate between the two countries at this point.

They said that the quarrel between Mexico and Great Britain may have unfortunate results in rendering more difficult the settlement of American claims to compensation for expropriated American oil properties valued unofficially at around $200,000,000.

Ford May Close Plant.

[Copyright: 1938: By the New York Times.]

MEXICO CITY, May 13.—The Ford company in Mexico formally indicated today that it would withdraw from Mexico unless the Mexican authorities settle the strike that has paralized its $1,500,000 assembly plant since Monday. The settlement must permit the company to maintain an open shop.

"The possibility of closing the plant depends upon whether the employés insist upon making demands impossible to meet or upon whether impartiality of the authorities charged with applying the law is demonstrated," the company said.

The company insisted it was paying its employés on a monthly basis so that a reduction in the number of work days per week, because of industrial paralysis in Mexico, had not affected their earning capacity. Workers asserted today that the Ford company was attempting to place improper pressure on the labor board and that their demands for a collective contract were legal under Mexican law.

LEAGUE REJECTS SPAIN'S PLEA FOR AID IN CIVIL WAR

Britain Scores Victory by Narrow Margin.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GENEVA, May 13.—Diplomacy and garlic were strangely mixed at today's session of the league of nations council. At the end of the day the revolt against the realistic foreign policy of Neville Chamberlain had gained new momentum.

Gulio Alvarez Del Vayo, Spanish foreign minister, pilloried Lord Halifax, British foreign secretary. The Spaniard prodded Lord Halifax into an unstatesmanlike burst of temper.

In the end Lord Halifax, to avoid a major diplomatic disaster, was obliged to force through the council a snap vote on a resolution introduced by Del Vayo calling for abandonment of the policy of nonintervention in the Spanish civil war.

Spain sought an end of the international committee on nonintervention, in which 27 nations are associated in a neutrality pledge. By ending this policy the way would be opened for Spain to obtain war supplies for use against the rebels.

Only 3 Nations Back British.

Halifax persuaded only three nations—France, Poland, and Rumania—to join in voting against this resolution. Two countries—Spain and Russia—voted for it. The other nine at the council table abstained from voting.

W. J. Jordan, delegate from New Zealand, explaining his abstention, said:

"My government would have voted for a resolution demanding that the league members really enforce nonintervention in Spain."

It was Dr. V. K. Wellington Koo of China, however, who really let the cat out of the bag. He innocently remarked that it was very unusual to vote on a resolution two hours after it had been presented, and recalled that during discussion of the Chinese-Japanese affair last fall it was customary to delay debate on a resolution twenty-four hours whenever any delegate expressed a desire to consult his government.

Takes Dig at Britain.

In any case, Koo said sweetly, he could not have voted against the Spanish resolution since he had voted for a similar Spanish resolution at the last session—he did not need to add that the British at that time also had voted for Spain.

Personally, Koo added, he would have liked to ask his government for instructions on this vote, but since his colleagues seemed extremely anxious to get on with their work he was abstaining to oblige them.

Chairman Wilhelm Munters of Latvia tartly reminded Koo that no one had asked for a delay, but it was too late to correct the impression made on the public by Koo's seemingly inadvertent slip.

British Prestige Suffers Blow.

Though technically another victory for Great Britain, since the resolution was thrown out and the Spanish debate closed, the failure of the majority of the council members to follow the British lead was considered a terrific blow to British prestige, and an even worse blow to the personal prestige of Lord Halifax.

The worst blow to Halifax was the direct attack upon him that Del Vayo made in his speech and the imprudent retort Lord Halifax was trapped into making.

"For the sake of the Spanish people," Del Vayo said, "I should not like to allow the statement of the British representative, that the tragic loss of life in Spain is inseparable from modern warfare, to pass without special comment. Is it not to be feared that these words may be interpreted as tending to reduce the responsibility for acts such as the bombardment of Guernica, Almeria and Barcelona? And if this is so is there not justifiable fear that these words may result in rendering less effective the British government's action to avoid a repetition of acts which have been universally condemned?"

Not only did this accusation of aiding Fascist aggression in Spain touch Halifax in a vulnerable spot from the point of view of British domestic politics, but it stung all the worse because Halifax, since he came to Geneva, has acquired a reputation for tactlessness in speaking about the victims of aggression in their presence.

To make matters worse Maxim Litvinov, Russian foreign commissar, who throughout Del Vayo's speech had been standing at the bar munching raw garlic, had just taken his seat at the council table next to Halifax. The latter was trying to get his nose out of range with an expression of acute misery on his face.

Halifax Voices Surprise.

The result was that Halifax lost his head completely. He expressed his surprise at the words which had "fallen" from the Spanish delegate and the questions put to him directly by Del Vayo, but completely forgot to refute the charge.

His worst slip, however, was to declare that it was not the information of the British government that intervention in Spain had taken place only on one side.

This gave Del Vayo a beautiful opening in rebuttal, for he had been demanding that an investigation committee be sent to Spain to determine the degree of intervention on both sides. He accordingly declared that Lord Halifax's accusation was an argument in favor of his proposal.

He asserted that whereas there were nearly 100,000 Italians still fighting for the Spanish rebels, to say nothing of German aviators and technicians, there are now only 6,000 foreigners on the loyalist side. While the aids of Lord Halifax gnashed their teeth, Del Vayo formally repeated the willingness of the Spanish government to accept an investigation by a league committee as to the accuracy of the figures he cited.

Garlic Figures in League Debate

Lord Halifax (right), British foreign secretary, apparently was made so uncomfortable by odor of garlic eaten by Maxim Litvinov (center), Russian foreign commissar, that he forgot to answer charge by Gulio Alvarez del Vayo (lef), Spanish foreign minister, at league of nations council session.

AMBASSADOR KENNEDY CRITICIZES DICTATOR CONTROL OF SCHOOLS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 13.—United States Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy tonight took a slap at dictator countries and political control of universities in a speech at London university's annual dinner.

"Some schools, colleges and universities are being forced to teach not what the professors know to be true, but what the political heads of the state want their young people to believe," he said.

Disclaiming any intention of criticizing "any particular country or any particular system," he said that "we must take no risks in our two countries." He added that it "would be hard to imagine in the United States a school system in which it was taught that all Republicans are and always have been rascals and all the good resides in the Democrats. Some of us believe this thesis has merit, but we politicians are not professors."

Bruised Woman Tells of Fatal Beating of Friend

Prescott, Ariz., May 13.—(AP)—Mrs. Odessa Webb, attractive brunette, her face swollen and bruised, spoke to a coroner's jury as she lay on a jail cot today. The jury went to the jail to hear Mrs. Webb's testimony and then returned a verdict naming Lira the slayer of Lawrence, who was said to have been wealthy.

CZECH NAZI CHIEF PLACES DEMANDS BEFORE BRITAIN

Confers with Political Leaders in London.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 13.—British willingness to give Reichsfuehrer Hitler nearly anything he wants, including Czechoslovakia, appears to be crystalizing out of Konrad Henlein's visit here. Henlein, who is the leader of 3,250,000 German Nazis in the Sudeten mountain section of Czechoslovakia, arrived in London by air last night on a mysterious surprise visit.

He conferred today with many British leaders of all political complections, including Winston Churchill, former cabinet minister and conservative critic of the Nevill Chamberlain government; Sir Archibald Sinclair, leader of the liberal opposition in the house of commons; Harold Nicolson, national Laborite leader, and Sir Robert Vansittart, chief diplomatic adviser of the government.

Tonight, after entertaining at dinner thirty guests, most of them members of parliament, Henlein told reporters his visit had not been fruitless.

"I feel sure the greater part of the political and racial problems about which I am concerned in Czechoslovakia soon will be solved," he said.

Col. Malcolm Arahame Christie, former British air attaché in Berlin and close friend of Henlein, said "Henlein now understands the British attitude and feels he can go back to his country and carry out his plans." Christie acted as Henlein's guide and interpreter throughout today's talks.

Demands Self Rule.

Henlein is understood to have told the British leaders that the Sudeten Germans demand from the Czech government complete self-rule and rupture of the Czech-soviet Russian alliance. Fulfilment of these demands, it was hinted, might induce Reichsfuehrer Hitler to enter discussions with the British for a general settlement of European problems.

The British and French governments today instructed their ministers in Prague to urge the Czech government to grant the same concessions it has offered the Germans to other minorities. Failure to do so, it was stated, might cause legitimate grievances from Hungary, Poland, and other countries.

Chamberlain Faces Crises.

Meanwhile, with a possible international flareup pending over Czechoslovakia, Prime Minister Chamberline faced a crisis over alleged inefficiency in the air ministry and delays in the production of warplanes. Everything seems to indicate that Chamberlain will be obliged to expel Viscount Swinton as secretary of state for air. Sir Samuel Hoare secretary of state for home affairs, was mentioned as Swinton's possible successor.

It was disclosed that Swinton offered to resign several days ago. Chamberlain refused to accept the resignation at that time, but after the storm of criticism leveled at the government in the house of commons last night the prime minister is believed now to be prepared to sacrifice Swinton in an effort to stave off a big scale revolt among his followers.

HUNGARY SHAKES UP GOVERNMENT TO COMBAT NAZIS

Belgian Cabinet Resigns in Financial Crisis.

BUDAPEST, Hungary, May 13.—(AP)—Bela Imredi, hailed as a "strong man" who will squelch Hungary's rapidly growing Nazi movement, tonight formed a new government and immediately outlined a program for restoring confidence and public order.

Two hours after succeeding Premier Koloman Daranyi, who had resigned, the new premier addressed a meeting of the government party and disclosed plans to introduce two far-reaching measures before parliament tomorrow.

Both will be aimed at clamping the lid on extremist agitation. One would provide more drastic penalties for disturbing public peace; the other would tighten restrictions on the right of public assembly.

Stresses Five Point Program.

The new premier also stressed a five point program for social and economic reconstruction which he said his government would push through without delay. He said Hungary's foreign policy would remain unchanged.

Imredi was minister of economics in the Daranyi cabinet. He is president of the national bank. He will hold the commerce portfolio as well as the premiership. The new government will be sworn in tomorrow by Admiral Nicholas Horthy, the regent.

Slender, clean shaven, quick witted, and a polished debater as well as an astute financier, Imredi speaks several languages and has a winning personality. He has a wide range of interests, including art and music. He looks 40, but is nearer 50.

The Daranyi government resigned a few hours after its anti-Jewish bill passed the house of deputies. This measure restricts Jewish participation in trade, industry, and the professions to 20 per cent. Approval by the upper house was regarded as assured. Enactment would mean that some 30,000 Jews would lose their jobs in the five year period allotted for putting the 20 per cent principle into effect.

Belgium Hunts Cabinet.

BRUSSELS, Belgium, May 13.—(AP)—Belgium's Socialist former foreign minister, Paul H. Spaak, sought tonight to form a cabinet to replace that of Paul Emile Janson, which resigned in a squabble over government tax proposals.

King Leopold of the Belgians gave Spaak a mandate after consulting political leaders. The king is a close friend of Spaak, who is a one time firebrand revolutionary who gave way to Janson in efforts to form a government when Premier Paul Van Zeeland resigned last Nov. 24.

Janson's cabinet was a coalition of his own liberal party, Socialists and the Catholics. The Catholics insisted on drastic cuts in governmental expenditures, particularly on labor's program of social reforms. The Socialists insisted on fresh taxation. With this lineup there was no alternative but for the government to resign.

SARI MARITZA SUES SAM KATZ FOR A DIVORCE

Los Angeles, Cal., May 13.—[Special.]—Sam Katz, a former Chicago theater owner and now a Hollywood studio executive, was sued for divorce today by Sari Maritza, English actress, who retired from the screen when she married in 1934. They separated four days ago.

Miss Maritza [Dora Patricia Deteringnathan] charged that Katz refused to take her out socially and told her he did not love her. Under a property settlement, Katz will give his wife $25,000 in cash and pay her $1,400 a month as long as his gross income is $3,000 a week.

Miss Maritza came to Hollywood in 1932 from London, where she had appeared in films. She was born to a Viennese mother and an English father in Tientsin, China, in 1910.

INSURGENTS WIN TERUEL HIGHWAY IN EASTERN SPAIN

Make New Gains in Drive Toward Valencia.

HENDAYE, France [at the Spanish Frontier], May 13.—(AP)—Spanish insurgents occupied the entire length of the Teruel-Albocacer highway today in their drive toward the government's coastal strongholds of Castellon de la Plana and Valencia.

The capture of Fortanete, halfway between Teruel and the Mediterranean, completed insurgent domination of this important artery on the south side of their corridor to the sea. Navarrese forces holding Fortanete formed a junction with columns on the east and west, creating a solid line extending in a curve westward from Teruel some eighty-five miles to the coast.

Other gains reported earlier by the rebels today had helped push the new front southward. West of Fortanete Gen. Garcia Escamez's 15th division stormed and captured the hermitage of San Cristobal in the Corbalan sector, about ten miles northeast of Teruel.

Advance from Allepuz.

Insurgent troops advanced southward from Allepuz also, while east of Fortanete, in the Cantavieja sector, Gen. Garcia Valino's battalions stormed the snow capped Monte Tavaruela, 5,000 feet high, and drove out loyalist militiamen, the rebels reported.

At the coastal end of their front the insurgents are thirty miles above Castellon de la Plana. Valencia is forty miles south-southwest of this stronghold.

Despite heavy insurgent artillery and aviation bombardments, government officers expressed confidence that mountain defenses between the rebels and their objectives would prove a strong barrier to extension of the insurgent conquest.

Gen. Jose Miaja, commander of the central government forces, took personal command of the defense against the insurgent drive which has netted nearly 600 square miles in three days.

Bomb Barcelona Twice More.

BARCELONA, Spain, May 14 [Saturday].—Spanish insurgent planes raided Barcelona twice early today, bringing to four the total of air raids within thirty-three hours. The attacks were the most severe this capital of government Spain has suffered since devastating bombardments in March.

There was no immediate estimate of damage in the new raids. Yesterday a dozen persons were killed and forty wounded in an attack and casualties Thursday were forty-eight dead and more than 100 wounded.

Create New Front

Spanish rebel troops advanced farther in their drive toward Castellon de la Plana and Valencia yesterday. After the capture of Fortanete they seized the entire Teruel-Albocacer highway (1) and established a new front on the southern side of their wedge to the Mediterranean. Meanwhile, rebel bombing planes made four raids in thirty-three hours on Barcelona (2), loyalist capital. Sixty persons were killed and more than 140 wounded in the first two raids. Casualties in the other raids were not known.

SUPREME COURT RECORD REFUTES WALLACE CHARGE

Upsets His Claim Tribunal Reversed Itself.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 13.—[Special.]—While refusing to enter into a political controversy with Henry A. Wallace, secretary of agriculture, Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes today stood on the record as proof that Wallace was wrong in accusing the Supreme court of reversing itself in the now famous Kansas City stockyards rate case.

The record disclosed that, far from reversing itself in its opinion of April 25, 1938, rebuking Secretary Wallace, the court had rebuked him on precisely the same grounds in the same case in an opinion delivered by the chief justice May 25, 1936.

Rates Held Invalid.

The opinion of last month, also by the chief justice, held invalid maximum rates fixed by Wallace for services charged by Kansas City commission men because they had been denied a full and fair hearing.

The consequences of that opinion were momentous, because the National Labor Relations board, whose procedure concededly had been just as arbitrary, was forced to run for cover and now is engaged in courts all over the country seeking to withdraw cases against industrialists in order to prevent judicial review of its conduct.

Wallace entered the controversy yesterday when he replied to a speech before the American Law institute in which Mr. Hughes noted with apprehension the multiplication of quasi-judicial administrative agencies and warned against abuses of power by these boards and commissions.

Wallace Writes to Hughes.

Wallace took the unusual course of writing a letter to the chief justice in April, shortly after the stockyards case decision, and to all members of the senate — copies of which were released to the press yesterday — in which he contended that the star chamber methods were employed not by his but by the previous administration; that the Supreme court specifically approved his conduct in the 1936 opinion, and that the 1938 opinion was in no sense a rebuke to the present secretary of agriculture.

When asked about the Wallace letter today, Mr. Hughes refused to be quoted but authorized his secretary to say that all the points at issue were covered in the two opinions.

Rate Suit Remanded.

The opinion of May 25, 1936, disclosed that the suit of Fred O. Morgan and other Kansas City commission men to enjoin the rates prescribed by Wallace was remanded for further proceedings because the lower court had erred in striking from the complaint and not requiring the government to answer an allegation of arbitrary procedure.

"The defendants should be required to answer these allegations and the question whether plaintifs had a proper hearing should be determined," said the first opinion.

"The mistake in hearing procedure—that is, the failure to make an examiner's report available to the parties for exceptions and argument—was committed not by this administration, but by the preceding one," said the Wallace letter.

"When the Supreme court remanded the case to the lower court two years ago, Chief Justice Hughes specifically declared that such an examiner's report was not necessary."

Attributed to Wallace.

The opinion of 1936 did say that such an examiner's report was not essential, but the case was reversed on other allegations of arbitrary conduct attributed specifically to Mr. Wallace and not to the previous administration.

"The outstanding allegation, which the District court struck out, is that the secretary made the rate order without having heard or read any of the evidence, and without having heard the oral arguments or having read or considered the briefs which the plaintifs submitted," said the 1936 opinion.

The court rebuked Wallace in the first opinion primarily because, although he himself issued the orders prescribing the maximum rates, the oral arguments were heard by Rexford Guy Tugwell, acting secretary of agriculture.

The court held that in prescribing the rates under these circumstances Wallace was exercising judicial instead of executive functions, and he must conform to rules of judicial fair play.

Decision on Wallace Point.

As to the single point relied upon by Wallace, the court said:

"Again, while it would have been good practice to have the examiner prepare a report and submit it to the secretary and the parties, and to permit exceptions and arguments addressed to the points thus presented—a practice found to be of great value in proceedings before the interstate commerce commission—we cannot say that that particular type of procedure was essential to validity of the hearing. The statute does not require it and what the statute does require relates to substance and not to form."

In relying on this point Wallace inferentially accused the Supreme court—with Justice Hugo L. Black alone dissenting—of condemning in 1938 what it had approved in the unanimous opinion of 1936.

The 1938 opinion, however, shows that the court did not invalidate the Wallace orders because of the absence of an examiner's report.

Finally, the opinion of last April 25 disposes of the Wallace alibi that if any injustice was committeed the previous administration and not his was responsible. As if to preclude the possibility of any mistake on that point, Mr. Hughes gave names and dates in his opinion.

"On March 24, 1933," said the opinion, "oral argument was had before Rexford Gug Tugwell as acting secretary." The order was entered by Secretary Wallace on June 14, 1933.

DIES FOLLOWING BIRTH OF CHILD.

Mrs. Margaret Marshal, 26 years old, of 114 Belvidere street, Waukegan, died yesterday in her home from complications following the birth of a child three weeks ago.

Offered Homes

Jimmie, auto victim, recuperates in clinic.

Half a dozen good homes were offered yesterday to the friendly bulldog at the Anti-Cruelty society clinic, 157 West Grand avenue, described yesterday in THE TRIBUNE. But the society hopes an experiment to be tried in another week, when the dog may be using his injured foreleg, will restore him to his owner.

He will be taken to Schiller street and Lake Shore drive, where he was struck by a hit-and-run driver a week ago, and allowed to find his way home. An Anti-Cruelty society attendant will let the dog lead him along. If he can't find the way, Herman Ullrich, caretaker at the society headquarters, would like to keep him.

Meanwhile the dog has endeared himself to clinic attendants. When they massage his leg, which he now lets hang while he runs around on three legs, he smiles at them gratefully and rests his head against them. He is given sun baths, too, to help heal the leg. A nerve may be injured. At night the dog, whom they call Jimmie, sleeps with William Hane, a clinic assistant.

Washington, D. Four buildings listed for construction in Chicago at a total cost of $1,005,000 are the Garfield park station, which will require $240,000; Jackson park, $300,000; Wicker park, $290,000, and Elsdon avenue, $175,000.

PUT BLAME FOR CASE BOMBINGS ON LABOR FEUD

Rockford, Ill., May 13.—[Special.]—Rockford police tonight were investigating the explosion of bombs near the homes of four members of the A. F. of L. union at the closed J. I. Case company plant. No one was injured.

The homes were those of Arthur H. Ollman, 1123 Chestnut street, recording secretary of Federal union, No. 21196; Clyde Parker, 212 Irving avenue; Russell King, 209 South Springfield avenue, and Fred Waterstreet, who lives in Winnebago, eight miles west of here. The bomb at Ollman's home was exploded Wednesday night and the others last night.

Police attributed the blasts to trouble between the A. F. of L. union and the United Automobile Workers, C. I. O. affiliate.

SECRET BRITISH PLANE BURNS IN AIR; ONE KILLED

[Copyright: 1938: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, May 13.—Bursting into flames at a height of 3,000 feet above Bristol, one of the air ministry's secret long range monoplanes, intended for an attempt on the world's long distance record, crashed today in a field and was destroyed.

Flight Lieutenant C. A. Washer escaped by parachute. The other occupant of the plane, P. H. Warren, test observer of the Bristol Aeroplane company, failed to remove the cover of his rear cockpit and was killed.

WEST LOSES JOB AS LOBBYIST FOR ADMINISTRATION

Ickes Favorite Named Undersecretary.

BY WALTER TROHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 13.—[Special.]—Another member of the White House inner circle, Charles West, administration lobbyist par excellence, today was ushered out into the political cold by President Roosevelt and joined the ranks of ex-favorites.

[A. P. Wirephoto.]
Harry Slattery.

West's resignation as under secretary of the interior was quickly accepted by the President today and he immediately named Harry Slattery, special assistant to Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes, to fill West's post. Slattery, who is 51 years old, has been in the interior department for thirty years and has been first assistant to Ickes since 1933.

Once Secretary to Pinchot.

Shortly after graduation from Georgetown and George Washington universities he became secretary to Gifford Pinchot, then chief of the interior forest service. He was special assistant to Franklin K. Lane when he was secretary of the interior in 1918.

A former Ohio congressman, West, in his heyday was one of the most powerful figures in the administration. As personal lobbyist to the president, he treated congress to some of the most amazing scenes ever staged in the legislative halls.

West was wont to hold court in the offices of the speaker and congressmen sought his favor for bills. His promises captured many a house vote for administration measures and his nod gave the presidential seal of approval for bills. His frown was a terrible "no," from which there was no appeal. To West came the post of undersecretary to Ickes as a reward.

Promised New Post.

As soon as the administration began suffering house rebuffs West lost favor rapidly. His position became less important when James Roosevelt, son of the President was taken into the official family as White House secretary and given charge of White House liaison work.

So far had West's White House stock fallen early in the year that Ickes moved out West's office force, including a brother-in-law of the Ohioan, James Rohrer, and left him with only a receptionist.

A new post will be found for West, White House Secretary Stephen T. Early said, but, in all likelihood, it will not match the $10,000 a year salary of the undersecretaryship.

HUGE NAVY BILL IS PASSED; SENT TO WHITE HOUSE

Washington, D. C., May 13.—(AP)—The billion dollar navy expansion bill, designed to give the nation the most powerful fleet in its history, went to the White House today for President Roosevelt's signature after the senate approved it.

Almost immediately it became known that the navy hoped to start work without delay on some of the 46 new fighting ships, 26 auxiliaries, and 950 planes the measure authorizes.

After conferring with President Roosevelt, Admiral William D. Leahy said the navy recommended an immediate appropriation of about $12,000,000 to start two cruisers, several auxiliaries, and "some of the planes."

FORMULA TO END ALL RECESSIONS, ROOSEVELT GOAL

Admits Key Has Not Yet Been Found.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 13.—[Special.]—Maintaining that his original spending program had not failed, President Roosevelt today revealed that he is seeking a formula to ward off future depressions to be tied in with his new 5 billion dollar pump priming program.

He hopes to find a formula which will allay the evils of unabsorbed inventories and unwaranted high prices, which have been blamed by many for the present depression. Mr. Roosevelt said these were factors in the existing recession, although not the only ones. He admitted he had no program at hand, but said he hopes one will be found.

When the administration first started spending in 1933, he said, the NRA was set up in an experimental way to guard against setbacks in the spending for prosperity campaign. The experiment had to be stopped, he added, when the blue eagle was outlawed by the Supreme court.

The whole problem is now being restudied, not with a view to reëstablishing the NRA, but with a view to retention of many of its features which were not struck down by the court. He said he hoped that the study might proceed, by approval of congress at this session, along with the study of monopolies for the purpose of strengthening the anti-trust laws, which he recommended in a recent special message.

It was in connection with his statement that unabsorbed inventories and high prices caused the present depression, that Mr. Roosevelt defended his previous spending.

The other spending did not fail, he said, but it got to such a point that the economic and business methods ran away with the ball. That is what he hopes to stop in the future, but there is no definite program now, only study, he said.

Gets Unemployment Figures.

The President announced he had received the semi-final report of John D. Biggers, Toledo, O., glass executive in charge of the unemployment census. On the basis of the report he revealed that the administration is working toward a monthly or bimonthly voluntary registration of the jobless.

He rejoiced that Biggers, a Republican, had accomplished his job at a cost of $1,986,000 out of the appropriation of 5 million dollars. The saving of more than 3 million dollars will be returned to the treasury.

In the census 5,833,401 persons reported themselves as totally unemployed, 2,011,615 as unemployed, except on WPA, and 3,219,502 as parially unemployed. Since it was taken, Nov. 16, it has been estimated that unemployment has increased by 2 to 3 million persons.

Calls Work Valuable.

"The 1937 unemployment census has demonstrated the possibilities of quick action and coöperation between branches of the government to undertake emergency tasks," Biggers reported.

"Regardless of fluctuating totals of unemployed, data showing characteristics and composition of unemployment have permanent value. These facts developed include a study of ages and sex; dependent workers, geographical distribution; industries and occupations, all of which will be necessary as a basis for any comprehensive reëmployment plan. Since this information is available by counties and cities of 10,000 and more population, an opportunity and a challenge is presented to local communities to assist in solving our principal economic problem."

The President had nothing to say on the speech of Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes which warned against encroachment of government quasi judicial agencies on the courts. He said it depended upon the newspaper one read how the chief justice's remarks were interpreted.

SPEED GIRO WORK FOR FLIGHT TO POSTOFFICE ROOF

Jinx Hits Plane as It Taxis Across Field.

BY WAYNE THOMIS.

A Friday the 13th jinx settled on Pilot Johnny Miller and his Kellett autogiro for a few minutes yesterday afternoon and threatened for a time to cause postponement of the demonstration of air mail shuttle service scheduled for tomorrow afternoon to inaugurate National Air Mail week. But company mechanics at Dayton, O., and Ben O. Howard, airline flyer and Chicago airplane manufacturer, came to the rescue.

The result is that Johnny will soar off Chicago airport at 1:40 tomorrow afternoon and make his landing on the roof of the post office building, fourteen stories above the street, just as he had planned. The jinx succeeded only in giving a corps of mechanics in the Howard Aircraft factory, 5301 West 65th street, an all night job of repairing a damaged tail plane on the giro Miller will fly.

While the tail plane is being repaired, a new set of rotor blades will be speeding to Chicago from Dayton. Only one blade was damaged, but the Kellett company is sending along a whole set of three. They will be used on the postoffice flight.

Special Preparations Necessary.

The special preparations became necessary because a latch on the control stick in the pilot's cockpit of the giro came loose while the plane was taxiing on the ground yesterday. When the latch slipped one of the blades, which are the giro's revolving wings, clipped the horizontal stabilizer surface. Rotor and tail plane, both of which are constructed of plywood and fabric, were splintered.

All preparations on the roof of the postoffice were completed yesterday under direction of Assistant Custodian Harold Levin and crews working under his aids, Edward Henderson and Fred Brockhoff. The landing mat, consisting of steel plates, has been relocated in accordance with directions given by Miller after inspection flights over the building on Wednesday.

Army to Lower Radio Wires.

Some 1,800 square feet of steel plates lent by the Carnegie-Illinois Steel company for the demonstration flight have been added to the 1,400 square feet of plates laid by the postoffice. The postoffice crews have sawed away a ventilation pipe of heavy cast iron which would have extended a foot above the roof in the center of the mat and constituted a hazard.

Through the intervention of Maj. A. V. Eliot, acting signal officer of the 6th corps army area, army radio antenna wires on the north, east and south sides of the building will be lowered for the take off and landing. The army signal center in the postoffice is an important one in 24 hour operation. Maj Eliot arranged to have the antenna lowered only for the time that the ship is on the roof.

All particulars of the demonstration flight will be broadcast over stations W-G-N and WBBM, and also over the coast to coast Mutual network from 1:45 to 2:15 p. m. Miller will carry 150 pounds of air mail, taken from a Transcontinental and Western Airplane, on his flight to the postoffice. On the return trip, again to make a connection with an east bound TWA ship, he will carry 200 pounds.

Doubt on Marital Status Cast by Arkansas Ruling

Little Rock, Ark., May 13.—(AP)—The marital status of a number of couples was uncertain today as result of a ruling by the attorney general's office that mayors were without authority to perform marriage ceremonies unless they also were ministers or justices of the peace. Mayor A. B. Laster of Clarksville, who said he was neither, announced that since 1934 he had married 24 couples, some of whom now live outside Arkansas.

MISS ADAH WILSON.

Mrs. Lillian Martin, secretary to Harold F. McCormick, chairman of the International Harvester company, announced last night that Mr. McCormick and Miss Adah Wilson of Los Angeles, are to be married soon in Los Angeles. Mr. McCormick is now in California where he spent the winter. While there he met Miss Wilson whom he has known as a friend for several years.

According to Mrs. Martin, Mr. McCormick and Miss Wilson renewed their old friendship, "which grew into devotion." They planned to marry, but a recurrence of Mr. McCormick's illness came on.

Mr. McCormick is 66 years old. His first wife, the former Edith Rockefeller, died in August, 1932. They had been divorced some time previously. Mr. McCormick's second wife was Mme. Ganna Walska, singer. Divorce also ended that marriage.

Miss Wilson, who for several years was attendant for the late Jean Harlow, film star, said in Los Angeles last night she met McCormick at a social function in Pasadena some years ago. When he became ill in 1930 she was employed as his nurse and has acted in the same capacity during his present illness. She is 35.

McCormick's physician said he would be released from the Good Samaritan hospital in Los Angeles next week and that the wedding would take place shortly afterward. McCormick has been suffering from arthritis. It will be Miss Wilson's first marriage.

MOTION TO LIMIT RULE OF AVIATION BOARD IS BEATEN

Washington, D. C., May 13.—(AP)—Democratic senators after a warm debate today defeated an attempt to limit presidential powers to remove members of a proposed new aviation control agency.

This led Senator Pat McCarran [D., Nev.] to announce he would move Monday to pigeonhole his own bill providing for creation of the agency.

"If this aviation control board is not independent, it isn't anything," he said. "If a board member can't exercise his judgment as to a crash, accident, or other matters, then what's the use of an agency?"

The controversy began when Senator Harry S. Truman [D., Mo.] moved to strike from the bill a provision denying the President power to remove board members except for inefficiency, neglest of duty, or malfeasance.

TWO ON HOUSING BOARD AGREE TO QUIT WHEN ASKED

Ruled Ineligible; Mayor to Replace Them.

One and possibly two new members of the Chicago Housing authority will be appointed before the next meeting of the city council, Mayor Kelly said yesterday, to fill vacancies automatically created by Corporation Counsel Barnet Hodes' ruling that John R. Fugard and T. J. Carney are not eligible to serve because they live in the suburbs. The mayor's appointees must have aldermanic confirmation and be approved by the Illinois state housing board.

Both Live on North Shore.

Fugard, who is chairman of the CHA, lives at 806 Clinton street, Evanston. He is an architect and former president of the Metropolitan Housing council. Carney, vice president of Sears, Roebuck & Co., lives at 1155 Mohawk road, Wilmette. Both said last night they would hand in their resignations when requested by Mayor Kelly.

The Illinois statute through which local housing authorities were created in the state provided that only persons living in the respective municipalities or within three miles of their limits are eligible for membership, Hodes said. If they live outside the municipality they cannot live in another incorporated city, town, or village.

Mayor Hoped They'd Resign.

"I am sorry that this happened," the mayor said. "Both men have done a good job and I would like to have them continue, but the law is clear. I am told there is a possibility that the state law will be amended in this respect, but I'm not going to wait. I hope Mr. Fugard and Mr. Carney will resign."

The other members of the authority are Coleman Woodbury, William J. Lynch, and Victor Olander.

The CHA took over from the federal government on a long term lease the administration of the three public housing projects that were built by the Public Works administration.

THOUSANDS STAY UP TO WITNESS MOON'S ECLIPSE

As announced and on time the moon, earth, and sun combined to make a lunar eclipse early today, but Chicagoans didn't see any too much of it. Cloudy skies formed a curtain that veiled a good deal of the display. There were, however, occasional clear views. The total eclipse occurred between 3:18 and 4:09 a. m. Many thousands of Chicagoans stayed up for the show.

As explained by Miss Maude Bennot, director of the Adler planetarium, the eclipse results from the moon passing through the earth's shadow.

Hundreds of men, women, and children, anxious to get a word as well as diagrammatic description of the event, have crowded the Alder planetarium the last few days.

Moving Forward

Marshall Field & Company presents here each day observations and opinions intended to be of interest and value to those it seeks to serve.

DUMMY'S DOUBLE

By CALEB

THIS IS a true story about a wooden chap called Charlie McCarthy, and how he helped save the life of a little boy. Not long ago, six year old Bruce M——— went to an Evanston hospital with a bad cold. He grew steadily worse until the white room where he lay was a focal point of activity for sober faced doctors and nurses.

On the door of Bruce's room appeared the sign, "Avoid open flame; oxygen in use." The days dragged on, with little improvement to report. Soon after daybreak one morning, Bruce roused himself sufficiently to remind his father of an earlier promise that he might have a certain, big Charlie McCarthy doll. It was the first sign of interest he had shown for days.

That morning the manager of Field's toy section found the phone on his desk ringing the moment he reached the floor. He heard Bruce's father repeat the boy's request, and learned the story of the dramatic battle under way.

A few minutes later a Field man swung aboard a train for Evanston with Charlie McCarthy tucked under his arm. In half an hour Charlie reached the hospital and was slipped under the oxygen tent beside his friend, Bruce.

"From that minute he got better," said Bruce's father. "On the morning we called you, we'd just about given up hope. Bruce's mother and I both feel that Charlie's arrival on the scene was the thing that helped tip the scales—and he got there in the nick of time."

Charlie and Bruce are inseparable. They spent several days in the oxygen tent together and what they said to each other we shall never know—but they both feel fine now. Bruce won't talk, and all Charlie will say is that this was the first tent he ever lived in with no ants and mosquitoes to bother him. He and Bruce are going to write Skinny Dugan all about it.

MAKES CHARGES OF SLUSH FUNDS IN INDIANA VOTE

2 Per Cent Club Cash Was Used, Claim.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Indianapolis, Ind., May 13.—[Special.]—The 2 per cent campaign slush fund of the McNutt-Minton-Townsend Democratic machine was brought into the Democratic primary scandal today by Machine Busters, Inc. The amount of the fund is estimated at from $250,000 to $500,000 a year, but no accounting is required and the real amount of the take is known only in the inner circles.

Sherif Otto Ray, who was defeated by the machine candidate, Reginald Sullivan, for the Democratic nomination for mayor, said as spokesman for the Machine Busters that ballot box corruption at the primaries was greased by tribute gathered by the machine.

Charges Slush Funds Used.

The primary election May 3 was racketeered by the machine politicians, the sherif declared. The squeeze, he added, was put on gambling and beer by the local machine for campaign funds, while at the statehouse the 2 per cent slush fund, now tricked out with a halo by a new law legalizing it, has encouraged the local boys to go out with the campaign dippers.

Sherif Ray late today filed his contest demanding a recount of the ballots cast for mayor in the Democratic primaries, where he lost by 18,000 out of 62,000 cast.

Shortly thereafter Al Feeney, who lost the nomination for sherif to Charles Lutz, machine candidate, by 2,000 votes, filed a contest and a demand for a recount of the Democratic vote cast on sherif. Reaction among machine opponents was that the conduct of the primary may be dragged into the daylight.

Feeney, who was director of safety under Gov. Paul V. McNutt for two and a half years, chased slot machines out of Indiana and organized the state police when the Dillinger gang was terrorizing the midwest. He was ousted by McNutt. As a candidate he was in a class by himself, no organization, no paid workers, running simply on his record as a law enforcement officer, and he almost beat the McNutt-Minton-Townsend ring for sherif.

The 2 per cent club was established soon after McNutt was elected governor in 1932. He now is Philippine high commission and has been stung by the presidential bee.

It is a levy of 2 per cent on the pay checks of state pay rollers. Into the campaign fund, too, go "contributions" from contractors and others who do business with the state and other gifts.

Active During Minton Campaign.

The first general campaign in which the 2 per cent club was an active force was that of 1934, when Senator Sherman Minton, advocate of press censorship, defeated Senator Arthur R. Robinson. The 2 per cent club was denounced by Robinson in that campaign as "Indiana's most notorious institution."

M. Clifford Townsend is governor, but the 2 per cent is controlled by McNutt lieutenants. Its treasurer is Bowman Elder, receiver for the Indiana railroad [traction lines]. Control of the fund reposes with Elder and Frank McHale, national committeeman, known as McNutt's Jim Farley and reputed to be the real boss in the state capital.

McHale likewise is called the power behind the throne in the operation of the liquor laws.

Employés Not Fooled.

The machine announces that nobody will be fired from his or her job, if refusing to kick in. But the employés tell a different story. The number of employés varies, but some of the high Democrats, outside the McNutt-Minton-Townsend ring, figure that about 4,500 year-around job holders with average pay of about $115 a month, come across regularly with the 2 per cent. Some are said to be assessed higher. During the summer months the number of workers including temporaries run higher, perhaps up to 8,000.

"Voluntary contributions," from contractors and others swell the fund. At a minimum some figure it at $250,000 and from there up. Protests against all this became so pronounced that in 1937 an act was passed.

It took the 2 per cent fund out of the corrupt practices act, by providing it shall not apply to any club corporate whose function it is to aid or assist in political activities generally, nor to the dues or contributions paid such political club.

So the Hoosier Democratic club, of 2 percenters, has been given a legalized form, immune from the corrupt practices, and not subject to an accounting.

DEMAND REASON FOR DISMISSALS AT LEYDEN HIGH

More than 700 parents and students at a massmeeting last night protested against the majority action of three members of the Leyden Township High school board in Franklin Park, who refused to renew the contracts of the school's athletic coach, a commercial teacher and two other employés. Most of the school's 550 students have been on strike since Tuesday as a result of the board's action.

The meeting resulted in a decision of the striking students to return to classes Monday, and in appointment of two committees, one of students and one of parents, to deliver a triple-ultimatum to the board.

The committees will ask [1] that the board explain its reasons for refusing to renew the contracts of Lynn Watson, athletic coach, and Leland A. Meyer, commercial teacher, or [2] failing to explain, to reinstate the men immediately, or [3] failing to reinstate, to resign themselves. Two other school employés, Richard Lock, attorney, and Albert Hall, janitor, are affected with Watson and Meyer.

Board members who voted against retaining Watson and the others are Mrs. Ada Dodge, president; J. P. Didier, and F. C. Mueller. The other two members, Frank Case and Ervin A. Mudgett, were at last night's meeting.

PENN CAMPAIGN BOILS; 41 POLICE FACE REMOVAL

Grand Jury Strikes at Philly Mayor.

BY WILLIAM FULTON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Philadelphia, Pa., May 13.—[Special.]—The Pennsylvania primary campaign reached a new boiling point today when a special grand jury demanded immediate dismissal of forty-one police officers and patrolmen in the administration of Mayor S. Davis Wilson of Philadelphia. Wilson is opposing Gov. George H. Earle for the Democratic senatorial nomination.

The grand jury, which has been exploring gambling and vice conditions, handed up a sweeping report to Judge Curtis Bok.

Half the officers and patrolmen comprising the force in the central part of the city were stamped as "incompetent, inefficient and, in a number of cases, dishonest and corrupt."

Hits Gambling Joints.

Inspector James E. Clegg and Capt. Robert Callahan topped the list for immediate retirement. At one time thirty gambling "joints" were operating in their district, the jury said.

According to the grand jury, the string of gaming emporiums was kept flourishing through promotions, demotions and transfers of police officers which by indirection placed the responsibility on the mayor's doorstep.

Mayor Wilson stamped the action as political. Calling his chief police officers before him shortly before the report was announced, the mayor said he would stand behind them. He lashed out at Gov. Earle whom he blames for secretly aiding the investigation.

Mayor Backed by Guffy.

The mayor is backed in the primary race by Senator Joseph F. Guffey and the C. I. O. czar, John L. Lewis, while Earl heads a ticket selected by the regular state organization.

The armies of pay rollers being mobilized for the battle at the polls on Tuesday were spotlighted today when State Treasurer F. Clair Ross, chairman of the Guffey-C. I. O. campaign, halted the pay of 5,000 employés in the unemployment compensation division for several hours on the grounds that civil service laws were being violated. He charged the Earle administration with packing the division with temporary employés. Guy Bard, attorney general, advised that the checks be released.

Policeman Kills His Wife, Two Sons and Himself

New York, May 13.—[Special.]—A model policeman, suffering from a nervous disorder, quietly climbed out of bed at 6 a. m. today, shot his pregnant wife and three small sons, then shot himself in the head. The policeman, Anthony Modleski, 36 years old; his wife, Antoinette, 27 years old, and sons, Joseph, 4 years old, and William, 1 year old, are dead. The third son, Anthony Jr., 3 years old, is not expected to live.

FREED ON CHECK CHARGE; HELD AS PAROLE VIOLATOR

When J. Gordon Chambers, 4917 Kenmore avenue, was released yesterday in Jury court from charges of passing a bad check, he was arrested immediately as a parole violator in Michigan. He left Jackson prison after serving part of a term for jewel theft, but failed to report to parole officers.

Attorney Michael Romano said he will file a petition for a writ of habeas corpus in Chamber's behalf on Wednesday, which will challenge the constitutionality of the new reciprocal parole law that waives extradition proceedings.

In January of 1928 Chambers' wife, Betty, was found mysteriously slain in an apartment at 511 Melrose street.

SHRINE COLLECTS 4½ TONS OF FOOD FOR ITS HOSPITAL

Four and a half tons of foodstuffs were collected last night for crippled children in the Shriners' hospital at 2211 North Oak Park avenue. The food was contributed instead of paying a cash admission charge by persons attending the Shriners' family program in the Medinah temple at Ohio street and Wabash avenue. One man brought $50 in pennies.

The hospital, which was built in 1925, is equipped with 50 beds and cares for crippled children whose parents have no means of sending them to paying institutions.

The program last night was directed by Edward W. Shepherd, Medinah potentate, and included the Medinah brass band, the Medinah chanters, the oriental band, and artists within the order. Twenty-five children from the hospital also took part in the entertainment.

Girl, 10, Critically Ill After Bite by Woodtick

Rockford, Ill., May 13.—[Special.]—An Oregon, Ill., girl, 10 years old, was in a critical condition at St. Anthony hospital here today as a result of a woodtick bite two weeks ago. Doctors said she has Rocky mountain spotted fever, a rare disease in this part of the country. The hospital refused to disclose her identity.

50 WOMEN VISIT SENATORS; FIGHT PUMP PRIMING

Washington, D. C., May 13.—[Special.]—Fifty women from New York, New Jersey, and Connecticut trod the corridors of the capitol today visiting senators to register protests against enactment of the 5 billion dollar pump priming program. The leader of the group was Mrs. Hamilton Wright of New York City.

They found Vice President Garner a genial but noncommittal host. "He told us he was glad to see us and that we were very unselfish, but he said he was not a legislator," said Mrs. Wright.

"We are seeking senators, particularly those on the appropriations committee. We believe in direct relief, but do not believe in the bill passed by the house giving control to the President."

SHOOTS SELF TO DEATH.

Charles Eder, 65 years old, was found shot to death in his room at 635 Barry avenue yesterday. On the floor nearby lay a revolver and two farewell notes.

ACCEPT NO MORE RELIEF CASES; FUND EXHAUSTED

Downstate Debt Perils Illinois Setup.

No new relief cases will be accepted and the writing of the last relief orders for May will be completed today, Leo M. Lyons, commissioner of the Chicago Relief administration, said last night. The city's relief crisis, caused by a lack of funds, is expected to result in the closing of all Chicago relief stations Tuesday night. The one hope for solution of the emergency rests in legislative action.

Chicago's relief needs for May were estimated at $3,380,423, against which the state allotted only $1,912,132, enough to provide for only 55,000 of the city's 93,000 cases. No city funds were available.

Large Debts Downstate.

Imperiling the state's relief setup are the large relief debts of downstate communities. The debts of 358 governmental units outside of Chicago aggregate at least $1,499,027 and may be much larger, according to a report made yesterday at a meeting in Chicago of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission by E. E. Ferebee, IERC statistician. Members of the commission said the relief situation is just as serious in many other communities as it is here.

Thomas E. Courtney, commission member from De Kalb, said the load has been borne by downstate merchants, who are now cracking under the strain. He pointed out that where the CRA spent noly the money it actually had for relief, townships in downstate areas used grocery orders instead of checks.

These orders have caused downstate merchants to assume a huge debt. Courtney said that if the state legislature comes to Chicago's aid with additional funds, downstate conditions, too, must be considered.

William Sexton, Chicago IERC member, asked Lyons what Gov. Horner had decided in conferences with Lyons Thursday concerning a special session. Lyons said the governor was the only one who could answer that question, and added that the situation remained as it had been.

Horner Silent on Action.

At Springfield Gov. Horner remained silent on what decisions he has made, including the date of the session and the recommendations he will present to the general assembly. Many believe he will issue the call for next Thursday, but others believe he will wait until May 23.

Should the latter date be chosen the legislators will meet six days after relief gives out in Chicago. The governor, however, refuses to be hurried. Many of his advisers think the only thing he can do in the emergency is to recommend an appropriation of state funds to tide the city over until July and meanwhile set the legislature at work on proposals for new taxes in Chicago.

There were reports that the relief problem might be solved by an increase from 3 per cent to 4 per cent in the state sales tax, at least for Chicago and other large cities in the state which face a crisis. There was no confirmation of these reports.

It has also been suggested that funds for relief might be raised by broadening the base of the sales tax—that is, applying it to occupations now exempt from it.

Criticizes WPA Activities.

Commissioner Courtney said that money spent on WPA activities could be utilized much better in rehabilitation of men for private industry. Canning factories near De Kalb, he asserted, cannot get men to work because they are afraid they will not be able to get back on WPA if once they leave.

Charles E. Miner, state WPA director, was called into an executive session of the IERC and the situation was explained to him. He promised, Courtney said, that he would institute a system of furloughs from WPA so men can readily rejoin the federal pay roll if they lose private employment.

THREE CONVICTED OF RELIEF FRAUD MADE TO REPAY

Judge Eugene J. Holland of the South State street court yesterday ordered three men, convicted of accepting relief while they had other sources of income, to make restitution. All were placed on probation for one year. Charles Wagner, 520 South Loomis street, is to repay $291 collected from the relief organization while he was working for a printing firm. Roland Simmons of 1839 South Carpenter street, a coal hiker, must return $57.38. James Curry of 827 East 90th place, convicted on the ground that he collected relief while a grown son was contributing to his family's support, is to repay $251.

Deneen Watson.

Attorney Deneen Watson of Chicago has been selected to receive the 1937 distinguished achievement award given annually by the Illinois Junior Chamber of Commerce. The award will be presented at the annual banquet of the chamber tonight in Belleville. Charles E. He is chairman of the tax section of the Illinois Bar association and has written several articles on taxation. He is a member of the law firm of Watson and Healy.

LYTTON GIVEN 2 MORE BLOOD TRANSFUSIONS

Henry C. Lytton, president of the Hub, who is in St. Luke's hospital suffering from a stomach ailment, was given two more blood transfusions yesterday. Mr. Lytton, who is 91 years old, was taken to the hospital Wednesday. Because of his age, his condition is considered critical. Mr. Lytton founded the Hub store more than 50 years ago and is the only survivor of 14 pioneer merchants on State street.

Bomb Explosion Causes $1,500 Damage in Garage

Damage estimated at $1,500 was done early today by the explosion of a black powder bomb which was tossed into the garage of the Westinhouse Contracting company in the rear of 5610 Milwaukee avenue. The blast damaged the interior of the structure and two cars and broke windows in neighboring homes. Scores of people were awakened. Arthur H. Westin, 5548 Milwaukee avenue, told Lieut. John Walsh of the Jefferson Park station he has had no labor troubles. He suggested business rivalry as a motive.

He rushed right through a blackberry pie so fast that he won the pie eating contest, getting quite as much pie inside as he had on his face when it was over.

400,000 CHINESE TRAPPED BY JAP DRIVE ON RAILWAY

Defenders Squeezed from North and South.

BULLETIN.

FOOCHOW, China, May 14 (Saturday).—(AP)—Under cover of a furious airplane and naval attack Japanese troops landed today near the mouth of the Min river, gateway to this South China city. Detonations of the bombs and shells were audible in Foochow, indicating that both planes and warships were attacking.

SHANGHAI, May 14 [Saturday].—(AP)—Japan's armies, swiftly nearing the Lunghai railroad from north and south, today virtually had sealed 400,000 Chinese troops in a tight circle on the vital central front.

Chinese acknowledged they were losing ground against dozens of Japanese columns advancing around the dwindling territory the Chinese are defending between Japan's conquests in North and Central China.

Apparent imminent success of Japan's long efforts to reach the east-west Lunghai railway, Central China's main communications line, endangered the defenders' entire resistance along the Lunghai corridor to the seacoast.

China's armies, the Japanese asserted, would be trapped without hope of escape. The northern and southern Japanese forces, they predicted, would be joined, and Suchow, junction of the important north-south Tientsin-Pukow railroad and the Lunghai, no longer could be defended.

Cross Honan Province.

A Japanese army spokesman early today said the Lunghai railroad would be cut within a few hours. Shock troops advancing northward, he said, had crossed the Honan province border into Kiangsu province and were about thirteen miles south of Tangshan, a town on the railroad fifty-one miles west of Suchow.

North of the Lunghai, Japanese reported, another column, striking south, was about thirty miles from the railroad at Yutai. Thus, apparently within hours, the Japanese had compressed the gap between their armies west of Suchow to less than forty-five miles.

Close In Along Railway.

In a line directly north and south of Suchow, the Japanese had closed their vise considerably along the Tientsin-Pukow railroad. War communiques said columns pressing toward each other were separated by less than 100 miles.

At Suhsien, 45 miles south of Suchow on the Tientsin-Pukow line, the Japanese made three attacks and, reports said, inflicted the heaviest damage done by air raids throughout the Central China front.

Chinese were counterattacking desperately at Mengcheng, 75 miles south of the Japanese vanguard at Tangcheng, in an attempt to break the Japanese lines. They admitted loss of Mengcheng.

Twenty thousand Chinese soldiers were killed in twenty-three days from April 14 to May 6 on the Shantung province front by the Japanese campaign, Japanese said.

The United States cruiser Marblehead was en route from Hongkong to Amoy to join the gunboat Asheville, which already was standing by.

[A Hankow dispatch said two American Presbyterian churches were damaged in Japanese raids on Suchow on Wednesday and Thursday, although large American flags were painted on the roofs. No foreigners were injured. Mission officials reported the incidents to the American embassy. Another dispatch from Kaifeng, Lunghai railway station, said the Anglo-American China Inland mission hospital was crowded with wounded after intensive Japanese air raids Thursday. The Kaifeng railroad station was destroyed.]

MORE THAN 33% OF IDLE DODGING MICHIGAN WPA

Lansing, Mich., May 13.—[Special.]—Gov. Frank Murphy expressed surprise today over disclosures by the Works Progress administration survey which revealed that more than one-third of all persons assigned to WPA jobs in Michigan never appear for work.

The governor rejected the inference that so large a number of those offered work refused it merely because of a dislike for the work offered.

While admittedly at a loss for the actual reason, he was inclined to blame the lack of a unified relief system which would permit tabulation on a centralized basis of both the direct and work relief cases.

Mrs. Joiner, mother of two children, weighed 300 pounds and was a member of a so-called beef trust chorus that played in taverns.

IT'S TULIP TIME IN HOLLAND, ON MICHIGAN SHORE

Town Transformed Into Dutch Scene.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Holland, Mich., May 13.—[Special.]—Tulip week will open here tomorrow. This one sentence tells the story to the thousands of Chicagoans who annually motor the 150 miles here for the street pageantry, the miles of flowers, and the folk costumes, music, and dancing. Other readers will need explanation on what it is all about.

Tulip week in Holland isn't any ordinary carnival or chamber of commerce whoopee. It's an annual commemoration by a people of those things that are picturesque, colorful, and lovely that have been brought here from their native land.

Mayor Becomes Burgomeester.

Mayor Henry Geerlings, burgmeester for the next nine days, won't feel nor look silly in his cape of laced cuffs and collars, his knee breeches, stockings and buckled slippers, and his high crowned and broad rimmed hat. He recalls that his father wore a costume somewhat like this on Sundays when the elder Geerlings operated a flour mill here propelled by a windmill.

The school children and merchants are by heredity at home in wooden shoes, the men and boys in bloomer breeches and short coats, and the women and girls in tight laced bodices and full skirts. These are costumes such as those worn on holidays by their grandparents. Their dances and their songs have been enjoyed by their people for many generations.

More than 90 per cent of the 15,000 all year residents of Holland and vicinity are of Dutch descent. According to the chamber of commerce, about 2,000 were born in The Netherlands, others trace their ancestry to the followers of Dr. A. C. Vanraalte, a minister, who brought the first 85 here in 1847. His grandchildren live here.

Blonde Hair and Blue Eyes.

On the streets are round faces, blonde hair, and pale blue eyes. From the window of the telegraph office may be seen the signs of the Depree Hardware store, Du Saar Photos, De Fouw Electric Equipment, and A. Steketee and Sons Dry Goods. There's a weekly newspaper in Dutch. At the Dutch Reformed church, some of the sermons are in the language of The Netherlands.

So these nine days' festivities, ending a week from Sunday, May 22, are not being staged just as a stunt to attract tourists. This preservation of Dutch customs and costumes does, however, attract visitors, including throngs of motorists from Chicago.

There are 3 million tulips, filling parks and school yards and lining eight miles of city streets with a variety of colors. The bulbs are raised commercially on the flat black land behind the coastal sand dunes, a geography peculiarly like that of Netherlands. Farming and the manufacture of stoves, furniture, shoes, and beet sugar support this community, although a substantial contribution also comes from the 20,000 summer residents herabout, many of them Chicagoans.

Street Scrubbing Ceremony.

In addition to these tulips, visitors who can get here in time will want to see the street scrubbing, volks parade, and klompen dance starting at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. On Sunday at 4 o'clock, there will be zingen van psalmen, vespers with psalm singing in the Hope chapel. Special events are scheduled for each of the nine days, not circus or vaudeville stuff, but performances with authentic backgrounds.

In the armory here, visitors will see a miniature reproduction of sections of the Netherlands, the canals, dikes, and windmills, the church where the pilgrims worshipped before they came to America, the Rembrandt home, farm houses with a section for the stables, and a fishing colony on the Zuider Zee. Next door is a museum—a dog propelled churn, the blue and white Delft china, and Dutch clocks, kettles, cradles, and spinning wheels.

Unless your taste is for cocktail lounges, raffles, beauty queens, and hokum, you'll like Holland in tulip time.

Driver Hits Another Auto; Booked on Four Charges

The Evanston policeman who saw Jacob B. Shaw's erratic driving in Dempster street near Wesley avenue yesterday arrested him and booked him on the following charges: Leaving the scene of an accident, driving while under the influence of liquor, driving without a state license, and driving without a city inspection sticker. Shaw, who lives at 2717 Church street in the suburb, had struck a car at 1019 Dempster street. He was released on bond pending arraignment in Evanston Municipal court next Wednesday.

NEW TRAFIC CONTROL ZONE TO BE OPENED IN MICHIGAN TODAY

Holland, Mich., May 13.—[Special.]—A zone of strict trafic discipline will become operative tomorrow morning on 14 miles of the four lane pavement north of the Indiana-Michigan line. Chicagoans motoring to this popular western Michigan tour area this week-end will have their first experience in driving a 40 foot road with safety rules posted and enforced.

Beside the Michigan state line sign north bound drivers will see another sign reading: "Trafic control zone 14 miles long." A few yards farther is a notice: "Unlawful to cross center line." Farther on is one reading: "Stay in outside lane except when passing."

U. S. TAX AGENTS RAID HUGE STILL IN A WAREHOUSE

Agents of the federal alcohol tax unit raided the warehouse of the Hintz Storage and Moving company at 809 East 40th street yesterday and seized a huge still, estimated to have turned out enough alcohol to defraud the government of $6,000 in taxes daily. Seven men were arrested.

Besides the still, which extended from the fourth to the sixth floor, the raiders took possession of 50,000 gallons of mash, 3,000 pounds of sugar, two automobiles, and 1,150 five gallon cans. E. C. Yellowley, chief of the agents, said the plant had been operating about three months.

Those arrested are Dominic Guastella, 713 South Claremont avenue; Sterling Jackson, colored, 3835 South State street; William and Harry Brown, brothers, 935 North Sacramento avenue; Arnold Galloni, 4837 Cortland street; Albert Hirwitz, 3020 South Homan avenue, and Lee Dortch, colored, 4317 Champlain avenue.

BETTY BUNDESEN IN AUTO CRASH; WOMAN INJURED

A woman was seriously injured last night in a crash of two automobiles, one of which was driven by Miss Betty Bundesen, 18 years old, 7410 Oglesby avenue, daughter of Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the Chicago board of health, and one of Miss Merriel Abbott's talented ballet dancers who recently returned from a tour of Europe.

The injured woman is Mrs. Helen McGovern, 41 years old, 8825 Calumet avenue. She was riding in a car driven by her son, Terrence, 16, when their car collided with that of Miss Bundesen at Cornell avenue and 78th street.

Miss Bundesen and the boy were shaken up, and Miss Bundesen's car badly damaged. Mrs. McGovern suffered a possible skull fracture, and was taken to the Jackson Park hospital where, it was understood, she was later visited by Dr. Bundesen.

BREAKS TRAFIC LAW AND FLEES; GETS JAIL TERM

Harry Pocheki, 844 North Fairfield avenue, was sentenced to ten days in the county jail and suspended from driving for six months by Judge Stephen Adamowski in the Safety court yesterday for reckless driving. Pocheki was arrested on May 4 after he ran through a stop light at Homan avenue and Harrison street. Police said they arrested him after he drove away at 80 miles an hour.

Miss Betty Rich, 985 Sheridan road, Winnetka, daughter of the late Ruben J. Rich, wealthy lumberman, was freed on a charge of resisting arrest in the Evanston Municipal court after she apologized for calling Policeman Robert McCaull an "old crab." McCaull said Miss Rich protested when he ordered her to move her car from a restricted parking zone.

WOMAN KILLED, HUSBAND INJURED BY CAR IN LYONS

2 Men Fatally Hurt by Hit-Run Cars.

Mrs. Mary Rezler, 60 years old, 4147 Maple avenue, Lyons, was killed and her husband, Anthony, 62, was seriously injured last night when they were struck by an automobile in U. S. Highway 66, near Elm avenue in Lyons. Mrs. Anna Osman, 46, of 7852 43d avenue, Lyons, the driver, said the couple appeared in front of her car so suddenly she had no time to stop.

John Jakubowski, 21 years old, 4801 South Hoyne avenue, a motorcycle delivery boy, was killed last night when he was thrown from his motorcycle in turning a corner at Honore and 45th streets. His skull was fractured.

Hit-Run Drivers Kill Two.

George Kenning, 24 years old, 2380 Elston avenue, was fatally injured last night by a hit and run car in Route 21, three miles south of Wheeling. He was walking with his brother, who was not struck. Mr. and Mrs. Norvin A. Vaughan of the Edgewater Beach apartments, 5555 Sheridan road, who saw the accident, took Kenning to the Wheeling hospital, from which he was later removed to the county hospital where he was pronounced dead. Mr. Vaughan, a sales official, said that two men in the hit and run car alighted, then jumped back into their car and sped away.

James Carey, 55 years old, 735 South Taylor avenue, Oak Park, a grocer, was fatally injured last night when he was struck by a hit and run automobile in Jackson boulevard, in Columbus park. He died in the Frances E. Willard hospital.

Mrs. Amelia Maham, 29 years old, of Rockford, Ill., died last night in the Northwestern hospital, Des Plaines, of injuries suffered last Sunday in an automobile collision at River and Golf roads, near Des Plaines. Five other persons were injured.

Five Hurt in Bus Crash.

Five men were cut and bruised yesterday when a Chicago Surface lines feeder bus crashed against the rear of an interstate truck and trailer which was halted in front of the W. F. Hall Printing company, 4600 Diversey avenue.

The injured, all passengers on the bus, are Fred Greuling, 3441 North Keating avenue; Frank Pierini, 2815 North Moody avenue, and Arthur Erickson, 5701 Waveland avenue, who were taken to the Danish-American hospital, and Edward Kania, 5319 Wrightwood avenue, and Margo Santini, 2825 North Moody avenue, who were given first aid.

Stanley Lind, 23 years old, of 1221 School street, died at the Illinois Masonic hospital yesterday of injuries incurred Thursday when the motorcycle he was riding collided with a truck driven by Ernest Eccarius of 2045 Burling street in Sheffield avenue near Belmont avenue.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 306 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these 237 were killed in Chicago, where 6,230 were injured in the same period.

Eunice Tietjens Writes Human Autobiography

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"The World at My Shoulder," by Eunice Tietjens. [Macmillan, $3.] Published Tuesday.

An autobiography unusually human and vivid and honest is this one by Eunice Tietjens, for it achieves those qualities without ever once being too intimate either with her own or others' secrets. And that, your memory will tell you, is rare.

Eunice Tietjens says: "Almost nothing that I remember vividly happened because of me; it is only that I was there to see it. The rebirth of poetry in the United States in the last twenty years owes little enough to me. China sat reflecting in her squalor, blowing her small whirlwinds of revolution in the dust of ages long before I came there. The mountains owe me nothing. I did not cause the war. The incredible moons of North Africa and the silver blossoming of the stars of the South seas bear no record of me." But because she sees these things as she does, the reader has a new, fresh, and vivid picture of the early days of Poetry magazine and the Little Review in Chicago; Japan and China are living, not merely verbally photographed; North Africa and a little island in the South seas are places where people live, not merely visit; the Broadway production of a play is an experience, not just a fact. In these pages day-by-day life anywhere on the globe is exactly what Mark Twain is reported to have called Boston—"a state of mind."

The more impersonal Eunice Tietjens' relationships the more vivid her writing. About the persons whose names you and I know well as immortals, even if we do not know them as fellow mortals, she declares: "All the characters in this book are real; none are fictitious. All persons are referred to by their proper names, and every word said about them is intentional." Obviously what she says is intentionally friendly and, thus, restrained. About places and mass experiences she reaches sometimes a lyric vividness.

But, first of all, "The World at My Shoulder" has that most pleasant of all qualities in an autobiography, it is unfailingly interesting.

Sprightly Recollections of Days of Chautauqua.

"Morally We Roll Along," by Gay MacLaren. [Little-Brown, $2.] Published Monday.

Another Chicago woman [for Eunice Tietjens is in fact a Chicagoan, although she has elected a cosmopolitan life] has written interestingly, not about herself, but about something she "was there to see." "Morally We Roll Along" is a reminiscential book about what Ellery Sedgwick says "for generations was the most American thing alive, Chautauqua."

Gay MacLaren opens her book with the tale of her first visit as a little girl to the Chautauqua at Lake Madison, S. D., where she heard Opal May, "the world's greatest child elocutionist," and forthwith determined to be an Opal May herself. She tells amusingly how she achieved her ambition, charged the battlements of Mark Twain's well butlered front door, got permission from him to do a reading of "Pudd'n'head Wilson," and was started on her Chautauqua career "because Mark Twain had recommended me."

The rest of the book is a pleasantly chatty memoir of the great days of Chautauqua, when William Jennings Bryan was its particular bright and shining star, when Edgar Bergen inconspicuously held Charley McCarthy on one knee and a young lady [Charley's sister under the wood] on the other, when Swiss bellringers rivaled lady elocutionists, when Ralph Parlette lectured with impassioned words about "The University of Hard Knocks," when "culture" was packed into pellets and the entertainers into strait-jackets of schedules which often left them no time to sleep or eat and never time to have any home life.

The author tells many facts about Chautauqua probably not hitherto gathered together under one tent and enlivens them with her own rather nostalgic memories, set down with sprightliness.

Looking Over Latest Books

A New View of Louis and Marie Antoinette.

"Louis XVI. and Marie Antoinette During the Revolution," by Nesta H. Webster. [Putnams, $5.]

This excellent and thorough work was written with the intention of refuting calumnies heaped upon the French king and queen whose reign ended tragically upon the scaffold. Most historians now agree that Louis and Marie Antoinette were too harshly dealt with by earlier chroniclers, that the king couldn't have been the weakling nor the queen the cruel, selfish courtesan that history indicates. However, it is difficult to believe Louis was so noble as he is shown here or that Marie Antoinette was so saintly.

The book, nevertheless, is valuable, not only for its beautiful writing, its historical thoroughness, and its anecdote, but also for the note of tolerance it strikes. C. L.

"The Market Place" Offers Peek Into World Banking.

"The Market Place," by Alexander Dana Noyes. [Little, Brown, $3.50.]

Montagu Norman, the Bank of England dignitary, was Monty to Benjamin Strong at the dinner table. And even Hjalmar Schacht was Greeley, that being the middle name of the German banker. Mr. Noyes knew this because he was present at the dinners. Maybe if Strong hadn't been on such intimate terms with these foreign celebrities, the country would have been better off. For, it was Strong, more than any other individual, who was responsible for the reserve rate cut in 1927, which started us off in the disastrous stock boom. Some have said that England's need prompted the rate cut. And the warm personal relations between the New York and Berlin financiers made it easier to sell German bonds here, which now are generally in default. These are some speculations suggested by facts narrated by Mr. Noyes in "The Market Place." Mr. Noyes, who is our foremost financial historian on the period since the civil war, is a newspaper man. He happened to be the only reporter in the office of the New York newspaper by which he was employed on the day in 1884 when the firm of Grant & Ward failed. That launched him as a writer on finance, which he has been ever since. Since 1918, he has been the financial editor of the New York Times, and before that was associated with three other papers. "The Market Place" is marked by the high scholarship of his two earlier books, and is, in addition, rich in personal reminiscence. His book will appeal to those interested in newspaper lore as much as to those who want to know only about financial history.—R. D. C.

Behind the Scenes in Overseas Broadcasts.

"Hello, America," by Cesar Saerchinger. [Houghton-Mifflin, $3.50.]

Cesar Saerchinger, for seven years director of the Columbia Broadcasting company's European programs, has written an informative book of what goes on before and during the time a foreign celebrity is at the microphone for an across the ocean broadcast. Mr. Saerchinger relates the story behind the renunciation speech of Edward VIII., now the duke of Windsor, and has an interesting chapter on Bernard Shaw. To give all the names of those he has conducted to the microphone would be to present a choice cross-section of the who's who of the world.

Here's a Group About the Navy and Life at Sea

BY AL CHASE.

"The Navy, a History; the Story of a Service in Action," by Fletcher Pratt. [Doubleday-Doran, $4.]

"Room to Swing a Cat, Being Some Tales of the Old Navy," by Lieut. Frederick J. Bell, U. S. N. [Longmans-Green, $3.]

"Sons of the Hurricane," by John J. Floherty. [Lippincott, $2.]

"Naval Odyssey," by Thomas Woodrooffe. [Sheridan House, $2.50.]

Fletcher Pratt's "The Navy, a History," is a series of interlocking biographies of men who made the American navy famous and the wars in which it played a part. Throughout the book there runs a constant account of the daily life of the Yankee gobs. Most of the material on the building of the early navy is taken from documents in the navy department which are only now being published by the government for the first time. Mr. Pratt's book is well illustrated and has a comprehensive list of American naval ships from 1777 to modern times.

"Room to Swing a Cat" is said to be the first book of its kind to be published in this country. Like Masefield's accounts of the British navy, Lieut. Frederick J. Bell colorfully portrays the life in our early navy, picturing the everyday routine in the wooden ships of war. In addition to describing sea battles of the war of 1812 and with the Barbary corsairs, the book has a chapter on superstitions and customs of the sea, a collection of salt water songs, and other picturesque glimpses of nautical life in the old navy.

The book gets its odd title from the "cat," a nine tailed lead tipped instrument used freely on Yankee sailors' backs. Its use is explained in a chapter describing the punishments common on old-time frigates. The book is exceptionally well illustrated with reproductions of famous battle paintings, and has paper maps at the end. It is one of the most entertaining naval books in years.

John J. Floherty and his camera have turned out another striking book on the United States coast guard. "Sons of the Hurricane" is an anthology of heroic deeds by a branch of the naval service that gets little publicity. Mr. Floherty's accounts are based on official records, as well as oral accounts of each rescue by the men who took part.

Thomas Woodrooffe, whose "Yangtze Skipper" was one of the delightful books of last year, has written another even more entertaining volume, "Naval Odyssey." Again Tobey, whom we understand is the author, takes the reader on a long Mediterranean cruise on a British warship. This quietly droll autobiography gives intimate glimpses behind the scenes on an English cruiser.

The American Village of a Vanished Era Is Humorously Pictured

The American village, in the vanished days of simple pleasures when the general store and the barber shop were the heart of community life, is the subject of Edwin Valentine Mitchell's humorous, nostalgic "American Village" [Stackpole, $3].

Interesting relics of that vanished 19th century town, skyscraperless New York, are pictured in "New York—Oddly Enough," by Charles G. Shaw [Farrar & Rinehart, $2.50], a great contrast to the New York of today described in "Dining, Wining, and Dancing in New York," by Scudder Middleton [Dodge, $1.75].

SUIT TO RECOVER ON UNPAID SCHOOL WARANTS UPHELD

Seek Rebate from Holders Paid in Full.

Circuit Judge Michael Feinberg yesterday held valid a suit brought by holders of $10,700,000 in 1929 unpaid school tax warants to secure their pro-rata share of the tax moneys used to redeem the issue of warants. The money was paid to other holders of 1929 school warants which had lower serial numbers than those held by the persons who brought the suit.

The court upheld the theory that tax collections should have been applied pro-rata among all warant holders, instead of paying off warants in full in numerical order of issuance until the tax funds were exhausted. That was the method used by the school board and condemned by Judge Feinberg yesterday.

Banks to Be Big Losers.

If the suit is prosecuted successfully in the higher courts the principal losers will be banks in Chicago and other cities which held 1929 warants redeemed in full, with interest, under the numerical retirement plan.

In overruling a defense motion to dismiss the bill filed by the Southeast National bank and Charles B. Scoville, Judge Feinberg repeatedly stressed the statement that if recovery is made from the warant holders who were paid in full, Chicago taxpayers will be spared the expense of a bond issue proposed to pay judgments obtained by the unpaid warant holders.

He held that the suit was of a representative nature, which means that all holders of unpaid warants will be compelled to join in it. Judge Feinberg indicated he would enjoin other warant holders from proceeding with other suits on file, and perhaps from collecting judgments already rendered for a total of $5,825,000 in state and federal courts, but said that he would not issue the injunction without further arguments. Meanwhile he asked that all of the other actions against the school board be kept in status quo.

Likens Taxes to Trust Fund.

Judge Feinberg justified the representative suit on the ground that the taxes collected for 1929 by the school board were a trust fund, in which every holder of the board's tax warants had an equal interest, on a prorata basis, and no warant holder had a greater interest than any other. The courts have already upheld this view, he pointed out.

"No liability exists against the board of education for nonpayment when there is a deficiency in the collection of taxes," said Judge Feinberg. "The holder knows that when he buys. It is that type of security which he buys and he has no right to assume that the warant will in all events be paid.

Money Wrongfully Paid.

"The fund is distributed and we have the case presented of a number of beneficiaries, some of whom have obtained payments, as charged here, illegally — receiving money that equitably belongs to other beneficiaries."

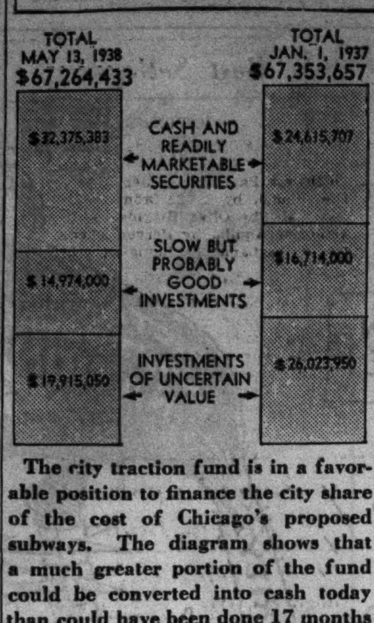
Judge Feinberg then made it clear that he was only upholding the right of the unpaid warant holders to sue the warant holders who were paid, not the liability of the latter to damages. In arguing the motion to strike the counts of the bill, which he denied yesterday, the defendants were under the legal necessity of admitting, temporarily, such facts as were pleaded by the defendants, but will have an opportunity in the trial of the suit to controvert those facts.

"The question whether the recipients of the fund are liable to the plaintifs should not now be settled," said the judge. "There may be defenses."

One of the defense arguments was that the warant holders who were paid were in the position known legally as strangers to the trust, in which case they would not be liable to return part of what they received unless they had knowledge that the payment to them was a breach of the trust. Judge Feinberg held that the warant holders were not legal strangers, but beneficiaries of the trust.

Defense attorneys were given until June 13 to answer the bill of complaint, the next step in bringing the issue to trial.

Money for Subways



The city traction fund is in a favorable position to finance the city share of the cost of Chicago's proposed subways. The diagram shows that a much greater portion of the fund could be converted into cash today than could have been done 17 months ago. Better tax collections permitting retirement of tax warants account for the improvement in the fund.

MOTHER SLAYER TAKEN TO PRISON TO START TERM

CRIMINAL COURT.

Milan Borzini, contributing to delinqency of a minor, sentenced to two years in the Bridewell; George Minster, larceny, sentenced to one year in the county jail by Judge Cornelius J. Harrington.

Theodore Danielsen Jr., 16 years old, entered Joliet prison yesterday afternoon to begin serving the term of fourteen years imposed on him for stabbing his mother to death.

He and the sixteen other prisoners who arrived with him were placed in the diagnostic depot. There they will be examined by physicians and psychiatrists. It was indicated that young Danielsen probably would be sent in a few weeks to Pontiac reformatory, where most youthful offenders are placed.

As Danielsen was being taken out of the Cook county jail he paused to inspect a plaque hearing a tribute to mothers. It seemed to make no impression on him. He listened quietly while the jail warden, Frank Sain, advised him to study hard and obey prison rules.

RAID 10 TAVERNS IN FOREST PARK; SEIZE MACHINES

Ten squads from the state's attorney's office yesterday made a series of raids in Forest Park and arrested ten owners of taverns where pinball games were being operated and two said to be the owner and repairman of the machines. The raids were made even as citizens of the village were preparing to hold a massmeeting tomorrow in the Methodist church to protest gambling.

In spite of the raids, led by Acting Chief Investigator Thomas Kelly of the state's attorney's office, the Rev. Armand Guerrero, pastor of the Forest Park Community Methodist church, said the massmeeting would go on as scheduled.

The ten tavern owners were booked before Justice of the Peace Henry Sandusky of Cicero on charges of possessing gambling devices. They were released on cash bond of $50 each. The other two were taken to the prosecutor's office in the Criminal courts building for questioning.

FIND CITY READY TO PAY SHARE OF SUBWAY COSTS

Traction Fund Has Millions for Project.

BY WILLIAM BROMAGE.

Chicago is definitly in a position to finance its share of the cost of three downtown subways which Mayor Kelly and the city council propose shall be under construction by late summer or fall, analysis of the city traction fund disclosed yesterday. Approximately half of the 67 million dollar fund could be converted into cash.

A start on the project depends on a federal works relief contribution of 45 per cent of the estimated cost of 28 to 31 million dollars. The city would have to supply the remaining $15,400,000 to $17,050,000.

Can Start Soon After Grant.

The examining division of the Public Works administration has listed Chicago subways as an approved project and construction work can be started a few weeks after a PWA allotment has been granted, according to city engineers. Two of the subways would be street car tunnels in Washington and Jackson streets. The third would be a State street subway for elevated trains.

Mayor Kelly said yesterday that ordinances providing for the construction of the subways will be ready for the council meeting next Wednesday. They are being prepared by William H. Sexton, special traction counsel.

Mayor Kelly's plan, like all other subway proposals of the last fifteen or twenty years, contemplates that the city's share of subway costs shall be borne by the traction fund.

Created by 1907 Ordinances.

This fund was created under the 1907 street car ordinances under which compensation paid by the surface lines was put in a special fund to be used only for traction purposes. The street car companies paid a total of $47,168,192 into the fund. The balance represents earnings on the assets.

A few years ago, the fund was considered almost hopelessly invested in frozen tax anticipation warants. However, improved tax collections and the slow but steady reduction in delinquent taxes has changed the status of the fund until now it appears that at least two-thirds of it can be expected to pay out in the next few years and about half could be liquidated immediately if necessary.

$615,383 in Cash Available.

A statement issued yesterday by City Controler R. B. Upham showed that the fund now totals $67,264,433 of which $615,383 is in cash and the rest invested chiefly in tax warants of the city and school board.

At least 32 million dollars of these tax warants, city officials said, are of recent issue of the grade which banks are willing to buy. By keeping these warants in the traction fund the city pays a much smaller rate of interest than the 2 to 2½ per cent charged by the banks.

The poorest grade investments in the fund are tax anticipation warants for the years from 1928 to 1933. All of the 1928 to 1932 warants were in the fund when the Kelly administration took office in 1933.

Retire 6 Millions.

The fund held more than 26 million dollars of the 1928-'33 warants at the beginning of 1937, but approximately 6 million dollars worth has been retired in the last seventeen months. How much of the 20 million dollars remaining will ultimately pay out depends entirely on collections of taxes for those years.

RETIRED STEEL OFFICIAL DIES IN 12 STORY PLUNGE

Arthur Bronson of 5555 Sheridan road, who until May 1 was assistant sales manager at Milwaukee for the Carnegie Illinois Steel company, plunged to his death yesterday from the twelfth floor of the Milwaukee Athletic club. He was 70 years old.

Bronson had been in ill health for the last nine months. He registered at the club Wednesday, after a trip to Milwaukee to visit old friends. He went for a walk early yesterday, returned to his room, and leaped out, according to coroner's officials. A farewell note to his wife, the only immediate survivor, was found.

He had been with subsidiaries of the United States Steel company since 1905, and was with the American Sheet and Tin Plate company in 1936 when it merged with Carnegie Illinois Steel company. On May 1 he was retired on pension, according to the company's offices.

LEWIS STUBS HIS TOE ON BIBLICAL ALLUSION TO LAZARUS' CRUMBS

Atlantic City, N. J., May 13.—(AP)—Officials of the Amalgamated Clothing workers agreed today that John L. Lewis, the C. I. O. chief, made a blunder yesterday when he said the unemployed would not long be content to accept the crumbs from Lazarus' table.

What he meant to say was "Dives' table," explained Charles W. Ervin, public relations director of the union, who observed Lazarus begged crumbs from the wealthy Dives in the biblical story.

"That just evens the score," Ervin added, "because William Green [A. F. L. president] tried to make a simile from Milton at Cincinnati last year and got the devil mixed up with St. Michael."

SCHUSCHNIGG PUT IN PRISON CAMP BY GERMAN NAZIS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 13.—Kurt Schuschnigg, former Austrian chancellor, who had been reported held under protective arrest in his Vienna home after the Nazi coup which annexed Austria to Germany, is now a prisoner in Dachau concentration camp near Munich.

A member of the Rothschild banking family, whose Austrian properties were confiscated, is also a prisoner at the Dachau camp.

[The estates of both Baron Alfons and Baron Eugene Rothschild were taken over recently on orders from Berlin.]

It is reported that young toughs are agitating for the German cause on motorbikes in the Audeten German [Nazi] district of Czechoslovakia in preparation for the May 30 elections.

JUDICIAL INTEGRITY.

"It is in the judicial process," said Chief Justice Hughes in his talk to the body of the American Law institute at its annual meeting, "that we find the most developed and systematic effort of a democratic community to maintain the interests of justice by opposing reason to passion, accepted principles to unbridled discretion and the requirements of fair play to the favoritism or tyranny of power."

No other discipline of life has so consistently produced integrity and inflexibility as has that of the juristic career. It has been true from the origins of law as we know it that an engrossment in these principles of life has given inspiration and steadfastness to the greatest defenders of just arrangements of society and of the privileges and rights of otherwise negligible human beings.

An understanding of this is not difficult. The satisfaction of the great jurist is found in the triumph of law and not in the success of ambitious men. Even in brutal times when all human nature seemed tainted the great jurists have emerged to hold out encouragement.

To find some of them we may go back to the Roman occupation of England when three of the great jurists of Roman law for all time were in York in the train of Septimius Severus. They were Papinian, Paulus, and Ulpian, three of the five who by the later law of citations were to be the all time supreme court of the Roman empire, their opinions to prevail in any confusion of legal interpretation. Papinian was, in a way, the chief justice of this enduring court of highest decision and it is with him that this recollection of inflexible judicial magistrates deals. When the brothers, Caracalla and Geta, succeeded Severus, their father, and when Caracalla had murdered Geta he ordered Papinian to prepare a judicial justification of the crime, giving reasons of state. The jurist, knowing his peril, refused and was immediately slain.

The only reason for selecting this illustration of juristic inflexibility among so many is that its background of administrative anarchy is so striking. Further it can be considered that the Roman jurists preserved the law for Europe through a period of disintegrating society, barbarian invasion, and continuance of the anarchy in which Papinian lost his life. In a more modern instance we have Coke, not exemplary in his private life, rising to the judicial heights in which he tells James I., who cried upon him as a traitor, that the king is under and not above the law.

It should be noted even in Germany of today, Pastor Niemoeller is in custody, in jail or a concentration camp, not by order of the court in which he was tried but by a Nazi police order which overrides the court, and furthermore, that the German courts released most of the communist political prisoners accused of burning the parliament building, although their heads were demanded. German justice may not be unimpaired but still it is proved how hard it is to drive an honest judge from the foundation of principles in which he has been trained, for which his mind has been disciplined, and to which he has devoted a career.

A LESSON FROM BRITAIN.

Another stinging lesson in the folly of turning great public tasks over to political government while private enterprise is prepared to accomplish them has been given in Great Britain. It is a lesson with a moral for the American people, now suffering from a government determined to take control of American enterprise at all costs. In the delusion that we are preparing to be efficient in case of war we now have a law which puts all American enterprise into the hands of the federal government, and the British experience with its aviation program is a clear warning of what will happen.

The British plane production program has been falling down. The fact has been withheld from the public, but insistent rumors have become serious. The dispatch of a commission to the United States to buy planes gave the situation away. It has now transpired that the minister for coördination of defense, Sir Thomas Inskip, has asked Viscount Nuffield, head of the great Morris motor works, to help. This is just two years later than the government could have had his help. In 1936 Nuffield tendered one of his factories to the secretary for air. The factory, fully equipped to turn out Bristol or American type motors, was rejected. Viscount Nuffield said it was staggering that the air ministry should prefer to build a huge new plant when it could have his free of cost. Now, after two years' delay, the government has had to ask for Viscount Nuffield's aid.

It always works that way. The government-minded official wants to spend and to operate. He will not accept independent competence until his failures force him.

The American people are afflicted with a government made up of inexperienced and mediocre men swollen with brief authority. They want to run or regulate all the affairs of the American people. They will be as successful as the British secretary who turned down Viscount Nuffield's offer, and after they have manhandled enterprise until it is unrecognizable they will have to call on private enterprise to set it up again.

The American people ought not to submit themselves to that destructive and unnecessary experience. Warnings are plentiful and plain. They are in the past and in the present.

THE AMBASSADOR'S PANTS.

Ambassador Kennedy kept himself out of knee breeches and appeared at the court of St. James's in the long pants of his ordinary evening wear. He asserted his independence of the court chamberlain but as yet he has been unable to rescue the other members of the embassy who must put in an appearance, and who on the occasion of the recent holding of court were obliged to show up in the prescribed broadcloth shorts—and like it.

Mr. Kennedy is a man who knows his own mind. In him are joined streams of Ireland and New England, and the New England he represents is rather that of Sam Adams than of the newer colonial stock which thinks that Sam may have been wrong. He rid himself of the snobbish job of selecting American women for presentation and he has refused to get into the dress of a subject when he makes his necessary appearances before the royal family. Being a man of spirit, it is to be expected of him that he will see that his secretaries and attachés are not made to humiliate themselves in a strange garb.

Court dress is demanded by the master of ceremonies for the British court as a royal uniform and it is disgraceful that American officials should be obliged to wear it. In their own customs and manners they would do so only at some frivolous masquerade, and they naturally, if they are proper men, are humiliated by having to make clowns of themselves to satisfy the dictum of a foolish governmental institution, persisting into modern times with its antiquated and unworthy standards of human values and dignities.

English newspapers made fun of Mr. Kennedy because in appearance he couldn't be distinguished from the waiters, and they attributed the unwillingness of Americans to have their officials demean themselves to a species of sans culottism. The English humorists mistake their own feelings. They know it is much funnier to see an American togged out in the apparel of servitude to a monarchical idea than it is to see him in the clothes which he would wear by habit and in accordance with his own conventions.

The American embassy in London has long been recognized as the principal agent of British government in its control of American foreign policy. An ambassador who serves that purpose may not be highly respected in the recesses of British statesmanship but he will be persuaded that he is. He will be beguiled and allowed to think that he is highly honored. But the government which uses him will be the first to recognize that he is merely a servant. Our war ambassador to Great Britain served the purposes of the government to which he was accredited so well that he earned a tablet in Westminster. That was not his badge of honor.

WITCHCRAFT AND SENATOR MINTON.

Senator Minton of Indiana, nature's gift to governmental inquisition when the loss of Hugo Black of Alabama seemed irreparable, will be spiritually encouraged to discover that certain residents of his home state also believe in demonology and have driven a witch from their town. She was accused of hexing them.

Mr. Minton is the new hex specialist in Washington. He smells out witchcraft in printer's ink. He is a true medievalist, a terror to persons suspected of harboring doubts regarding the administration of public affairs. He might have done better under Henry VIII. when it was treason to think that the king was ill, that being the covert wish that he should be so taken. But in degenerate times Mr. Minton does the best he can.

Recently he had Dr. Glenn Frank, head of the Republican program committee, and M. V. Reynolds, publisher of Rural Progress, on trial in Washington because the one edits and the other contributes to a magazine which has hexed the administration with criticism. The ground for these judicial proceedings will probably be found in the laws against witchcraft. Elsewhere they will be sought in vain.

OUR BOOMING TRADE IN CORN.

Recent sales of corn indicate that more than a hundred million bushels of the 1937 crop will be sold abroad. Since last November more than 70 million bushels have been exported and since April 1 more than 24 million. Only eight times before in our history have corn exports been so large.

The recovery of the foreign market for corn is good news, the more welcome because of the scarcity of such items in recent months. The farmers are the first to benefit but by no means the only ones. Corn moves from the farm to the elevators in trucks and railroad cars; the truckers, the railroad men, and the elevator men all are helped by the added business. So are the sailors and the owners of the ships which carry the corn from Chicago and other terminals to eastern ports. So are a host of clerks, dock workers, and others who play a large or small part in this commerce.

The AAA has proceeded on the theory that the export market is gone forever; acreage restrictions are in line with that notion. The movement of corn to foreign consumers proves the theory to be false. The market is there and in supplying it not only our farmers but thousands of other citizens who supply the services needed to move our crops from our farms to Liverpool are benefited. If the restrictions on corn planting imposed this year succeed in reducing our corn production, the farmers and all the others who play a part in the game will suffer needlessly.

SELL THE BAD BOOKS.

[Illinois State Journal.]

Four Princeton undergraduates have sent Adolf Hitler a cablegram asking him to donate to the college the "non-Aryan" books which it is said the Reichsfuehrer plans to "purge" from the Austrian national library in Vienna.

The Princeton men know better than to think Hitler will accede to their suggestion. He'll give nothing away unless it's Nazi propaganda. There's a possibility, however, that the dictator may be willing to sell the banned books. The communists sold czarist treasures; why shouldn't the Nazis sell books which they have banned?

The only drawback is that Hitler, who is desperate for money, may take to banning harmless and valueless works. A good deal of censorship nowadays is a put up job, paid for in advance to advertise a new book. If Hitler enters the racket it's going to make the authorities of Boston, Mass., mighty angry. Who'll want to read a book banned in Boston when Germany is exporting volumes marked "Verboten"?

When dandelions starred the roadside grass in the spring, pack peddlers and tin peddlers came to our farmhouse door offering their wares; one memorable day a strolling minstrel stopped. It was housecleaning time and the old Estey organ was out on the porch where the red rambler rose climbed up to the roof. The minstrel spread his sheet of music on the rack, struck the keys, and, pushing in or pulling out the organ stops—vox humana, celeste, cor anglais, tremolo, echo horn—played and sang his own composition: "Drifting, drifting, slowly drifting down an endless tide of years; drifting, drifting, slowly drifting, some in smiles and some in tears." Mother liked the little air, so father was called from the barn—they were Will and Nettie when she sang in the choir—and the minstrel had the joy of selling his verse. . . . Now when spring comes I like to think of country roads, the peddler with his pack, and—perhaps—a strolling minstrel selling his ware to a sweet-voiced woman in a farmhouse with roses by the porch. ALL THAT LAUGHTER and hand-clapping coming from Normandy house the other night was a result of the professional quiz game going on between members of the American Institute of Architects and of the American Institute of Decorators. In line with the current q. and a. fad, the questions, made up by Walter Frazier and Howard Rafferty, architects; Cornelia Conger and Harold Darling of the decorators, with Marc Nielsen as the professor, asked the definition of such words as gueridon, sumpt, and quoin. William R. Moore, founder president of the American Institute of Decorators, caused the loudest laugh when he innocently inquired of Architect John Merrill, "What is an architect?"

FIRST AID RULES FOR MINOR WOUNDS.

EVERY one about the home and the farm should be adept in first aid—how to care for slight cuts, sprains, and bruises; to remove splinters, and to give some practical attention to burns and scalds.

As most of us realize, the covering of the body [the skin] is as impenetrable as 10 inches of armor plate—as far as bacteria are concerned; that is, if it is without abrasions or tears, and if the individual is in good health. A wound caused by a nail, a pin, or any sharp article, however, is likely to open up a channel through which organisms — always present on the surface—may find lodgment in an environment suitable for growth. As a result, the region may become red, inflamed, and sore. This means infection and something must be done to combat the dissemination of the newly established colony of microbes.

There is a tendency on the part of some to treat scratches and minor gashes lightly. One may say, "O, it doesn't amount to anything." Yes, but it does. Fatalities may follow the prick of a pin or a tiny, imbedded sliver.

One precaution must be stressed: Never shut out air from a break in the skin. Collodion [which goes under various trade names] is not advised. To cover a wound with court plaster or adhesive—even after it is apparently clean—is about as dangerous a procedure as inoculating a quantity of virulent venom. The reason is that some organisms which are menacing to life will grow whenever air [oxygen] is excluded from their vicinity.

All one needs to do is to stop hemorrhage, scrub the part well with soap and water, wash with a little alcohol, and then use a pad of sterile gauze or bandage. This sort of dressing admits air freely. Such management—unless the tear is deep—will preclude the growth of the germs of tetanus [lockjaw].

After the wound has been scrubbed do not touch it with the fingers. If it has become contaminated with grease, dirt, cinders, etc.—gasoline, naphtha, or benzine makes an excellent cleansing agent. Thereafter, soap and water may be employed and the dressings adjusted. Tincture of iodine may be helpful, but neither this nor any other chemical antiseptic is as effective as soapsuds.

Let us assume that a laceration has been neglected and that the infection has begun to spread. What are the signs? Sometimes the first warning is a chill. In most cases, however, the pain and swelling usually will increase and the patient will be conscious of a throbbing in the vicinity of the injury. General symptoms may be slight fever or shivering sensations.

If a hand or foot is involved, pinkish appearing streaks may be observed running upward along the limb. Such a situation calls for a vigorous attack, including hot wet dressings constantly. This procedure may be carried out before the doctor comes. No attempt should be made to open the wound—least of all remove a scab. Every dirty lesion made by a soiled object is a potential case of tetanus and a preventive dose of serum is recommended, as a rule. This is particularly important should the accident occur about a barnyard or on the highway.

Splinters of wood, glass, or metal are sources of much annoyance. If the sliver has been broken off just beneath the skin so that it cannot be grasped with the fingernail or a pair of forceps, leave it alone. I have seen many an incident of this kind become a serious matter through digging with a pocket knife, a needle, or a pin. The operation should be left to a competent physician and a local anesthetic is nearly always necessary.

First aid for burns and scalds consists in coating the site with a 5 to 10 per cent freshly made solution of tannic acid or dressings soaked with cod liver oil. If the pain is not too great the area can be sponged with soap and water and the cod liver oil or tannic acid added immediately. This latter solution is sprayed on with an ordinary atomizer or cloths soaked in it may be applied, being renewed occasionally. The advantage of the cod liver oil treatment is that, if the wound is clean or reasonably so, the dressings may be allowed to remain in place for several days without change.

MENTAL CONFUSION.

1. What disease, other than arteriosclerosis, can cause confusion of mind with slightly defective memory?

2. Can incorrectly fitted lenses cause astigmatism?

3. If the cerebral arteries in a person 61 years old are not hardened, does it necessarily follow that the arteries in the rest of the body are in good condition?

REPLY.

1. Brain lesions, encephalitis, or some circulatory disturbance occasioned by trouble in the heart, the kidneys, or both.
2. No.
3. Not necessarily, but probably.

DOWER INTEREST.

Chicago, May 8.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I am a widow with two boys—one 13 and one 9. I own a farm in Indiana and I have been told that should I marry again my husband would automatically become part owner of my property. Is this true? Would living on the premises make any difference or living in Illinois and renting it? B. L.

While dower and curtesy have been abolished in Indiana so that one spouse has no ownership interest in the other's land, the provision that the wife cannot convey without her husband joining in the deed has a somewhat similar effect.

The provision is as follows: "Married Women. The joint deed of a husband and wife is necessary to pass the interest of the wife. Such deed does not bind wife to any of the covenants unless it be her separate property. Deed by husband alone passes title to his lands subject to the wife's inchoate rights therein. A wife cannot convey her separate lands unless the husband joins."

THE MENACE OF THE ZEPPELIN.

Chicago, May 9.—In the Voice of the People on May 9 Mr. Peter Linnert and Mr. Fred Storm found fault with the whole or part of my letter of May 4, headed "Our Helium."

Mr. Linnert says it would be impossible for Zeppelins to be used in a war because they would be shot down in no time. Is it not strange that the English people, who have had great experience of being bombed by Zeppelins, have no such belief? The Zeppelins that bombed London were hydrogen filled and still got away. A Zeppelin filled with helium gas could be punctured many times with bullets, but the holes could be covered over and the Zeppelin, with little injury, could continue its dropping of bombs.

Another most important fact is that future wars will not be declared wars. Germany could send her Zeppelins over here during cloudy weather quite undiscovered and unexpected by us and drop their bombs on sleeping New York without being shot at from the ground or dangerously approached. The guns on Zeppelins are larger than those on airplanes and are therefore dangerous to attack.

For Mr. Storm I should like to suggest that the world has greatly shrunk in size during the last hundred years because of our transportation and communication discoveries. How many more centuries is it going to take before the safety and well-being of humanity as a whole is going to be considered as the most important thing on earth? Even now the United States does not consider itself über alles, for it will protect the South American nations from being attacked by European or Asiatic nations. A nation's idea of being über alles belongs to the same class where any individual would be placed who claimed to be über alles.

How sad we shall be if we let Germany have any of our helium to be used against us when she is fighting to control most of the world.

JAMES F. PORTER.

SUGGESTION.

Chicago, May 9.—I would like to suggest that your swell cartoonist, Joe Parrish, start a Gay Nineties series. Although Gaar Williams has been gone now some two or three years, I for one still miss the marvelous pictured characterizations of his "Among the Folks in History."

As an idea man I think Parrish even excels Williams. Further, I think he is the best draftsman you've ever had on your staff. His cartoon on Saturday's editorial page convinces me that he is worthy to carry on those nostalgic, old-time hark-backs so marvelously portrayed during his lifetime by Gaar Williams and so cherished by TRIBUNE readers.

STANTON M. MEYER.

THE CURE FOR THE SMOKE NUISANCE.

New York, May 7.—Why get into such a lather about the smoke nuisance? Let Big Mr. Fixit fix it. As visual evidence of his ability in this line skeptics might cast their eyes on either side of the Pennsylvania railroad right-of-way passing through Eddystone, Pa. For a mile on either side of the track spread the Baldwin Locomotive works. Of the ten or a dozen tall stacks not a vestige of noxious clouds of industry. Give the holy man time. He'll fix it.

NED ALVORD.

IS THERE A SAVANT IN THE HOUSE?

Chicago, May 11.—Can any one tell me whether the "gh" found in so many words ever was pronounced and, if so, how?

ELLEN COX.

THEY LOOK ALIKE.

Chicago, May 11.—I see by the papers that an individual in Chicago is accused of seeking the more abundant life by issuing bank checks for large amounts while hoping his new receipts would be sufficient to make those checks good. It might prove embarrassing to a Democratic court if he were to admit the fact but disclaim its illegality. On such a plea a jury might not only find him not guilty but entitled to the thanks of the court as well for proving such a true and devoted follower of Mr. Roosevelt.

This case brings to mind the pending one against certain La Salle street investment brokers who have been arrested and charged with promising "clients" a monthly return for life in exchange for the payment of certain net sums, while finding it necessary to utilize the cash receipts to cover operating expenses. Here also it might prove embarrassing to the same Democratic court if the defendants were to demand the right to summon before the court the members of the social security board at Washington to explain how this local plan differed from Mr. Roosevelt's otherwise than in detail. Would not a finding of guilty of felonious acts simultaneously indict the administration?

SAFETY LANES.

Chicago, May 11.—Those responsible for automobile safety inspection certainly are to be congratulated on making it so difficult for automobile owners of the south side.

Last year the writer spent all of a precious Saturday afternoon in line waiting to have his car inspected at Marquette park, which at that time was one of at least seven south side testing stations. The one and only south side station now open is at 69th street and Cottage Grove avenue. How in the world can this one station hope to test all the cars not yet having these safety stickers when seven stations could not adequately handle the situation last year?

From all appearances this well intentioned safety law has become another form of racket to further enrich some of the local garage owning political racketeers.

J. F. B.

IDEA.

Chicago, May 10.—The real cure for the Rooseveltian attack on the press would be a conspiracy of silence. Playing up on the front page every word and deed of every member of the whole clan has gone to their heads. Stop sending reporters to the press conferences. A few paragraphs about the President and his family, placed well back in the inside pages, would suffice to give us all we care to know about their doings.

J. H. M.

SWEDEN'S CHARLESES.

Chicago, May 10.—Your editorial under the title of "Swedish Strain," requires a correction. To begin with, the power and prestige of Sweden did not begin to decline with the death of Gustavus, as the military genius of three of his leading generals, Baner, Torstenson, and Wrangel, continued to add fame and prestige to the Swedish arms until the close of the thirty years war. After the treaty of Westphalia, Sweden was an empire and the Baltic was a Swedish lake, and she continued to be a great power until the battle of Pultova in 1709.

Furthermore, Charles X. was not a madman or even half mad, but on the contrary a good soldier and a shrewd diplomat, having received his schooling at the negotiations during the treaty of Westphalia when he was a member of the Swedish delegation, before he became king. History relates that he was a very apt pupil.

You probably meant to refer to Charles XII., a great soldier, one of the greatest of his age, but unfortunately for his country not as great a statesman as he was a soldier, but far from mad. He foresaw the threat to Europe in the growing power of Russia.

JOHN A. MILLER.

PROJECTS.

Chicago, May 10.—To the person in charge of WPA in Chicago, I suggest the following worthy and constructive projects:

1. Construct approximately a dozen juvenile club houses throughout the city with recreational and vocational facilities in each for about 1,500 young people, and place them under the supervision of nonsectarian youth organizations.

2. Enlarge the recreational buildings in our public parks to about triple the present inadequate facilities.

3. Build a state industrial school and include military training for first juvenile offenders within 30 or 40 miles of Chicago as suggested by the Criminal court judges and state's attorney's office.

4. Survey and eliminate the causes of auto fatalities on Chicago's death corners.

5. Repair and reinforce the concrete on the safety islands which are fast deteriorating throughout the city.

6. Improve the lighting facilities under railroad viaducts.

Chicago, May 11.—Thanks for your diagram of a pump in today's TRIB showing just how the pump priming works. Yeah, you're right; it all hinges on a vacuum. O, boy, let's prime that now, shall we? We'll show 'em that nothin' hasn't got nothin' on us bunch of suckers, eh?

130 PROTESTANT CHURCHES AGREE ON CO-OPERATION

Draft Constitution for World Council.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

UTRECHT, The Netherlands, May 13.—Leaders of 130 Protestant bodies today created the foundation for organization of a world council of churches.

The proposed fellowship of churches, backed by 350,000,000 Protestant church members throughout the world, would represent the greatest union of Christian churches since the reformation. It would have as its main theme the acceptance of "our Lord Jesus Christ as God and Savior."

Churches Must Ratify Plan.

The churchmen, headed by the archbishop of York, who originated the movement during a visit to the United States four years ago, drafted a constitution for the world council as they concluded their five day conference today.

The Roman Catholic church did not participate, although all Christian churches were invited.

A draft of the constitution will be sent to all participating churches for ratification and with a recommendation that they send delegates to a proposed council meeting, the date of which will be set within the next five years. Central committee meetings are to be held annually under the constitution.

U. S. Prominent in Conference.

The world council was proposed at the Edinburgh conference on "faith and order" last summer and the Oxford conference on "life and work." The council would consist of 450 members and the central committee would be composed of 90 delegates, 18 of them from the United States and Canada.

One of the largest delegations at the conference came from the United States. It was headed by Dr. John R. Mott of New York, chairman of the International missionary council, who was appointed vice chairman of a provisional committee to act until establishment of the council.

The council probably will be headed by the archbishop of York as a result of his work for its formation.

Functions Are Outlined.

These functions are proposed for the council under the new constitution:

1. To carry on the work of the two world-wide movements for "faith and order" and for "life and work."
2. To facilitate common action by churches.
3. To promote coöperation and study.
4. To promote the growth of ecumenical [world-wide] consciousness in members of all churches.
5. To establish relations with denominational federations of world-wide scope and with other ecumenical movements.

Plan World Coöperation.

6. To call world conferences on specific subjects as the occasion may require, such conferences being empowered to publish their own findings.

Membership on the central committee of the council will be divided as follows, in addition to the 18 members from the United States and Canada:

Seventeen from Orthodox churches of the world; 22 from churches of Europe; 12 from Great Britain and Ireland; 10 from Asia, Africa, Latin America, and the Pacific Islands; five from South Africa, Australasia, and other areas, and six from ecclesiastical minority churches.

Finds Wife and Son, 3, Suffocated in Their Home

William Dzierzwa returned to his home at 1344 North Bell avenue early last evening to find his wife, Pauline, 26 years old, and their son, William Jr., 3, dead. Apparently they had been suffocated when a gas stove in the kitchen exhausted the oxygen in the small apartment. The bodies were on the bathroom floor. Mrs. Dzierzwa had been boiling clothes on the stove.

News of Radio

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

There'll be some changes made—quite a lot of them—in the broadcasting lineup during the next few months. Al Pearce, who has been exclaiming, "I hope, I hope, I hope" for Henry Ford for a couple of years, after a summer vacation beginning in July, will resume this fervent wishing in the interests of the cereal concern which is turning George Burns and Gracie Allen over to the cigaret men who have Paul Whiteman on the air. Pearce will move into the Monday night NBC spot now being so lunatically filled by Gracie and George.

Ford's radio representatives and Fred Waring, who worked for the motor maker so long, are in a huddle over prices and if they can get together it will be Waring for Ford in the fall. . . . And that toiletries maker who last paid the radio bills for Jessica Dragonette is negotiating for a fall series with her. . . . Stuart Erwin is planning to turn radio producer. He has acquired rights to the cartoon "Blondie" and has the promise of Una Merkel, who is contributing many a laugh to the Good News show on Thursday nights, to undertake the lead. Erwin wants Fannie Brice to play the baby . . . Bert Wheeler is offering advertisers a comedy show with an audience participation angle to it. . . . The sponsor who had Jeannette McDonald on the Open House series last season is looking around for a new idea—may even go for a dramatic series.

Fibber McGee goes off the air for a summer vacation on July 5 with the present Attorney at Law, daytime serial, to be expanded into nighttime proportions. This show will use a sort of "Thin Man" formula, featuring a crusading lawyer whose wife aids him in his work. If the show catches on with evening listeners it will be continued even after Fibber returns.

A realignment of the broadcasting schedule of that Cincinnati soap and toiletries concern, which just about is radio's most extensive sponsor, is due on May 30. The firm's dozen programs will be largely consolidated into three full hours, one on each of NBC's networks and one on CBS. Then there still will be some loose ends.

The morning hour from 9:45 to 10:45 on WLS-NBC will have Ma Perkins, Story of Mary Marlin, Vic and Sade, and Pepper Young's family. The afternoon hour, 2 to 3 on WMAQ, will have Mary Marlin, Ma Perkins, Pepper Young, and Guiding Light.

On the CBS hour from noon to 1 p. m. will be the Goldbergs, Road of Life, Gospel Singer, and Vic and Sade. In addition WBBM has Manhattan Mother, Houseboat Hannah, and Truman Bradley.

Under the same banner NBC will have the O'Neills, Kitty Keene, Inc., and Jimmy Fidler's Hollywood gossip.

The sponsor who has Betty and Bob, Hymns of All Churches, Betty Crocker, Valiant Lady, and Arnold Grimm's Daughter on CBS, is moving them into an hour spot on NBC on May 30.

The American Legion, Illinois department, has notified W-G-N that it is to be awarded a plaque for public service and service to the Legion. The presentation is to be made Monday evening.

For those who have asked, Fayette Krum's Girl Alone serial featuring Betty Winkler, which recently lost its sponsor, will be returned to WMAQ at 3:45 p. m. Mondays through Fridays, starting May 30.

VALUE OF TRUDE ESTATE PLACED AT $1,838,288

A value of $1,838,288 was placed on the gross estate of Alfred S. Trude, prominent lawyer, under a final accounting approved yesterday by Joseph F. Geary, assistant to the Probate judge. Mr. Trude died Dec. 12, 1933, at the age of 86 years.

The estate was valued at $1,000,000 when the will was admitted to probate in 1934. Trust funds were provided for Mr. Trude's widow, Algenia; two sons, Judge Daniel P. Trude of the Circuit court, and Walter T. Trude, and a daughter, Mrs. Cecilia Wilkins.

U. S. Plans Big Radio Station to Hit Fascism

Washington, D. C., May 13.—(AP)—A presidentially approved proposal that the government build a powerful radio station to offset Fascist and communist broadcasts to central and South America, is scheduled to be considered Monday by the house naval committee. President Roosevelt and three government departments—war, navy and interior—have approved the proposal on the ground it would "strengthen the bonds of good will and friendship" between this country and the rest of the Americas.

COUPLE PLANNED DEATH FOR HOURS, INQUEST IS TOLD

Evidence that Albert V. Pierce, 5340 Bernard street, and Miss Edna Lankin, whose bodies were found in an automobile near Belvidere on Thursday, carefully planned their double suicide was brought out yesterday at the coroner's inquest.

Walter Ray, a hardware dealer in Belvidere, said that the couple appeared in his store before noon Wednesday and tried to buy a length of rubber hose. Not having any in stock, he directed them to another store. The hose they purchased was used to convey deadly carbon monoxide gas from the engine to the interior of Pierce's car.

The coroner's jury returned a verdict of suicide in Pierce's death. The inquiry into Miss Lankin's death will be held today. She was described in Pierce's farewell note as "a stranger whom I just met today." She formerly lived at Bad Axe, Mich., but had been a resident of Chicago for fifteen years. Pierce, a former employé of a loop bank, was 36 years old and married.

VIGILANTES DRIVE AGITATORS FROM JERSEY WPA JOB

Camden, N. J., May 13.—[Special.]—One hundred and sixty vigilantes armed with shotguns, rifles, and clubs today drove nine automobile loads of WPA strikers from the municipal gravel pits at Lindenwold, twelve miles southeast of here. The strikers, they said, were attempting to persuade WPA gravel workers to leave their jobs.

The strike began Monday in protest against a staggered shift plan. Approximately 3,500 strikers are out in the Camden area, but they were warned by Henry D. Young, district WPA administrator, to return to their jobs by Monday or be fired.

The vigilantes were summoned to the gravel pits at Lindenwold by a prearranged siren blast, sounded when the strikers appeared. "Regardless of what happens, we'll give protection to men who want to work," said vigilante leaders.

Midwest Field Trials Will Be Started Today

BY JUDITH CASS.

BEFORE long it will be horses that will occupy the spotlight, for the Chicago horse shows will start with the South Shore Country club show on June 11. But this week-end it is dogs, retrievers in particular, that will interest the sportsmen of social circles.

The first licensed spring trial of the Midwest Field Trial club, of which Fletcher Garlock of Winnetka is president, will be held all day today and tomorrow on the grounds of the Biltmore Country club, about three miles north of Barrington on the Cuba turnpike.

The trial features the work of Chesapeake Bays, Labradors, Goldens, and the curly coated retrievers. Gaylord Donnelley, who is a vice president of the club, and his wife, the former Dorothy Ranney, are intensely interested in retrievers and their Yewtree Ted is entered in the amateur all age stake which will be run today. Mrs. Donnelley has learned to handle their dogs and she won a field trial with Yewtree Ted when she handled it at the St. Louis field trial two weeks ago.

Eastern Dogs Will Compete.

Competing against the Gaylord Donnelleys' dog in the amateur all age event will be another Donnelley owned Labrador, Clinola Ome, owned by Gaylord Donnelley's brother, Elliott Donnelley. He will run his dog himself in the stake.

Many eastern dogs have been sent out for the trial, including two that belong to Anthony Bliss of New York. He and his wife, the former Barbara Field, are keen about their kennel, but they did not bring Chesacroft Baron and Chesacroft Gamekeeper west, sending them instead with their trainer and handler. "Tony" Bliss was here two years ago, however, with his dogs.

W. A. Harriman of Tarrytown, N. Y., has entered a Labrador and David Elliot is here with Champion Banchory Night Light of the Wingan kennels. Elliott is trainer and handler for the kennels and is carrying on for the late Jay Carlisle, who will be missed at the trial. Mr. and Mrs. Carlisle—she is Mrs. William J. Chalmers' niece—used to come each spring and stay at the Deerpath Inn in Lake Forest while they entered their fine Labradors in the Barrington field trials.

The trial is open to the public and tomorrow night there will be a dinner at the club for members and visiting dog fanciers. J. Gould Remick of New York will be a judge.

Mrs. Joseph E. Otis Jr., one of the best woman shots in this part of the country, has the distinction of being the first woman to shoot at the trial. It is necessary to drop birds so that the dogs can be tested with their retrieving and usually men do the shooting, but this year Mrs. Otis, as well as Mr. Otis, has been invited to be a gun official. Walter Peacock will be one, also.

Infant Welfare Party at Barrington Club.

Barrington will occupy a prominent place on the social stage again next Friday when the newly organized Barrington Center of Infant Welfare gives its first benefit, a luncheon, bridge, and fashion show. It will be given at the Barrington Hills Country club and Mrs. Robert W. Buckley is in charge of arrangements.

Mrs. Harold Byron Smith is taking reservations for the party. The center was organized only last January; Mrs. William B. Renshaw is president; Mrs. Luther H. Barber, secretary; Mrs. Leslie M. Hansen, treasurer; Mrs. Henry Neal, sewing chairman, and Mrs. Samuel D. Rowe, publicity chairman.

Mr. and Mrs. Rowe are giving a luncheon on Sunday, May 22, for some new Barrington residents, the Leonard Karchers and the Dorsey Montgomerys.

Club Leaders Oppose Income Tax Publicity

BY BETTY BROWNING.

Kansas City, Mo., May 13.—[Special.]—The General Federation of Women's Clubs at its triennial convention today voted to telegraph to President Roosevelt and both houses of congress requesting the withdrawal of the executive order of April 18 empowering the Minton special senate committee to inspect and make public all income tax returns.

In the same message congress was urged to amend internal revenue laws to make a repetition of such procedure impossible.

The delegates also adopted a resolution urging the government to reduce taxes. That is, about one-third of 1,247 registered delegates did. The others were busy in hotel rooms and lobbies debating the more immediate problem before this convention—whom to elect first vice president.

About 400 delegates have arrived in the last 24 hours to register for voting.

Until 12:20 o'clock this morning in Mrs. Walter W. Seymour's headquarters—and until 2:30 in Mrs. John L. Whitehurst's—admirers of the rival candidates moved in and out, accepting campaign literature, buttons, candy, and at Mrs. Whitehurst's headquarters, punch minus alcohol—that's federation protocol. The federation also decreed against candy and punch several months ago, a few sticklers for form recalled today.

The campaign, which closes with Monday's election was entering upon its last and warmest phase today. At Mrs. Whitehurst's headquarters this visitor was informed that Mrs. Seymour is over 70, that the first vice president's job is pretty strenuous, and with the presidency probably to follow, three more strenuous years are in prospect.

At Illinois headquarters—Mrs. Seymour, now second vice president, is from Chicago—this visitor was informed that Mrs. Seymour is less than 65 years old. Admittedly, Mrs. Whitehurst is younger, but she was ill last year, and Mrs. Seymour wasn't. As for Mrs. Whitehurst's long list of speaking engagements for last year, she had to cancel a lot of them.

This list, together with a booklet containing testimonials from the governor of Maryland, the president of the University of Maryland, and others of Mrs. Whitehurst's fellow citizens from Maryland found its way into the mail boxes of many delegates this morning. The testimonials also were sent by mail to delegates at their homes nearly a month ago.

Mrs. Seymour's supporters were undecided whether to avail themselves of a last minute announcement permitting campaigners to parade their banners and slogans and sing their songs—especially composed for the occasion—the first 10 minutes of tomorrow's convention program.

Mrs. Seymour herself asked to have the permission revoked.

"It would be better for the delegates to try to get something out of our fine program, especially those who got here late," she remonstrated gently. "But I try to remember this campaigning is fun for them. Personally, I'd rather they wouldn't parade, just sing a pretty song or two. All the marching up and down that Illinois did in Miami last year lost Chicago this convention, I do believe."

But Seymour supporters were saying, "If the other side parades, so do we." Several of them deplored their candidate's reluctance to attend pep meetings. But there was more feeling over the fact that Seymour banners three times have disappeared from the lobby of the hotel where both candidates have headquarters. Whitehurst headquarters are strategically located on the mezzanine, whereas Seymour quarters are on the seventh floor.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

May we suggest a jar of deodorant petals as a quick aid to dainty grooming? Thin, yellow disks of flannel saturated with a deodorant lotion can now be had, and their sole purpose is to remove any trace of perspiration that might be clinging 'round and about. A quick swish of one of these petals over the under arm surfaces will do the trick.

It seems to us that a jar of these petals would find a welcome berth in the desk of all office workers, for they are the type of thing that can be used at home or abroad. You know—no fuss, no bother. Of course, we start out in the best of form in the morning. But just get involved in one of those long, trying telephone convesations that do queer things to our nervous system. Or go on a hurried, hectic shopping tour that is combined with or wrapped around a lunch hour, leaving one with a sort of damp, sticky feeling. Those are the times when we feel the need of a little extra precaution, and to be on the safe side, one of these little pieces of flannel would be the effective answer.

These petals are very easy to use, and while they neutralize any odor, they do not stop perspiration. They have a slight fragrance, which is not enough to interfere with any perfume one might use. They are mild and do not irritate the skin. As far as we have been able to discover, fabrics are not harmed in any way.

Deodorants should be considered a necessity at all times of the year, but in the summertime they certainly should be a "must." It's getting that time of year when the thermometer can't be trusted, and you can be prepared for emergencies by keeping these petals in your desk or on your dressing table. They can be used at any time, as often as you want. If you'll be sure to keep the jar tightly closed you can depend on about sixty of these aids.

The Sun Cults Welcome Hats of Cellophane

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Good news for all the sun bathers and for those loungers who want eye comfort while lolling in the sunshine. A wizard with a thousand ideas has clicked again. For about three dollars you can own one of her newest toppers, and a swanky bit of topping it is.

Cellophane, cut in a flat disc about 12 inches in diameter, has two slits through the middle. Through the slits a band of either jersey or cotton print is drawn. This band wraps around the skull like any other swathed band, and the finished result—eye comfort.

The disc of cellophane slants rakishly over the eyeline [this is where the eye comfort is achieved], and you can rest your head anywhere without worrying over the position of the creation. The cellophane circle comes in two colors, dark green or amber, and should the material pulled through the slits fail to agree with your play clothes in color or theme it's no trick at all to make a band of whatever material you desire and pull it through yourself.

It's the big fashion scoop of the week; it's smart and dashing enough to wear any torrid day in town with black linens or dark sheers, especially the models that have the band of sleek white jersey.

Shoppers for summer eye comfort also should see the brimmed felts and the piqué numbers. For about $3 you can get tricky little piqués that come in pert little pill boxes, short brimmed affairs or the wider models. The piqués are finds for the shoppers who are limping along with a skimpy budget. These hats are crisp, smart, and high fashion.

Looking at Hollywood

By Ed Sullivan

Take the Stand, Fanny Brice

Hollywood, Cal., May 13.—

Q.—Snooks, how old are you?

A.—I refuse to answer on the grounds that I might incriminate or degrade myself.

Fanny Brice a veteran.

Q.—Why?

A.—I'll give you a hint, Edwin.

Q.—It's Edward.

A.—Yes, of course. Nevertheless, I'll give you a hint. My first Ziegfeld Follies was in 1910, at the New York theater roof. That's 28 years ago, and when I signed with Ziegfeld, I wasn't Baby Rose Marie, Edgar.

Q.—It's Edward.

A.—Why, Daddy?

Q.—That scene in "The Great Ziegfeld," when William Powell, as Ziegfeld, went backstage to the burlesque house to sign you—did that actually happen in your career?

A.—No, but I'll tell you a good story about that. I was playing at the Columbia theater, in New York, a burlesque house. That was in 1909. A girl from one of the music publishers had sent me a song, and her name was Grace Ziegfeld. So I showed all the other burlesque performers the letter, and held my thumb over 'Grace,' so all they saw was Ziegfeld. I'd say, casually, that Ziegfeld had sent me a letter.

Q.—So?

A.—Just a week later I got a telegram backstage signed Florenz Ziegfeld, asking me to come to his office about a job. Naturally, I figured that somebody in the company was kidding me. I tore up the telegram and threw it away. Four days later I ran into Bert Cooper on Broadway, and he said: "Why haven't you answered Ziegfeld?" We were standing at 46th street and I was so shocked that I almost fell in front of a horse-drawn hansom cab.

Q.—Then it was Bert Cooper who made the connection with Ziegfeld for you?

A.—Yes, indeed. You see, I had signed an eight year contract with the burlesque manager, Max Spiegel, and no other theatrical manager wanted to contact me. Bert Cooper went to Ziggie and pointed out that Spiegel's contract was not valid, as I was a minor. Nobody else had thought of that. So I signed with the "Follies" for $75 a week; I had been getting $35 in burlesque.

Q.—Since 1910 you've seen them all in this business, Fanny—who would you say was the greatest actress you'd ever seen?

A.—Helen Hayes.

Q.—Who was the greatest comedian?

A.—Frank Tinney.

Q.—The greatest comedienne, present company excepted?

A.—Beatrice Lillie, present company NOT excepted.

Q.—The greatest singer of a popular song?

A.—Al Jolson.

Q.—The greatest musical show?

Q.—The greatest dramatic show?

A.—A show that played only one week on Broadway, "In Abraham's Bosom." I saw it when it played a week in Greenwich Village, and I raved about it to all of my friends. So when it lasted only a week on Broadway they all kidded the life out of me. But I had the last laugh—the play that ran one week won the prize.

Q.—The greatest dancer?

A.—Fred Astaire.

Q.—Who would you say was responsible for your success?

A.—Irving Berlin, although he doesn't know it. When I applied for the job in "College Girls" I told the manager that I was a soubrette. He told me he'd listen to my songs a few days later. I'd lied to him. I didn't have any songs. So I raced up to the Berlin, Watterson, Snyder office and I asked Irving if he had a song I could sing. He said: "Come on in. I've got two songs and I'll show you how to sing them." The first one was called "Sadie Salome," a song about a Bronx girl who became a hula dancer, and he sang it in a Jewish dialect. So I sang it in a Jewish dialect because I figured if the author wanted it that way, that's the way it should be done. That's the way I became a Jewish comedienne. If Berlin had sung it with an Irish brogue, I would have started off as an Irish comedienne. So Irving really is to blame for the whole thing.

Q.—Have songs changed a lot since 1910?

A.—Uh-huh. The titles have changed a lot. The first song I sang at an amateur night at Frank Keeney's Brooklyn theater in 1908 was titled, "When You Know You're Not Forgotten by the Girl You Can't Forget." Al Bryan and Solly Violinsky had a big argument about song titles in Lindy's one night, Al insisting that long song titles were necessary, and Violinsky disagreeing.

Q.—Who won?

A.—Al Bryan said: "Violinsky, you're wrong. Take 'I Didn't Raise My Boy to Be a Soldier.' You have to admit that you couldn't tell the story of the song so forcefully in a shorter title.' Violinsky said: "The authors would have told the idea in two words—'Don't Go.'"

Q.—What was the greatest "Follies" you ever played in?

A.—In 1921. I had two great songs, "My Man" and "Rose of Washington Square," and one great sketch, "Camille." W. C. Fields was my maid in it. The whole show was great.

Q.—You are, of course, the sister of Lew Brice?

A.—Yes, but I'd rather be the sister of that Englishman who had all the dough. That column you did on him was the funniest thing I've ever read, Ethelbert.

Q.—It's Edward.

A.—It serves you right.

Good Morning!

Romance, mystery, action, suspense! Plenty of each has the Oriental's current melodrama, which, I prophesy, will hand you an hour's exciting entertainment.

The four men of the title are four sons of an English army officer, Col. Leigh, who, after years of distinguished service, has been dishonorably discharged—and murdered.

The murder has occurred just as Leigh had been about to produce papers that would furnish proof of his innocence and, probably, point to the man whose forged order had brought about the trouble.

Besides the brothers there are four suspects; four men who COULD have been responsible for the order, the murder—or both. To all points of the globe in search of these men go the brothers Leigh. . . .

Their hunt leads to strange adventures in strange places. Wherever Geoff Leigh goes, Lynn, a madcap who's in love with him, pops up. She is finally able to justify her persistence by furnishing aid without which the amateur sleuths would have been foiled on the last, successful lap of their man hunt.

Under the direction of John Ford, who knows just how to handle this sort of yarn, the action moves swiftly and engrossingly. The acting is all splendid.

Don't forget to give a good once over to Richard Greene, that so-called composite of Robert Taylor and Tyrone Power, for whom his producers have such high hopes. Nice looking chap with plenty of yumpfh.

Miss Young is what the rôle called for—pretty, reckless, loyal and smart.

There's nothing like a good melodrama for grinding new grooves in the old thinking machine, and "Four Men and a Prayer" is a right pert groove grinder.

See you tomorrow.

Unfamiliar Faces

SYNOPSIS.

Elizabeth Sandal is shocked to find her son, Oliver, and her daughter, Dorothea, resent their father's will that unexpectedly left a fortune to her and did not mention them. Dorothea wants to have her own London flat. Oliver hopes to marry into wealth. Elizabeth goes off to Switzerland for a change and rest. En route she stops overnight in Paris where she meets Andrew Leicester, who was a groom at her wedding. Andrew, a widower, is returning to England after years of absence, and is to meet his children in Paris. William, his son, lives with a bachelor relative. His daughter, Shirley, is with his wife's relatives. Shirley has become involved in a scandal with an aviator who was engaged to another girl. Her mother's people's, so they have written him, can do nothing with her. Andrews sees Elizabeth to her train next morning and promises to report progress.

INSTALMENT XII.

A SECOND MEETING.

Occasionally Elizabeth recalled the oddness of her meeting in Paris with Andrew Leicester, her first indignant and preposterous suspicions of him and their evening together, two ghosts, she had called them, met in a forgotten world. Perhaps he already regretted his confidence to her about his daughter. She hoped his problem had resolved itself.

With a sigh she pictured them as already excellent friends, doing all the things in Paris which would delight a girl of 19.

This comfortable state of affairs seemed such a certainty that she was astounded on going downstairs one morning to come face to face with Andrew himself, just about to inquire for her at the desk.

"This is luck," he exclaimed. "I had a horrible feeling you might have moved on. But you were just going out. Perhaps I may walk along with you. . . ?"

"Yes, do" she said, with a faint grimace at the lounge and writing room. "I have discovered that a quiet little hotel means a place where one never can be quiet."

"I'm afraid so. A quiet hotel is naturally the largest and most expensive to be found. But why not change your quarters?"

"How like a man," exclaimed Elizabeth. "You have such a grand way of dealing with things. I have unpacked my trunk. It hadn't occurred to me."

"But what are you doing here? Why are you not in Paris with your children?"

They were at Vevey, he explained, having come over by steamer from Geneva. Young William had expressed a wish to see the home of the league of nations, though whether from lofty motives or a desire to score over other fellows who had not been there, it was difficult to say.

"However," continued Andrew dryly, "when it became clear they meant to take in the lake I contrived to make for Vevey so that I could look you up. Where is the largest place we can lunch?"

"You are not addressing your daughter," she reminded him, looking amused.

"I should scarcely presume," he returned.

"They haven't treated you badly?" she exclaimed.

"On the contrary they have been courtesy itself, damn 'em, and blandness personified. 'O, no, really, thanks,' 'Yes, quite,' 'Please don't bother,'" mimicked Andrew. "They are a close corporation, those two. Phew! I am glad to meet a fellow creature again. You can lunch with me, I hope, and will forgive this high handed way of taking your welcome for granted. It's just that I am a desperate man."

Elizabeth could see Andrew was worried about his children's treatment of him and she said, "I believe it's the convention of that age to be rather aloof. Mere shyness, probably, though they would never admit it."

He was unconvinced, and when he had sought out a corner of a hotel restaurant where a quiet talk would be possible, he gave her a few samples of this supposed timidity, such as their habit of taking themselves off with the announcement that they would return at such and such an hour. "Leaving me high and dry, kicking my heels," he finished.

"You don't appear to me to have been very firm with them, you know," she protested.

"No," admitted Andrew mildly, "but I've thought about it quite a lot. I've planned to knock their heads together, but there's a certain difficulty about public fights in a foreign country . . . hotel lounges and dining rooms, trains . . . Come now, wouldn't you find discipline a little difficult yourself? . . . I might engage a special room, perhaps . . . but two heads are supposed to be better than one . . . such sleek, good-looking heads, too."

"O, they are missing a lot of fun," exclaimed Elizabeth impulsively.

"I daresay, but your sympathies are being engaged on my side, not on theirs," he protested.

He was pleased, however, and the liking he had felt for her during their evening in Paris was renewed. The trip to Geneva had not been entirely fortuitous; he had found himself at sea in his attempt to get to know his children and was determined not to go back to England and the flood of relatives in this unsatisfactory condition. The girl was the real difficulty, and it had more than once occurred to him that Elizabeth Sandal might be able to help or at least instruct him.

Although she had been almost certainly ill and looked as though she had had a rough time, she had said practically nothing of herself, he recalled, and had not followed the all too common practice of capping his tales of woe with her own. Suddenly he found himself saying casually:

"I happened to remember you had gone away with a desire to see no familiar faces, and would be unlikely therefore to be with friends and full of engagements, but if you really do want to carry this retreat to the bitter end, just tell me I'm a nuisance."

"It isn't anything so formidable as a retreat," she assured him.

"The boy is not a problem," Andrew resumed. He seems to have settled his own future. He means to go in for flying, it seems, in the air force for choice, and sits for his examination in the summer."

"Of course, I should be terrified," admitted Elizabeth, "but quite unreasonably, I suppose. What had you meant him to do?"

"I hoped he would develop some definite bent and follow it. I was only taken aback that he had never given me a hint. It put me in my place rather as an intruding stranger. One can't blame them for that. I have to establish my identity. That's what the absentee parent loses, a reciprocal interest and attention."

"Perhaps we never have it," she said with a faint sigh, then rather hurriedly continued: "They are both keen on flying then?"

"Exactly what I said to them," nodded Andrew. "It seemed a neat way of lightly opening fire on the minx, but it was evidently the wrong move. She froze. As for William, he said, 'I haven't crashed yet,' rather regretfully and went on to give it as his opinion that the chap who took Shirley up had made a pretty clever landing, considering the bad visibility.

"But you have heard something of what occurred from Shirley by this time, surely?" protested Elizabeth.

"Not a word. I can't question the girl before William and they are as thick as thieves, and I'm not at all sure he knows a thing about the affair except as an adventure he is sorry to have missed.

"It's rather curious, you see, that my cousin, Roger, hasn't mentioned it. As for my sister, when I questioned her on the telephone that day in Paris, she didn't know what I was talking about."

"The scandal can hardly have been widespread then," suggested Elizabeth.

"No. Still, she is not in touch with the Mortimers to any extent. She said: 'Crash . . . aeroplane. What nonsense. I've just had a wire to say she'll meet William's train.' So I let it go at that."

"But if they are as thick as thieves she would certainly take William into her confidence, wouldn't she?"

"She may have the grace to be ashamed of herself to that extent," said Andrew. "He's three years younger, remember, and one can't humiliate a grown-up girl by having it out before a youngster she's fond of."

The average housewife is rather careless about the shortening she uses in her cakes and cookies. That was my conclusion and the conclusion of other home economists who helped to judge about 250 sample cakes and cookies baked at home by as many Chicago housewives.

We noticed that cakes and cookies made with butter almost always had good flavor. We could tell when stale butter had been used, probably as an economy measure, and we didn't have to guess when rankly rancid fat of other types had been used.

Whatever the choice of shortening it won't give good results unless it is fresh. Lard never works as well as butter or the vegetable fats in making cakes, although it is one of the best possible shortenings to use for pie crust. [Butter makes a poor pie crust.] Perhaps I should qualify the statement that lard doesn't work well in cakes. It does a pretty good job with a special recipe and method of mixing and with a lower than usual oven temperature.

Speaking of cakes, we had a recent discussion in our office, followed by experimental tests, about making cakes by the method recommending blending the flour instead of the sugar with the shortening. Often this produces a fine-textured cake which will keep moist for some time, but results aren't likely to be as satisfactory as by ordinary methods of mixing. Home economists of the Wheat Flour institute confirmed our opinion that this is no method to recommend to an amateur and that the flour has to take "too much of a beating" when mixed into a cake in this manner.

According to the institute's experts and according to our own tests, too, the best method of mixing any butter cake is to save out a fourth cup of the sugar [the rest is creamed with the butter in the usual way] and to add this gradually to the beaten egg white, thus making a rather stable meringue which folds readily into the rest of the batter. This method is a help to women who have trouble getting their cakes as light and fluffy as they'd like them to be.

The household sections are exhibiting handy ice cube crushers for home use. These are most useful where cocktails are served often or where freezer made ice cream is mixed in small quantities.

A new "barbecued" smoked salmon now has pretty general distribution through the city. I tried samples of it recently and liked it a great deal. It is packaged in convenient sized cuts, ready to eat cold or to cream or bake. Cold it makes a good accompaniment to potato salad, or an excellent cocktail with a seafood cocktail sauce. Hot it may be served in cream sauce over toast, in patty shells, in ramekins, or as an excellent salmon loaf. If you can't find a store in your neighborhood which carries it I'll gladly tell you what downtown stores have it. Telephone or write to Mary Meade, Chicago Tribune. Please inclose stamped, self-addressed envelope if you write.

BY NANCY CABOT.

"Vine Block" is one of the favorite patterns which every quiltmaker greets enthusiastically when she sees it in any collection. There are numerous patches and a variety of colors which are set together to form a most interesting design. The entire coverlet is composed of pieced blocks which are set together forming another intriguing pattern, creating the impression of a mystic maze. Only fifteen pieced blocks are required for a coverlet which measures 90 by 105 inches. The border is a half inch band of bias binding.

For a limited period Nancy Cabot offers 10 quilt patterns of her own choice at a price of 10 cents for the group (12 cents by mail). Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower.

Mrs. Philip Raymond Shumway is announcing the engagement of her daughter to Robert L. Elliott Jr., son of Robert L. Elliott, also of Evanston.

Miss Shumway's great grandfather, Dr. Miner Raymond, was one of the founders of the Garrett Biblical institute, and her grandfather and grandmother, Philip Besson Shumway and Mary Raymond Shumway, and her father, the late Mr. Shumway, were trustees of Northwestern university. Miss Shumway's early education was at the Roycemore school in Evanston. Later she was graduated from Briarcliff and from the Art institute of Chicago.

Mr. Elliott is a graduate of Amherst and of the Harvard law school. No date has been set for the wedding.

Imogene Bucklin to Be Fall Bride.

Another announcement of interest is one Mr. and Mrs. Vail Rhodes Bucklin are making of the engagement of their daughter, Imogene Edna, to Charles Emmett Bell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Bell of Belair, Cal.

Mr. and Mrs. Bucklin and their daughter returned Monday from their home in Glendora, Cal., and since then Miss Bucklin has been telling her friends that she is to be a bride in the fall, or sooner, and that she and her husband will live on a ranch in Arizona. Miss Bucklin attended the Mary C. Wheeler school and was a debutante of the 1931-'32 season.

Mr. Bell attended the University of Texas, and the University of California, southern branch, at Los Angeles. He will come here next month to visit the Bucklins and to meet his fiancée's friends. Their wedding may take place at the Bucklins' summer home in Vermont.

Reveal Wedding of Nancy Wilder.

Mr. and Mrs. Erskine Wilder of Hubbard Woods announce the marriage last Monday of their daughter, Nancy, to Phillip Carrol Haydock of New York. The announcement will come as a surprise to most of Miss Wilder's friends for she and Mr. Haydock had not planned to be married so soon.

Mr. Haydock, who was engaged in business in New York City, was transferred suddenly to Buffalo, N. Y., and he and Miss Wilder decided to be married at once and go directly there.

The wedding, with only immediate relatives present, took place in the morning at the home of the bride's parents with the Rev. E. Ashley Gerhard officiating and was followed by a breakfast. Mr. Haydock and his bride left for Buffalo immediately after the breakfast.

Miss Wilder prepared at the North Shore Country Day school for Wellesley college, which she attended for two years.

Miss Jane Emery to Be Bride Today.

Miss Jane Emery and Bradley Eben will be married at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon at Mount Carmel church, with a small reception following at the Drake hotel. The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Clark Emery, will be attended by her sister, Mrs. Thomas Smyth.

Joseph Griffin will be Mr. Eben's best man, and ushering will be Mr. Smyth and Robert F. Carr Jr. The bride will wear a stunning suit, with scarf of sables, which will serve also as a going away costume.

After a honeymoon at White Sulphur Springs Mr. Eben and his bride will be at home in Chicago.

Walker-Wilcox Nuptials Tonight.

At the Exmoor Country club in Highland Park at 8:30 o'clock tonight Miss Joan Hulburd Walker, daughter of the Robert Finley Walkers of Highland Park, will become the bride of Jackson Anthony Wilcox, son of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Wilcox of Benton Harbor, Mich.

Miss Carola Kellner will be the maid of honor. Mrs. Beresford Beck, Miss Frances Kelly, Mrs. Edward Bohnen, Mrs. John Gregg and Miss Jane Wilcox will be the bridesmaids. Robert F. Walker Jr. has come from Washington and Lee university to usher with Mr. Beck, Mr. Bohnen, John Holley, Ford Stoddard of Detroit and Sidley Butz of Charlotte, N. C. Karl Kempf will be best man.

Prenuptial Parties for Joan Ford.

Something new in showers is the luncheon and cosmetic shower that Miss Joan Ford is giving today for Miss Julia Patterson who is to be married on June 4 to Ralph W. Applegate. Miss Ford, who is to be a bridesmaid, will entertain again at an evening party on May 30 at which Harger Rollo, who is to be an usher for Mr. Applegate, will be the joint host.

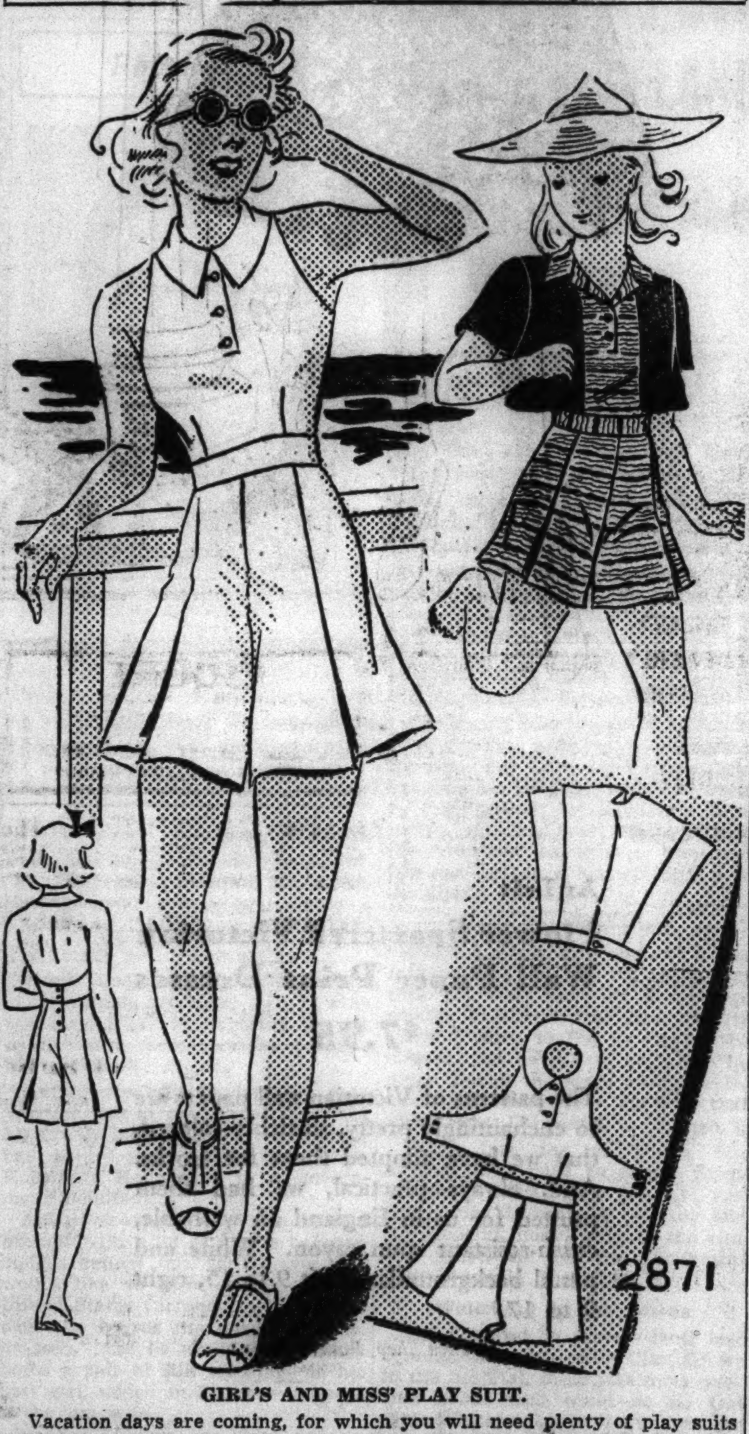
Ernest Byfield Jr. is giving a picnic next Sunday at his father's Barrington farm, and the following Sunday, May 29, Miss Carlotta Lagorio will give an all-day party at the Lagorio summer home in Lake Delavan, Wis. Mrs. John L. Irving, the former Patricia Forsyth Kelly, will give a stocking and handkerchief shower next Friday, and the following Friday, May 27, Miss Eleonore Thompson will give a luncheon and closet shower.

Mrs. Wayne Wills will give the spinster dinner for her daughter on June 1, the same night that Mr. Applegate is giving his bachelor dinner at the Racquet club. Colin Campbell is entertaining the night of June 2, and Mrs. Wills will be hostess again on the 3d at the bridal dinner.

Mrs. Giuseppe Fantacci, the former Marjorie Moore, arrived yesterday from New York to be here until after her cousin's wedding. Mr. Fantacci will arrive in a week or two.

The Ridge Service Guild auxiliary of Beverly Hills will give the last of a series of three plays at 10 o'clock this morning in Hackman hall. The Clare Tree Major players will present "Hansel and Gretel."

Beautifully Styled Play Suit



GIRL'S AND MISS' PLAY SUIT.

Vacation days are coming, for which you will need plenty of play suits for your hours in the sun. We think the pattern illustrated today is a trim one you will like at sight. It's perfect for hiking, the beach, and tennis. The plaited shorts give the appearance of a skirt, since they are cut so full. The waistband is snugly fitted, while the simple bodice is topped with a shirtwaist collar in front, leaving the back fully exposed to the rays of the sun.

There is a clever little bolero with this outfit. It is collarless but has short sleeves in the simple, tailored manner. It should be in contrast to the rest of the outfit.

Sturdy cottons are the best bets. You might make the play suit of a plain shade and have a darker or a printed bolero. The sketch at the right shows how attractive this model can be with the suit in a print and the bolero in a harmonizing darker shade.

Style No. 2871 is designed for sizes 8, 10, 12, 14, and 16 years. Size 12 requires 1⅞ yards of 39 inch material for the play suit, with ⅝ yard of 39 inch fabric for the bolero.

Patience Is a Golden Asset to All Parents

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

[Copyright: 1938: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

Grandmothers are among my most interesting correspondents. Today's letter is from one of them:

"My dear Mrs. Bevans: Please send me reading suggestions on patience and obedience.

"My daughter has a baby girl just past 13 months. She is the best little baby in the world. Of course, my granddaughter cries once in a while and is sometimes hard to feed. But though she si getting her teeth her mother has no patience with her.

"I, myself, have a lot of pleasure with her as, just now, she is so cute and quite smart.

"I will be glad to read what you advise, myself, and have my daughter do the same, as she really needs something like that."

* * *

That you get out of life what you give, or what you put into it, is something most of us believe. But we are apt to think of it in relation to adults or adult concerns.

But certainly we find no more direct proof of that saying than when we take the trouble to look at what fathers and mothers give to their children [or put into the big job of being parents], and then check this up with the result. These returns are most noticeable at the two ends of childhood, as you might say, in the early years and in adolescence. Today it's the early years: The baby and little boy and girl I have in mind.

Patience is one of the most rewarding things we can give our small children, or put into the job of managing them. To accept their tempo is not always easy for a grown man or woman, yet it is necessary, and patience is what helps us to do it. We must, while dealing with these small children, gear ourselves to their speed. They're awkward, they're new at things, they have everything to learn. All this makes them slow, deliberate. And here patience is needed.

They don't understand very often what we want, or why we want it. Here again patience is needed.

Patience of more than one kind is described in our booklet "Make Patience Your Handmaiden." It will be sent on receipt of a large, stamped, self-addressed envelope. Address Mrs. Gldays Bevans, The Chicago Tribune, Chicago, Ill.

Sephardic Jewry Opens Conference in Amsterdam

[Copyright: 1938: By the New York Times.]

AMSTERDAM, The Netherlands, May 13.—The world congress of Sephardic Jewry opened here this afternoon in the Portuguese synagogue, ancient center of the Sephardic religious culture. Rabbi David Abraham Jessurum de Cardozo represents the American Sephardic community. Delegates from England, France, Germany, Rumania, Jugo-Slavia, Greece, Egypt, and Italy also are present. The congress seeks a fund for the establishment of a world seminary for small Sephardic communities throughout the world.

The Housewife

There's a new type of French fryer on the market that has a number of attractive features. First, its all aluminum construction makes it light weight, easy to handle, and as quick to wash as an ordinary plate.

Second, there is no wire basket to collect particles of food, but a perforated basket instead, which slips down inside the fryer and which has an air cooled handle.

Then there is an expansion chamber which prevents the oil from bubbling over. This utensil would make a splendid item for a bride's kitchen shower.

According to CULBERTSON

AN UNWISE HOLD-UP PLAY.

[Copyright: 1938: By Ely Culbertson.]

Hold-up plays, in all their ramifications, are not too well understood by the great body of bridge players. As valuable as this type play may be when used at the right time, its use can be just as fatal in other instances. In today's hand, taken from a recent match point duplicate, South was not even aware that this hold-up of an ace was the factor responsible for his getting a bottom score on the board.

East, dealer.

♠ K 10 9 7
♥ A K 6
♦ 10 8 2
♣ Q 8 5

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
1 heart	1 spade	Double	Pass
Pass	Pass

East's opening bid was a minny of minnies, but, nevertheless, when his partner doubled one spade for penalties he determined to stick by his guns and permit the double to stand. Incidentally, South's overcall, even at the one level, was a highly dangerous bid despite his holding of 3 honor tricks.

West opened the nine of hearts, dummy played the ten, East the jack, and declarer won with the ace. A low club was then led to the ten. East won with the king and, not knowing where the heart eight was [if declarer had it East's J-7 would be worthless] shifted to a low diamond. West played the queen, and at this point declarer slipped. In a vain attempt to keep control of the diamond suit, declarer held up dummy's ace. What he could gain by this procedure is hard to see. Actually, it gave West a chance to perfect the defense by leading and thus showing East the heart eight. Declarer won with his other heart honor and continued his attempt at club establishment by laying down the queen. But now, when East took his second club trick he was able to lay down the high heart and thereby give West the opportunity to discard his third club. This resulted in declarer's taking no club trick whatever. East returned and her diamond and dummy's ace were knocked out. Declarer could count that a third round of clubs could not go through, hence led a spade and played the nine spot. West won with the jack, and returned a diamond. East won with the jack and led his remaining club. West ruffed with the deuce of spades and then, to protect his major tenace in trumps, merely exited with the fourth diamond. In all, the defenders took four spade tricks, one heart, two diamonds, and two clubs, thus earning an 800 point penalty at a mere one contract.

If declarer had accepted dummy's diamond ace and had immediately returned a club, he would have insured one club trick for himself and held his loss to 500 points. This would not have been so serious, since many East-West teams made a vulnerable game in no trump.

Cupid Delivers Wayward Dart in This Affair

BY DORIS BLAKE.

[Copyright: 1938: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

The girl is 17. The man is 29, divorced and father of an 8 year old.

The girl reports she has been going out with the man all the time. For the last three months he has been pressing her to marry him. She puts him off. She does not know if she loves him. She has met his child, his family, his friends and his ex-wife with whom he is on the friendliest terms. They consult each other on all problems, money, friends, sweethearts.

"Recently when out with him," the girl tells, "he said I would have to come to a decision. He said he had some very good friends who have been trying to fix it up with him and another girl. He threatens that if I do not answer him soon he will take up the friends' invitation and go meet the other girl. He claims that he loves me dearly but that he likes to divide his attention.

"The truth is that I don't want to marry him but I don't want to lose him. My parents do not know that he was married before and they press me to let him go so that I can marry one of my own religion. My trouble is that I only seem to meet men who are not of my religion. What is your opinion of my case?"—Rosalind.

Rosalind, our opinion is that you are a child trying to talk like a grown-up. One would think this man was your one and only chance of a lifetime—and you but 17.

Is it nice for a 17 year old girl to deceive her parents about the man with whom she is talking marriage? Why didn't you tell them that he has been married before? True, under the circumstances, they would not want you to choose that man, but they would be first to congratulate you on getting yourself engaged to a young man more nearly your own age, more desirable and compatible. Your man sounds none too good to us, honey, threatening you with another girl attachment. Let her have him and welcome, and you just make it your business to go where you will meet the kind of fine young man best adapted to your age, your religion and your heart.

Lathrop at 80 Remains Genius of Landscapes

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

An exhibition of paintings by W. L. Lathrop has opened in the Anderson galleries, 530 South Michigan avenue, and if any exhibition could follow successfully the Pushman show this does.

Mr. Lathrop like Hovsep Pushman stands unique in the world of art. What Pushman can do with a still life arrangement, Lathrop does with fields, sky, and water. His paintings are marvelously beautiful. They suggest Cazin, Corot, and Millet, but imitate none of these painters.

Mr. Lathrop is nearly 80 years old, but age has not weakened his genius. The dean of American landscape painters is painting as strongly as he ever did. He paints only a few canvases a year, but each is a gem.

Water is an exceedingly difficult thing to point; Lathrop does it superbly. His "Black Squall," with its vivid green sea and menacing sky is very effective. In more tranquil mood is "Bait Hunters," a reach of shallow blue water picked out by the introduction of a boat with two men.

* * *

The same craftsmanship which guides the painter in his creation of large canvases does not fail him in the making of the most enchanting of little sketches. The "Laundry," for instance, is fascinating—a girl is hanging a basket of wet clothes to dry; a simple enough bit of realism, but the tender nuances of color that flow through the composition make it one of the most persuasive of the pictures. "Summer Sea" and "Coming Shower" are two other little pictures to remember.

Among the larger canvases do not miss "Clearing Off," "Wasteland Near the Sea," "The Scarlet Maple," and "Salt Marsh." These are representative American paintings that make one proud to be an American.

The annual memorial service in honor of American artists who died during the year will take place Sunday afternoon at St. Stephen's, the Little Church at the End of the Road, with special services to the memory of Dr. Robert B. Harshe. Mrs. Harshe is presenting one of Dr. Harshe's paintings to the church.

"I have only one crib for my two boys, one almost 2 years old, the other an infant. They both are too large and active for such small quarters. If any reader has a full size crib stored away and no longer in use I would be very grateful for it.

"I would also appreciate a small chest of drawers or a dresser, as I have no closet space and almost no drawer space."

Double breasted drape tropical worsteds for town

$29.50

When his collar first starts to curl up and wilt, and he's sure the mercury hasn't space to rise in the thermometer, the forehanded man in town is ready with a tropical worsted. To those forehanded men we recommend these 2 pc. tropical worsteds at $29.50, whose patterns and drape styling are not unlike the heavier Garnett flannels and distinctive worsteds he's wearing now. Yet they weigh ounces less, hold their crease, and their porous weave allows the infiltering of every breeze that comes along.

Other tropical worsteds from $23.50 to $65

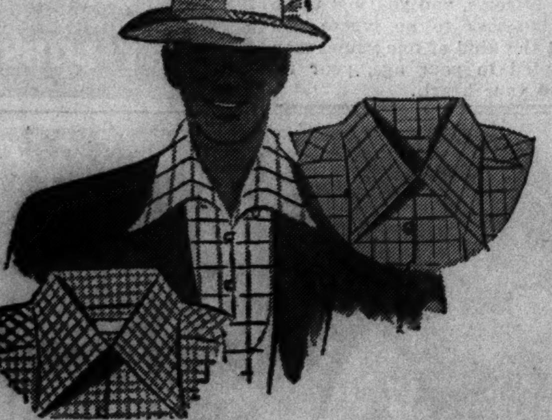
A new collection of crisply striped broadcloth and lightweight shirts for summer, styled with a 3 inch collar and barrel cuffs. Not only are fabrics such as these seldom found at $1.85, but their details are those you'd expect to find only in higher priced shirts.



Silk noil sport shirts—they look and feel like linen

Their coolness, light weight, and ability to take crisp patterns are qualities that you'll recognize as being silk's. Their roughish, porous texture, that is surprisingly like linen, fits them particularly well for active sports. In smart plaid patterns, and a collar styled to look well under your sport coat.

SOX BEAT INDIANS, 7-6; CUBS LOSE IN TENTH

ANAFLAME, ONLY FILLY IN RACE, IS WITHDRAWN

45,000 to See 48th Running of Stake.

Preakness Field

BALTIMORE, Md., May 13.—[Special.]—The probable field for the forty-eighth running of the $70,000 Preakness on the Pimlico track tomorrow, listed according to post positions and with jockies and probable odds.

Horse and jocky—	Odds.
FIGHTING FOX [Jimmy Stout]	6 to 1
BULL LEA [Irving Anderson]	6 to 1
†MENOW [Raymond Workman]	4 to 1
†DAH HE [Charley Kurtsinger]	4 to 1
SUN EGRET [Al Shelhamer]	20 to 1
DAUBER [Maurice Peters]	5 to 2
CRAVAT [Jack Westrope]	30 to 1
HYPOCRITE [Hubert Le Blanc]	12 to 1
CAN'T WAIT [George Woolf]	7 to 2
BULL WHIP [No boy]	30 to 1

†Hal Price Headley entry.

Baltimore, Md., May 13.—[Special.]—The field for the historic Preakness, to be run tomorrow at Pimlico, was reduced to ten tonight when William Woodward's Anaflame, the only filly entered, was withdrawn.

Anaflame was scratched from the list of the country's outstanding 3 year olds, entered in the 48th running of the stake, when she was stricken with coughing spells today. Five colts which followed Lawrin across the line in the Kentucky Derby will be in the field.

On the strength of his finishing second at Louisville William du Pont Jr's. Dauber is favorite in the $70,000 race. The prospects are for fair weather, a fast track, and a crowd of 45,000.

Track followers were surprised this morning when Bull Whip, which ran a bad race earlier in the week, was entered for the test. Some doubt was expressed that he would face the starting line for the mile and three-sixteenths.

Put Blinkers on Fighting Fox.

Fighting Fox and Warren Wright's Bull Lea will be out to erase the stigma left by their disappointing performances in the Kentucky Derby. The full brother of Gallant Fox will be equipped with blinkers and his trainer, Sunny Jim Fitzsimmons, thinks they may make a difference.

"Maybe blinkers are just what he needs," said Fitzsimmons. "After all he was actually only 3 years of age Wednesday and has much the curiosity of a small boy. The blinkers should keep his mind on the business at hand."

George Woolf will have the leg up on Can't Wait, the Myron Selznick entry which finished third in the Derby last week. Woolf captured this classic with Bold Venture in 1936 and rode Pompoon to a new track record in the Dixie handicap on Wednesday. Can't Wait's chances are well liked.

Menow Given a Chance.

Only one other horse is conceded a chance to romp home at the head of the field. He is Hal Headley's Menow, juvenile champion of 1937. Menow furnished the pace at the start of the Derby but his strength gave out and he could do no better than fourth. Dah He and Menow will run as an entry.

Fighting Fox has drawn the rail position with Bull Lea in the No. 2 slot. Then will come Menow, Dah He, Sun Egret, Dauber, Cravat, Hypocrite, Can't Wait, and Bull Whip.

In the event that all ten go to the post, it will be the richest 3 year old race in the history of the country, grossing $70,000. The winner's share will be approximately $52,500, nearly $7,000 more than War Admiral received for winning the race last year.

Antoni to Be Polish National Hero if He Whips O'Malley

BY FRENCH LANE.

Out for afternoon sparring practice comes the European lad who is to be Jimmy O'Malley's foe in Wednesday night's welterweight match in the Stadium between the champion boxers of Europe and the Chicago Golden Gloves title holders.

Chicago fight fans know Jimmy [the Unbeatable] O'Malley. He's the west side Irish lad who has delivered every time he has been called upon. His swashbuckling seizure of the Chicago Golden Gloves title, then the Inter-City Golden Gloves crown in New York and finally the National A. A. U. championship in Boston has made him little short of an idol.

While taking these three hurdles he has become the most talked about amateur in America, one of the most sensational ever developed.

Likewise everybody in Poland knows Antoni Kolczynski, the 20 year old lad from Warsaw, who will be Jimmy's foe Wednesday evening.

Every Inch a Fighter.

That's why Antoni's every move in the practice ring in the Medinah club is being followed so carefully. The tall, loose jointed, perfectly muscled young fellow lopes into the ring and squares away against his sparmate, a colored Chicago welterweight. This is the first time Antoni has ever seen a colored boy. That makes no difference. He tosses a bundle of rights and lefts to the spar boy's chin. The colored boy is groggy before the first round is well under way. He is in worse shape at the end of the second, although Antoni has been warned to take it easy.

Antoni has been busy traveling these last few months while winning the European welterweight championship.

He's whipped Ireland's Clancy twice, Norway's Anderson, Germany's Murach, Hungary's Benni, Italy's Petrie, and Denmark's Kops. All this while winning his place on Europe's team of champions. He whipped most of them in their own countries. Some, however, he whipped in Berlin, where the European tournament was held.

Chance to Become Hero.

Antoni is to become a Polish national hero if he whips O'Malley, for nine Polish boys in a row have been whipped in international competition in Chicago. In 1934 the Polish team fought Chicago's champions. The first Polish boy in the ring won. The next seven who crawled through the ropes were thumped. Chicago won that match, 7 to 1.

Last year two Polish boys were members of Europe's team which fought Chicago to a 4 to 4 tie. Both Polish boys were beaten.

That's the reason Antoni will become a national hero if he conquers the great O'Malley. His countrymen have become so concerned about it that they have sent Felix Stamm, most noted athletic conditioner in Warsaw, to prepare Antoni for his conquest. They have sent John Erdmann, ace sports reporter, here to write about everything Antoni does and says. He will cover Antoni's bout for all Warsaw newspapers.

Army Assignment Waits.

To be a hero is not the only reason Antoni has taken up boxing. As a private citizen, a boxing champion in Poland has greater earning power. In the army—and Antoni has a two year stretch awaiting him within a few months—it enables him to pick almost any post he wants.

"And also, yet, again, however," says Antoni haltingly, "if I whip O'Malley, I can be anything I want in the army except maybe perhaps the general."

Antoni was born in a village near Warsaw, but at the age of 3 months his family moved to the city and he has resided there since. His father, Konstanty Kolczynski, is a government chauffeur.

Antoni does not intend to burden himself with a lot of excess baggage on his return trip to Warsaw. He would like to have about $20 in United States currency in his pocket when he boards the boat for home, he says. And he would like to take home a pair of silk stockings to his best girl, which in his case happens to be his wife.

Of course, with the $20 and the pair of silk stockings he intends to take home Jimmy O'Malley's scalp.

Olli Lehtinen, flyweight member of the European team, will be honored tonight by the Finnish-American Athletic association and the Finnish Civic association of Chicago at a banquet in the Brevoort hotel. K. W. Kohtala will be toastmaster and the Rev. E. J. Hamalainen will be the principal speaker.

GO FOUR ROUNDS TODAY

Members of the Chicagoland Golden Gloves squad today will make their final effort to win a place on the team which will battle the European champions. All the boys, with the exception of those previously marked unfit for heavy duty, will box four rounds. From this series of bouts the coaching staf, John Behr, Paddy Kane, Fred Caserio, and Issy Kline, will just about make up their lineup, although in at least two weights the battle is so close that decision may be reserved until Monday.

Jesse Salzar, the Omaha flyweight, still is unable to drill, which may mean that a shift must be made in this division. Frank Kainrath, team captain and bantamweight champion, now is about recovered from his cold and there still is time for him to be ready to meet Ulderico Sergo, the Italian star.

Montgomery's Hand Broken.

An X-ray of Lloyd Montgomery's right hand, taken yesterday by Dr. William Rothman, revealed a slight fracture. This means that Dan Merritt of Cleveland, 1938 Golden Gloves champion and National A. A. U. titleholder, will meet Herbert Runge of Germany in the heavyweight bout of the international program.

All contestants will weigh in at noon Wednesday in the Medinah club. The first preliminary bout will start at 8:30 Wednesday night and the international ceremonies are scheduled for 9:45 o'clock.

They're Going, Going—

But there still are a number of good seats available for boxing's biggest show, the seventh international Golden Gloves matches in the Chicago Stadium next Wednesday night. Perhaps you already have your tickets, but if you have overlooked this important purchase of the boxing year—

Seats may still be obtained in The Tribune Public Service Offices, 1 South Dearborn street, and Tribune Tower. Address mail orders to the Golden Gloves Ticket Manager, Tribune Tower, Chicago. Check or money order should be made payable to the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc. The prices:

STRATTON HURLS 1 INNING AS SOX BEAT CLEVELAND

Three Run Rally in Ninth Brings Victory.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cleveland, O., May 13.—You properly may call the White Sox's Friday the Thirteenth march here today "The Parade of the Infirmary Brigade." And what a triumphant processional the Sox's 7 to 6 victory over the Cleveland Indians turned out to be, with Monty Stratton getting a ride in the main float in the rôle of winning pitcher and Johnny Whitehead tooting a mean aria on the calliope. And let's not omit another returning invalid, Jackie Hayes, a leading character in the proceedings.

Stratton, whose injury on March 27 in a Cub-Sox game in Los Angeles, the same day Luke Appling was laid low, has caused panic secondary only to that caused by Appling's incapacity, saw his first 1938 action in the American league after Thornton Lee had put on a big wilting act in the eighth.

Score Three in Ninth.

Monty's appearance was not a sensational success, but the mere fact that he was back in there was enough drama for the Sox. Monty allowed bases loaded by Lee to be cleared, but he got through the inning, though the score after the Indians had made four runs in that eighth was: Cleveland, 6; Chicago, 4.

Going into the ninth the Sox needed three runs to return Stratton the winner. And they got just three runs before Gee Walker and Rip Radcliff, noninvalids in the clinical sense, cut off the excitement with a couple of strikeouts.

Whitehead to the Rescue.

The Sox had to protect their lead through the ninth. With Clint Brown in the hospital, there was some question about who could do it. Out came Whitehead, who has not pitched a ball for almost three weeks, on ac-

Galento Acts Like a Fighter; Wins in Second

New York, May 13.—[Special.]—Tony Galento, who hopes to get into the ring with Joe Louis, made a long stride in that direction when he knocked out Nathan Mann of New Haven, Conn., in Madison Square Garden tonight before 9,190 who paid $25,669 in receipts.

The pudgy Galento, who looks like anything but a contender for the world heavyweight championship, disposed of Mann in 2 minutes and 4 seconds of the second round of what was scheduled as a 10 round bout.

The Orange, N. J., tavern owner thus improved on the performance of Louis, who last February required three rounds to dispose of Mann.

The battle, short as it was, was packed with action. The odds against Galento went as high a 4 to 1 at ring time— and from the way things went in the first round it seemed that the figures were justified, for Mann clearly outfought Galento and once nearly knocked Tony down.

This beating made little impression on Galento, who came out for the second round eagerly and in a few seconds floored Mann for a nine count with a left hook to the jaw. Mann seemed fresh on arising and prepared to fight Galento at long range, which was all right with Tony, for he released a right hand punch that described a wide arc before landing on Mann's chin. Once more Mann went to the canvas, and at the count of four he was in his knees. Referee Arthur Donovan counted up to 10, but the dazed New Haven fighter did not move.

Galento weighed 232 pounds and Mann 191¾.

Tony Lazzeri Hits Home Run.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Brilliant southpaw pitching yesterday by Larry French wasn't enough to earn his Cub pals a dividend on their day's work. They neglected to furnish him with anything more effective than a feeble offense, so after nine sparkling innings Larry wilted a bit in the tenth and Pittsburgh's Pirates hammered home enough runs to capture the series opener, 4 to 1.

French cracked the whip on his former mates for such a long stretch that there were visions of a victory by the shutout route. Trying to protect a one run lead given to him on a homer by Tony Lazzeri in the second, French rushed the Pirates through seven innings on a skimpy yield of three hits. But in the eighth he surrendered another safe tap, and it scored the tying run, because it came in the wake of a pass. Then in the tenth he was cracked for three more, another hit was produced against Rescuer Charley Root, and a cluster of three runs blossomed.

Brubaker Starts Trouble.

The finishing touch to French's performance was applied in this fashion: Brubaker opened the decisive inning with a single to center and Mace Brown, who finished what old Red Lucas started, furnished a sacrifice. Handley singled to left, and Brubaker counted. Lloyd Waner flied out, but Rizzo, who twice previously had singled, was intentionally passed. The strategy failed. Vaughan singled to left to score Handley. Root came in and Todd singled to left to send Rizzo home with the final run. Root then fanned Dickshot.

The Cubs can credit their failure to score runs to impotency when opportunity was beckoning. After Lazzeri had made his season's fifth homer in the second, there were Cubs on second and third before any one was retired. They didn't get home. In the sixth three of them died on the bases. In the eighth, which was Brown's first inning, two passes with one out availed nothing. It was the same with two hits with one out in the ninth.

Lazzeri's Fifth Homer.

The Cubs were both powerful and weak in the second inning. The power was provided by Lazzeri, who led off with the season's fifth homer into the left field bleacher. Galan followed with a single to right and took third on Marty's double in the same direction. That was the extent of the demonstration of power. Cavarretta was thrown out by Young, Hartnett was purposely passed, and the rally was nipped when French grounded into a double play.

There was another display of power and feebleness in the third, but this time the former was so limited that nobody crossed the plate. Hack opened the inning with a two base hit to the left center field wall. He hugged second while Lucas was tossing out Herman. Collins grounded to Young, and this was sufficient to furnish Hack with a hurried ride to thrd. Lucas refused to give Lazzeri another home run ball. Instead he slipped over a third strike.

Start Hitting French.

French's string of ten outs was broken in the fourth when Lloyd Waner singled to left. Rizzo caromed a hit off French's glove. Vaughan forced Rizzo on a tap to Herman and Todd grounded to Hack, forcing

BOBBY CONLEY SETS PACE FOR AURORA JOCKIES

Brings in Gold Mesh for His Twelfth Victory.

Bobby Conley took the riding leadership of the Aurora meeting by booting home Gold Mesh in the featured race, the Clifton Webb purse, yesterday. It was Conley's twelfth victory of the meeting.

Gold Mesh, a former stake running mare, which is owned by Mrs. A. M. Creech, was well placed from the start but let Sir Gawaine set the pace. When called upon she had no difficulty in moving to the front. Little Drift finished second and Fanfern third. The five and a half furlongs were run in 1:05 4-5. Gold Mesh was favorite, paying $5.20.

Sprinters in the three year old division have their choice of two handicaps on today's card. The three year olds can go for the $1,000 purse in the Glen Ellyn handicap and have it all to themselves. Or they can compete with older horses as well in the $1,500 Oak Park handicap. Both events are at six furlongs.

Prince Argo Well Backed.

Prince Argo, Allanwood, Fairflax, Dolly Val, and Roguish Kitty were named for both events. Overnight entries for the Glen Ellyn totaled nine, while seventeen were placed in the Oak Park.

It is Butsey Hernandez' Prince Argo, three year old son of Happy Argo, which may go to the post the favorite regardless of the handicap he chooses to run in. Prince Argo won the Elgin handicap at five and a half furlongs last Saturday in remarkably fast time. Naturally he will be a more of a choice in the Glen Ellyn but the New Orleans turfman is more likely to send him after the Oak Park. Prince Argo is working his way up to an engagement in the $12,000 Illinois Derby, two weeks from today.

Other Derby candidates on the program include Alf Tarn's Pelter, Mrs. Clarence Dale's Allanwood, and L. M. Severson's Spanit.

John Bane Wins.

In the Oak Park handicap, Prince Argo's main troubles are expected to originate with Clarence Davison's Chance Ray, the Tarn entry of Faust and Rushaway, Mrs. A. M. Creech's Reaping, and Frank Seremba's Lucky Ducky. The race is wide open enough to please all but the chalk players who like even-money and odds-on choices.

John Bane and Hornet accounted for Aurora's daily double yesterday, a $260.80 payoff. John Bane, racing for William A. Mikel, paid $58.20 in taking the first half. Hornet was one of the well backed favorites in his half and got up under a drive to defeat Gale Way in the last few yards. Hornet paid $9.40. Jockys J. Linton and A. Bodiou were the winning boys.

Wild Phara, owned by Mrs. A. M. Creech, broke her leg during the running of the first race and had to be destroyed. Wild Phara was a daughter of Pharamond II.-Wild Polly.

JOHN BANE in contention all the way closed fast in the stretch and won going away. POPULAR VOTE began fast, dropped back, then also entered contention in the stretch drive but could not hold the winner. OH RAY moved up with a rush in the middle of the stretch, seemed ready to go into command when he suddenly gave way.

HORNET, away well, followed the pacemaker under slight restraint, was put to a drive in the stretch and outfinished GALE WAY in a close finish. GALE WAY broke quickly, set a fast pace and weakened in the last seventy yards. ROYAL COUNTESS, breaking well, was in trouble on the rail throughout and closed full of run when clear in the stretch.

WITCHSWALL, alert at the barrier, was taken under restraint soon after the start, came to the outside in the stretch and under stout urging won going away. WAZA WAKA followed the early pace, went to the front at the stretch turn but was not good enough. TELL, lacking racing room in the early stages, closed with a rush when clear to outfinish GRAND SINGER.

FIFTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse $700. Net value to winner, $525; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25.

COMMUNIST followed the early pace, went to the front midway of the stretch and had enough in reserve to stall off LIFELIKE. The latter, on the outside all the way, began slower than usual, closed with good speed and was wearing the winner down with every stride. ABDICATOR began slowly and was going fastest of all at the finish.

GOLD MESH, reserved off the pace but never far back, responded well to strenuous urging in the stretch and drew out to win with something in reserve. LITTLE DRIFT moved into contention on the outside after going a quarter and held on gamely in drive. FANFERN began slowly, was forced to lose ground going around horses and weakened.

WAR JEST, cleverly handled and rushed into the lead in the first quarter, continued gamely under strong urging and held FLORENCE B. F. safe in the drive. The latter, never far back but forced to lose ground while going around horses, closed with a rush. KELT saved ground from the start and finished strongly.

Becker Offers a Tip or Two to Canoeists

BY BOB BECKER.

"Where may I rent a canoe on the Des Plaines river?"

"Which part of the river do you recommend for a short trip?"

These are two of the many questions that have come to us since we investigated the canoeing possibilities of the Des Plaines several days ago. Here are some practical suggestions for all canoeists who are thinking about swinging a paddle in the Des Plaines:

One of the best places to get canoes is the Winnahke Canoe club at Maywood. The Winnahke club is a noncommercial organization of canoeists who have been enjoying the Des Plaines for many years. The members have a nice little clubhouse on the river bank.

Start North from Maywood.

If you want to talk canoeing or rent a canoe for a day you'd better write J. C. Maginn, commodore of the club, 514 North 1st avenue, Maywood, who says his organization will be glad to help outdoor fans with their canoeing problems. Be sure to inclose a stamped, addressed envelope when you write.

From Maywood north for about 8 or 8½ miles there is a pretty stretch of river without any obstructions. This is the part of the river that is most accessible to the Winnahke club members. We do not recommend the stretch of river from Maywood down through Lyons unless there is a lot of water in the river. And even with plenty of water the portage in the town of Lyons is not easy. We found that part of the river very rocky.

Check the Water Levels.

Without a good head of water the old canoe takes quite a bumping. And it isn't as attractive scenically as the upper river or the lower part of the stream. From the Lawndale avenue bridge downstream you have an inviting sweep of water through the country. Starting at the Lawndale avenue bridge and heading for Lemont and Lockport means you have to transport the canoe by truck to that point.

The amount of water in the Des Plaines plays an important part in the success of a canoe trip. Due to lack of heavy rains recently the water is none too high right now.

37,000 ATTEND FIRST SESSIONS OF GOLF SCHOOL

Teachers Enthusiastic; 3d Lesson Tuesday.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

A total of 37,000 lessons were given during the first two classes of the sixth annual Tribune free golf school, which opened this week on the four courses of the Chicago park district. Members of the Illinois section of the Professional Golfers' association, who are giving the school's instructions, estimated that 17,000 men, women and children turned out on Tuesday night for the first lesson, in spite of temperatures which threatened to drop to the 40 mark. Thursday night's second lesson saw an enrollment of 20,000.

Attendance in these numbers in view of the chilly weather is another testimonial to the growing enthusiasm of Chicagoans for golf. They have come to realize in the six year span of the school, pioneer of group instruction, that lessons in the A. B. C's of the game, as taught by the P. G. A. members, is the best foundation of a sound golf game.

Pros Praise School.

The head instructors at the four courses have broken their classes up into two sections, one being devoted to actual teaching, and the other to answering questions put by the students.

The enthusiasm of the students is matched only by that of the P. G. A. members conducting the classes, Lew Waldron of Mohawk, who is stationed at Columbus park; Harry Adams of Elgin, making his debut as lecturer at Jackson park; Jock Anderson of Techny Fields, who has returned to his stand at the Diversey course in Lincoln park, and Tom Walsh of Westgate Valley, who is handling the Marquette park classes.

Next Lesson Is Next Tuesday.

The third lesson of the school will be held on the same four courses at the same hour—7 p. m.—on Tuesday night, and the fourth and last of the regular classes will be held on Thursday night. If you missed the first two lessons, do not hesitate to attend next week's classes, for each of the pros in charge plans to review the topics of the first two lessons—the grip and the stance. Next week's two lessons will be devoted to the swing.

At the conclusion of Thursday's lesson, the P. G. A. teachers will choose the best two pupils in each division—men's, women's, boys', and girls'—and send them on to the finals of the school, to be held at the Diversey course in Lincoln park on Sunday afternoon, May 22. These 32 prize graduates will then vie for prizes to be presented by THE TRIBUNE and the Chicago district golf association.

Pirates Win in 10th When French Fades

Vaughan for the third out. Another hit forced French to put on a little pressure in the fifth. Dickshot opened with a single which Lazzeri touched but couldn't hold. Young forced Dickshot and stole second, but French fanned Brubaker and Lucas. French varied the procedure by walking Rizzo and Vaughan with two gone in the sixth, but his generosity didn't get him in trouble.

After experiencing two barren innings the Cubs had a little fun in the sixth, but it netted them nothing more than exercise. Herman opened the inning with a single to center and was bunted to second by Collins. Lazzeri expired swinging. Four wide pitches put Galan on base. Marty filled the bases by singling to deep short, but Cavarretta lined into Lloyd Waner's hands.

Pirates Tie Score.

French emerged successfully from a slight jam caused by a pass with none out in the seventh. He wasn't successful dodging a similar situation in the eighth and the 1 to 1 tie was the result. French walked Tobin, who led off as pinch batter for Lucas. Jensen came forth to do the running for Tobin and went to second on Handley's bunt. Lloyd Waner ripped off a high powered bounder on which Lazzeri threw him out. Then Rizzo walloped a long single into center and Jensen skipped home. Vaughan popped to Collins for the third out.

A hit, which is always important, was all the Cubs needed to get a run across the plate in the eighth. Brown started his relief job by walking Herman. After Collins had contributed a sacrifice bunt, Lazzeri also walked. Nothing happened because Galan fanned and Herman was doubled trying to steal third.

Waste Two Hits.

The Cubs had another opening in the ninth after Marty had fanned. Cavarretta singled to left and Hartnett knocked down Brown with a one base drive off the pitcher's left knee. After reviving from the wallop, Brown got through the inning on French's sacrifice and Hack's liner to Rizzo.

The Cubs passed out quietly in their half of the tenth. Herman led off with a roller which Young fumbled. Collins flied to Lloyd Waner and it all ended when Lazzeri bounced to Vaughan for a double play.

◆

Jim Tobin, a right hander whom Manager Pie Traynor of the Pirates regards as a future great, will be employed today in the second game of the series with the Cubs today. Bill Lee will work for the Cubs, Manager Grimm having changed his mind about giving him a vacation in which to recover from his five successive knockouts.

◆

For the first time in their careers, according to the dopesters who keep record of such things, Paul Waner and Gus Suhr, Pirate hitting stars, were on the bench yesterday because of failure to make use of their bats.

◆

Tony Lazzeri's homer in the second inning yesterday gave him a string of six successive hits. In his last appearance Wednesday he singled. On Thursday he doubled before piling on three singles. A bad chest cold may keep Lazzeri out of action today.

◆

Mace Stanley Brown is a handy fellow to have around. His finishing act yesterday gave him his season's fifth victory, all gained in the same way. His only start was against the Giants and it resulted in his only defeat to date.

◆

The Pirates won thirteen of their twenty-two games with the Cubs last season and to all appearances plan to repeat the dose. They have whipped the Cubs three times out of four this year.

Dietrich to Pitch for Sox Against Cleveland Today

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cleveland, O., May 13.—Bill Dietrich will pitch for the White Sox against Cleveland tomorrow. Earl Whitehill, aided by Denny Galehouse, was the winning pitcher against the Sox in Comiskey park on April 26 and will try to do as well tomorrow.

◆

It was the first ladies' day of the season in Cleveland. A bouquet was presented to Oscar Vitt, new Indian manager. As he received the flowers Oscar lifted his cap and smiled fetchingly at 10,000 girls who packed the upper decks. And did they holler to the handsome manager!

The playing of Jackie Hayes was the result of a satisfactory workout before the game. Jackie, who pulled a leg tendon in the last Sox home game, played part of the game in Yankee stadium last Sunday. Otherwise he has been on the side lines continuously.

Sunday's game will be played in the Cleveland stadium. The Sox usually are more successful there than in the snug little league park where the Indians play their weekday games.

Stratton Hurls 1 Inning as Sox Beat Indians

count of sore throat, sore knee, and one thing and another.

Bad News Hale supplied an easy fly to Kreevich. Roy Weatherly flied to Walker. Big John threw three wide ones to Earl Averill. Then Johnny came in with three beauties. Averill whiffed. The game was over. There was a heavy aroma of arnica as Hayes, Stratton, and Whitehead proceeded to the clubhouse. But it was sweet essence to the suffering Mr. Dykes and his entire cast.

Sox Score Four in Second.

In the second Owen singled and got to third in a perfect execution of the hit and run play in which Hayes rammed a single through the shortstop position when Webb ran to second to cover on the running Owen. The runners held their bases while Sewell fouled to Trosky and Hayes moved to second while Lee bounced out to Hudlin. Berger walked, filling the bases. Kreevich caromed a single off Hale's glove, Owen scoring after which Steinbacher doubled to center, Hayes and Berger scoring and Kreevich stopping at third. Kreevich scored and Steinbacher reached third on a wild pitch, but the inning ended with Walker's tap to Webb.

The Indians halved the Sox advantage in their end of the second inning. After Solters had flied to Walker, Averill singled to center. Then Trosky ladled a homer over the right field wall several feet to the left of the 290 foot marker, scoring behind Averill. Berger threw out Keltner and Pytlak flied to Steinbacher.

Indians Attack in Eighth.

A hit, an error, a wild pitch, and an Indian brainstorm weren't enough to produce a run for the Sox in the seventh. With one out Kreevich beat out a bouncer to Keltner and went on to second when Keltner overthrew first. Mike got to third on a wild pitch. Steinbacher tapped to Hale, whose throw to Pytlak apparently had Kreevich trapped between home and third. Pytlak ignored Kreevich and threw to Trosky in time to get Steinbacher while Kreevich retreated to third. Walker ended the threat with a liner to Webb.

Hale opened the home eighth with a single to center and Solters walked after a three and two count. Averill doubled along the right foul line, Hale scoring, and Solters stopping at third. Trosky was given an intentional pass, filling the bases. Stratton replaced Lee and Weatherly went to third to run for Solters. Monty got two strikes past Keltner who then flied to Kreevich, Weatherly scoring the tying run. Pytlak walked on four pitches, the bases again were loaded. Heath batted for Hudlin and singled to center, scoring Averill and Trosky, Pytlak stopping at second. Webb flied to Kreevich. Campbell was called out on strikes.

That Big Ninth Inning.

Heving was the Cleveland pitcher at the start of the ninth. Thompson, batting for Sewell, walked. Rosenthal batted for Stratton and singled off Hale's glove, Thompson sliding into second. Berger failed in one attempt to bunt and then singled to center, scoring Thompson, Rosenthal stopping at second. Galehouse replaced Heving. Kreevich bunted and forced Rosenthal at third. Steinbacher whacked a single through Webb, Berger scoring the tying run ahead of Webb's throw to the plate. On the throw Kreevich ran for third and Pytlak threw wild to Keltner, Kreevich scoring and Steinbacher reaching third. Walker, who has been flirting with a flopperoo classification for some time, whiffed and Radcliff looked at a third strike to leave Steinbacher on third.

Indiana Beats Purdue; Takes Lead in Big 10

Bloomington, Ind., May 13.—[Special.]—Indiana took the lead in the Big Ten baseball title race today by winning, 3 to 2, over Purdue in a twelve inning game. The two Hoosier rivals previously had been tied for the conference leadership with four victories and one defeat each.

Pitcher Bill Smith scored the winning run for Indiana on a double by Second Baseman Ernest Andres. Purdue scored both of its runs in the sixth inning. The two teams will meet again tomorrow. Score:

ILLINOIS, 10; MAROONS, 5.

Successive homers to right field by First Baseman Callahan and Left Fielder Berner in the seventh inning helped Illinois to a 10 to 5 victory over Chicago's Maroons on the Midway yesterday. The two teams will meet again today in Champaign.

The Illini, who stayed in the Big Ten title race by virtue of their victory, took an early lead by hammering Paul Amundsen for five runs in the second. Chicago came back with four runs in the sixth on three singles, a walk, and a double. Then Callahan and Berner hit their home runs to clinch victory.

The triumph gave Illinois a record of four victories and two losses in conference play. Score:

FREIGHT TRAFIC DIPS COUNTER TO SEASONAL TREND

Loadings for Last Week Total 536,140 Cars.

Freight trafic in the week ended May 7 registered a contra-seasonal decline of 6,935 cars, or 1.3 per cent, from the preceding week, but the decline from year ago car loadings was smaller than in either of the two preceding weeks, according to the report issued yesterday by the Association of American Railroads.

There were 536,140 cars of revenue freight loaded in the week ended May 7, a decrease of 227,355 cars, or 29.8 per cent, from loadings in the corresponding week of 1937. In the week ended April 30, loadings were down 234,753 cars, or 30.2 per cent, from corresponding 1937 figures, and in the week ended April 23 the decrease was 232,481 cars, or 30.7 per cent.

Rate of Decline Narrows.

In comparison with corresponding 1936 figures, this year's loadings showed a decline of 132,726 cars, or 19.8 per cent in the May 7 week, compared with 19.1 per cent in the April 30 week, and 21.4 per cent in the April 23 week.

Principal decreases in the week ended May 7, compared with the preceding week, were in shipments of miscellaneouse freight, grain, and ore. Grain, however, continued to be the one classification of freight moving in larger quantities than a year ago. Coal shipments declined slightly from the week ended April 30, but were off less from a year ago than in the April 30 week.

Three Groups Show Increases.

Small increases from the April 30 week were shown in movement of less than car load merchandise, coke, and live stock.

The association's classified report, together with comparisons, follows:

	Wk. ended May 7.	—Change from— Prev. wk.	Yr. ago.
Miscellaneous	225,005—	2,573—	92,635+

The Dow-Jones seasonally adjusted loadings index declined 2.3 points to 65.9.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farms

By Bob Becker

Umbrellas Are Out.

May 13, 1938.

ANY city dweller who lived in the country during his or her childhood days is bound to be familiar with the cry, "The umbrellas are out!" When referring to the outdoors and wild flowers this statement about umbrellas has nothing to do with those accessories people sometimes carry to ward off a spring shower. On the contrary, boys and girls who hike through the May woods and call out about umbrellas are talking about the common mandrake or May apple, which has large green leaves so placed above the single white flower that they seem to provide an umbrella-like roof for the entire plant.

Flower of the Mandrake or May apple.

Of Commanding Size.

During the past few weeks the mandrakes have been exposing their green umbrellas in many Chicagoland woods. In some places it is one of the most familiar wild flowers as well as an arresting one. The stalk may grow 18 inches high, the plant takes up a lot of room with its large leaves, and its flower has a very strong if not a rather sickish scent.

We have been watching the steady growth of the mandrakes on the Du Page county experimental farm for several weeks. The first sign of this sturdy plant's development is a green shoot which thrusts its way through the dead leaves. The construction of this first growth is interesting because the big green leaves of the plant are wrapped tightly around the stalk. As the plant grows higher the leaves keep pace in their development by gradually expanding and opening. By the time the umbrella-like leaves have unfolded you can see a small green bud on the plant. It is placed at the fork of the stalk.

Blossom Becomes Apple.

From the time that bud appears until the opening of the flower the mandrake seems to be in a hurry to get its job of blossoming done as quickly as possible. A little later this white and strongly scented blossom turns into a small apple, which sometimes is called a wild lemon or hog apple. The name hog apple is given to the fruit because hogs eat them. Some people like to munch these wild May apples when very ripe. But we can't recommend them as a fruit. To us they have a very unappetizing taste and odor.

Although the apple is edible, it is a good idea to leave the rest of the plant alone since both leaves and root of the mandrake are poisonous. The handling of these parts of the plant is a job for the chemist since a very powerful drug [podophyllum] is extracted from them and used in medicine. The value of the mandrake in certain kinds of illness was known to the American Indians, who cooked some of the leaves and roots and administered the water in which they were boiled.

RETAIL SALES IN MOST CITIES BELOW YEAR AGO

New York, May 13.—[Special.]—Sales of merchandise in the nation's leading centers of distribution remained steady to 3 per cent lower last week, with frost, cold and rain diminishing the interest of shoppers in spring wares, Dun & Bradstreet reported today.

Moreover, the agency's weekly summary of industrial conditions revealed little to suggest an upturn of activity in the near future. Textile production was reported unimproved, woolen and rayon mills maintaining last week's schedules. In the south more cotton goods mills curtailed operations or shut down entirely. Shoe orders failed to expand.

"Decline in estimated volume of retail distribution from dollar value for the corresponding 1937 week widened to 5 to 12 per cent," the agency reported. "Minor increases for the week predominated in the middle west, and bulked sufficiently large to shorten the drop in retail sales from the 1937 comparative to 10 to 20 per cent."

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK

Further advances were registered in the market for hogs yesterday. Strong to 10 cents higher prices were paid for the bulk of the supply.

Packers reported a further increase in the demand for pork and another rise in the wholesale price. Fresh pork loins went to butcher shops steady to 50 cents higher at $16.00 to $20.50 per hundred pounds.

Another gain was scored in the trade for slaughter lambs, with all buyers competing for supplies.

Cattle values also increased yesterday. Receipts were extremely light and too small to test quotations for all classes, but the sales that were made were called 10 to 15 cents above the preceding session.

More About Farming.

Modern American agriculture employs more than 27,000,000 persons, has capital valued in excess of $50,000,000,000, indirectly contributes two and one-half billion dollars annually to the wages of urban employés, provides one-eighth of the railroads' total tonnage, pays one-fifth of the total cost of government, and furnishes manufacturers with an annual six billion dollar market. It contributes one-sixth of the national income, and American farms and property make up one-fifth of the intangible national wealth.

There are sixty-nine agriculture land grant colleges in the United States. Besides serving as experimental laboratories for development of new methods and crops, these schools have trained 14,000 workers in the fields of agriculture and farm research.

In recent years attention has been focused on problems of transporting great quantities of farm products to markets, on better marketing facilities, and on protective measures insuring the American farmer fair competition with foreign products. The federal government is appropriating large sums each year for the development of inland waterways and highways, both farmer aids.

EXPECT LOWER LAKE RATE ON CORN EXPORTS

American Lines to Meet Canadian Reduction.

New York, May 13.—[Special.]—A reduction of 1½ cents per bushel on American corn moving from Great Lakes ports to New York for export to the United Kingdom and the European continent will be effected shortly to offset the low rate quoted on the same freight for movement to Montreal, it was learned here today.

The present rate of 6½ cents to New York threatened to result in diversion of most of the American exports to Montreal and conferences of shipping and port groups recently have been summoned to effect the reduction. The only detail remaining to be determined is the manner in which the change will be made.

Predict Large Corn Exports.

The American corn crop for export this year will be the largest in many years, according to exporters. Recent figures of the department of commerce indicated that it would exceed the high mark of 41,000,000 bushels moved in 1928-'29, and estimates here today ranged up to 100,000,000 bushels.

The large American export crop is available at a time when the corn supplies abroad are at an extremely low ebb, and the heavy demand in foreign markets for American grain has encouraged American exporters and ship lines operating from American ports to expect a very profitable season.

Operators of Canadian boats on the Great Lakes recently, however, committed themselves to transport about 20,000,000 bushels from lake ports to Montreal at 5 cents per bushel. Export interests here said this rate, which was unusually low, was quoted principally because the volume of Canadian wheat in transit was small.

Corn Bought by Britons.

The shipment of 20,000,000 bushels had been bought by British interests, with the establishment of a 5 cent rate on that consignment the continued movement of American corn to foreign markets by way of Montreal appeared certain unless immediate action were taken.

The decision to meet the Canadian rate quickly was made and the mechanics are now being arranged. The American interests must decide whether to make the rate reduction on the movement on the Great Lakes, the barge canal, or on the high seas. New York and Albany are expected to obtain large shipments if the rate is adjusted properly.

The American corn will move from Illinois and the states on the lower lakes, according to exporters, and will enter the continent largely by way of French ports and Rotterdam.

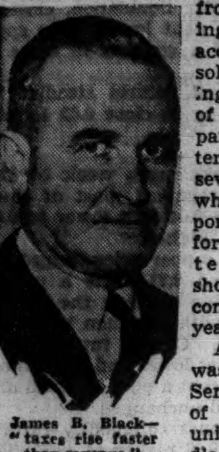
UTILITY SYSTEM EARNINGS SHOW LITTLE DECLINE

Reports Issued for Twelve Months.

Earnings of utility systems for the 12 months ended March 31 showed little decline from the preceding 12 months, according to consolidated earnings statements of utility companies issued yesterday. However, several utilities which also reported separately for the first quarter of 1938 showed declines, compared with a year ago.



James B. Black—“taxes rise faster than revenue.”

An exception was the Public Service company of Oklahoma, a unit of the Middle West system, which had higher earnings in the first quarter and for the 12 months. Lower profits for the first three months were shown by three units in the American Water Works and Electric system: West Penn Electric company, West Penn Power company, and the Monongahela West Penn Public Service company.

Two Show Slight Declines.

For the 12 months to March 31, only slight decreases in net income were reported by the United Light and Power company and by the Pacific Gas and Electric company.

Bowman-Biltmore Hotels corporation net income in April fell to $11,927, compared with $42,811 in April, 1937. For the first four months, the company had a profit of $65,070, against $127,673 in the corresponding 1937 period.

Interstate Bakeries corporation, Kansas City, Mo., showed a gain in net income to $142,098 for the 16 weeks ended April 23, compared with $52,612 for the first 16 weeks of 1937, R. L. Narziger, president, announced.

Public Service of Oklahoma net income in the first quarter increased to $351,888, compared with $296,862 in the first three months of last year. For the 12 months to March 31, the company had net income of $1,432,435, against $1,339,269 in the preceding 12 months.

United Light-Power Report.

Consolidated net income of United Light and Power company and subsidiaries for the 12 months ended March 31 totaled $4,938,418, equal after one year's preferred dividend requirements to 38 cents on combined A and B common shares. This compared with $5,050,539, or 41 cents a share, in the 12 months to March 31, 1937.

James B. Black, president of Pacific Gas and Electric, told stockholders that the increase of 3.9 per cent in gross operating revenues to $100,864,803 for the 12 months to March 31 was more than offset by a rise in operating expenses, depreciation and taxes of $6,627,000, or $2,842,000 more than the dollar gain in gross revenues. He explained, however, that the consequent drop in net operating revenues was largely offset by a reduction of $2,251,000 in fixed charges on bonded debt.

The resulting net income after all charges amounted to $24,756,754, or $2.68 a common share, compared with $25,202,035, or $2.75 a share, in the preceding 12 months.

Lake Steamship Company Cuts Fleet to 31 Vessels

Cleveland, O., May 13.—(AP)—Pittsburgh Steamship company, subsidiary of the United States Steel corporation, announced today its 1938 ore carrying fleet on the Great Lakes will consist of thirty-one vessels instead of the thirty-seven as announced last week and the forty as originally planned a month ago. Initial sailings are scheduled for next week. The low rate of steel mill operations was given as the reason for the reduced fleet.

Bids 13s on Friday, 13th; Loses Contract by $13,000

Atlanta, Ga., May 13.—(AP)—Bidding on Friday, May 13, for a contract for work on the Thirteenth street bridge over the Savannah river in Augusta, Wannamaker & Wells, Inc., of Orangeburg, S. C., submitted the figure $113,113.13. The bid failed to win the contract. It was about $13,000 above the lowest figure.

11 Companies Request Loans of Four Million

Inquiries for loans totaling more than $4,000,000 were received from eleven corporations on the first day after Dovenmuehle, Inc., Chicago mortgage house, announced that it was ready to make industrial loans ranging from $50,000 to $2,000,000, the company announced yesterday.

The Dovenmuehle company represents an insurance company [its name was not disclosed], which is seeking to invest a part of its idle funds in sound industrial loans for ten year periods.

No applications for loans were accepted yesterday pending investigations of the financial standings and histories of the companies seeking the loans. An official of the Dovenmuehle company said that the eleven companies appeared to be substantial concerns.

Package Firms Ask $2,000,000.

Three packaging enterprises asked loans totaling about $2,000,000, two manufacturers of home equipment want loans totaling $700,000, two merchandising companies $600,000, one brewery $300,000, an iron and steel concern $250,000, one ice cream manufacturer $150,000, and one bottling and pasteurizing enterprise $100,000.

The loan inquiries came mostly from directors or officers of the various companies, with a few made by attorneys or brokers. The companies were divided about equally between those located in Chicago and those outside the city. However, nine of the companies are in Illinois.

Small Industries Complained.

Small industries have been complaining that they have not been able to obtain private capital and the offer made by Dovenmuehle is regarded as an answer to that demand. The insurance companies have been finding difficulty in employing their idle funds safely and profitably.

Dovenmuehle, which has represented insurance companies in the past in placing their idle funds in residential properties, is acting as go-between for the insurance company and middle western industries.

Loans are limited to companies well established, with sound finances and located in cities of 200,000 or more population.

BELGIAN MONEY VALUE FALLS AS CABINET QUITS

The Belgian belga slumped 0.07 of a cent to 16.83 cents in foreign exchange dealings yesterday following resignation of the Belgian cabinet because of financial difficulties with the Belgian government. The decline erased most of the recent recovery of Belgian money in terms of the dollar and marked resumption of the downward trend of the Belgian unit since devaluation of the French franc May 5.

Quotations on belgas in futures markets were nominal because no bids were made. In New York the nominal quotations placed the discount on one month belga contracts at 0.77 of a cent, compared with 0.45 cent Thursday. The discount on three month contracts widened to 1.06 cents from 0.70 cent Tuesday.

American money also gained in terms of most other leading European currencies except the French franc, which advanced 0.001-16 of a cent to 2.80 cents. The British pound closed ¼ of a cent lower at $4.97⅜, the Netherlands guilder 0.02 of a cent lower at 55.38 cents and the Swiss franc 0.01 of a cent lower at 22.83 cents.

COAL BOARD GETS PROTEST AGAINST REVEALING COSTS

Washington, D. C., May 13.—(AP)—The bituminous coal commission disclosed today that it had met trouble from a new quarter in fixing minimum soft coal prices.

Eight producers, including the Pittsburgh Coal company, a Mellon interest and one of the largest coal companies in the country, have protested against the commission's proposal to make public details of the industry's operating costs.

The Guffey coal control act, under which the commission operates, provides that the government fixed minimum prices shall be based on production costs.

Federal courts declared the first set of prices the commission fixed was illegal because the commission refused to make public operating costs, company by company.

Whether the Guffey act specifies that company-by-company costs should be made public is a question in dispute. The commission has ordered a public hearing May 25 to thresh out this issue.

F. E. KRUESI ELECTED HEAD OF MIDDLE WEST SERVICE COMPANY

The Middle West corporation yesterday announced the election of Frank E. Kruesi as president of the Middle West Service company, a subsidiary acting as a service organization for companies in the Middle West system. Kruesi has been executive vice president of Middle West Service, of which P. L. Smith, president of Middle West corporation, is chairman of the board. Prior to Kruesi's appointment, the presidency was vacant in the service company.

Kruesi, who was an engineering graduate more than 30 years ago from the University of Wisconsin, first got training in the utility business with Commonwealth Edison company and Public Service Company of Northern Illinois. He has been affiliated with Middle West corporation and its predecessor, Middle West Utilities company, since the start of the organization 26 years ago. He served as vice president of Middle West Utilities before the reorganization in 1935.

Grain Prices Advance on Buying Wave

CHICAGO GRAIN FUTURES

Closing prices on the July delivery of principal grains on the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday:

	Yesterday.	Thursday.	Yr. ago.
Wheat	$ .79	$ .78½	$1.16⅝
Corn	.59½	.59¼	1.17
Oats	.27½	.27½	.43⅜
Rye	.58½	.57⅝	1.00¼
Soy beans	.91⅝	.92	1.72⅜

Aggressive buying of wheat and corn futures by commission houses and short sellers advanced the May deliveries of the two grains to the highest prices in more than two weeks and closing trades were at the top. Net gains on wheat ranged from ⅝ to 1 cent, and corn was ⅛ to ½ cent a bushel higher, with the May contract leading the upturn. Oats and rye were somewhat higher, largely in sympathy with other grains.

Although there was nothing in the general run of the news to account for the upturn in wheat, the failure of the market to decline despite continued favorable crop reports and lack of export demand has caused operators to go slow in pressing the bear side.

Brokers Foresee Inflation.

Passage of the pump priming bill by the house was regarded by some brokers as an inflation omen and there was some buying of grain and lard futures on this belief. Lard closed 5 to 22½ cents per 100 pounds higher.

A few reports of dust storms were received from parts of the Canadian northwest, and Chicago crop experts told of a somewhat spotted outlook for the wheat crop in Texas and Oklahoma.

No improvement was shown in the foreign demand for North American cash wheat and only small sales were reported.

Foreign Markets Irregular.

Winnipeg wheat futures closed ⅛ to 1¼ cents higher but Liverpool was ⅛ to ½ cent a bushel lower.

Buying of corn futures attributed to houses with export connections was reported to be largely responsible for strength in that grain. Although the country sold an estimated 500,000 bushels of cash corn for deferred shipment, shipping interests and industries readily absorbed the offerings and bid for more.

NASH TO DRIVE ON 'SALES MEAN JOBS' PRINCIPLE

The Nash-Kelvinator corporation next week will make Lincoln, Neb., a “proving ground” for a national salesmen's “crusade movement” to “prove in Lincoln and surrounding territory that sound, persistent selling methods are effective today, as they always have been,” George W. Mason, president, announced yesterday. The purpose is to help restore employment, purchasing power, and prosperity, he said.

This activity, starting May 18, Mason said, will be the forerunner of a nation-wide campaign based on the principle that “sales mean jobs.” Explaining the program in relation to the current business slump, Mason said:

“The task, as we see it, is turning the business wheel past dead center—and we believe this is the salesman's job.”

April Building Declines from March and Year Ago

New York, May 13.—(AP)—Building and engineering contracts awarded in the thirty-seven states east of the Rocky mountains in April amounted to $222,016,000, the F. W. Dodge corporation reported today. This total was 2 per cent under March and 18 per cent under April last year, the peak month of 1937. The April dollar total for residential building, $74,577,000, dropped 6 per cent from March and 31 per cent from April, 1937. Public works contracts, amounting to $57,631,000 in April, increased 18 per cent over March and 27 per cent over the corresponding month last year.

More than 50,000 visitors attended the Western Electric company's “open house,” which closed last night, according to company officials.

FRANCE WILL OFFER NEW DEFENSE LOAN OF FIVE BILLION FRANCS

PARIS, May 13.—(AP)—Finance Minister Paul Marchandeau announced today the government would launch a 5,000,000,000 franc [140,000,000] national defense loan next Monday to finance growing armament burden.

Marchandeau said the loan would take the form of thirty year national defense bonds to bear 5 per cent interest. This will be the first installment of a series of loans which financial quarters expect to reach a total of 15,000,000,000 francs [$420,000,000].

The long delayed loan, which was put off until Premier Edouard Daladier's reconstruction program could provide a favorable atmosphere for public subscription, offered buyers of the bonds an extraordinary “capital guarantee.” This was explained by Marchandeau, who said the bonds would be repaid in full upon request of bearers after May 15, 1941.

Marchandeau promised the funds would go directly into the independent national defense fund for use exclusively to meet the armaments budgets.

SHIELDS TO HEAD EXCHANGE PUBLIC RELATION GROUP

New York, May 13.—[Special.]—Paul V. Shields, of Shields & Co., will be the new chairman of the public relations committee of the New York Stock Exchange, that body decided today in an informal organization meeting. R. Lawrence Oakley, of Maynard, Oakley & Lawrence, will be vice chairman.

A similar meeting was held by the committee on floor procedure, which named Robert L. Stott, of Wagener, Stott & Co., as chairman, and Benjamin H. Brinton, of Brinton & Co., as vice chairman.

These committee officers will be formally named Monday, when the new administration takes office. Other committees are expected to hold meetings before the first meeting of the board of governors Monday afternoon. At that time assignments of the members of the stock exchange's permanent staf will be made by William McC. Martin Jr., the acting president.

At the meeting on Monday Martin is expected to name his choices for “public representatives” on the public relations and stock list committees. The new constitution provides for the presence of outsiders on these committees, entitled to advise and deliberate, but not to vote.

U. S. IMPORTS 706,979 OUNCES OF MEXICAN SILVER

Washington, D. C., May 13.—[Special.]—The United States imported 706,979 ounces of Mexican silver valued at $303,317 in the week ended May 6, despite the recent suspension of the silver purchase agreement between this country and Mexico, the commerce department reported today. American mining concerns operating in Mexico are believed to have shipped most of the silver.

The commerce department reported that gold imports for the week ended May 6 totaled $3,141,644, compared with $15,298,924 in the week ended April 29. Silver imports were $1,019,683, including $44,404 from Mexico, compared with $2,268,245 in the preceding week.

Exports of gold totaled $51,020, compared with $75,026 in the week ended April 29, and silver exports were $73,869, compared with exports of $118,084 in the April 29 week.

Many Credit Men Expect Business Gain This Fall

New York, May 13.—(AP)—The National Association of Credit Men, reporting today on a survey of its members, said more than half the membership expected a “substantial business recovery” in the fall. “About one-quarter look for a trade upturn in the coming winter and the remainder indicated expectation of recovery to be held off until 1939.”

Locomotive Deliveries Larger than Last Year

Deliveries of railroad locomotives totaled 130 in the first four months of 1938, against 119 in the corresponding 1937 period, the department of commerce reported yesterday. April deliveries amounted to 31, compared with 48 in March and 48 in April last year.

Clear Highway for Recovery, Adams Urges

Hutchinson, Kas., May 13.—[Special.]—Orval W. Adams, president of the American Bankers' association and executive vice president of the Utah State National bank, Salt Lake City, Utah, told delegates to the convention of the Kansas Bankers' association here today that “we must begin now to save what is left of the country's credit and resources; to tax and economize, and balance our budget.”

Orval W. Adams.

“The way to recovery,” he said, “is not through more spending and pump priming, but through emancipating business and giving it the opportunity to go forward without continued government interference. Let there be a clear and ringing declaration that the road ahead for business is clear and that governmental obstruction, fault finding, and denunciation is definitly at an end, and this country will again surge forward.

Pump Priming Useless.

“Such a declaration will do infinitly more for recovery than any amount of further pump priming. Pump priming cannot help while government is still hammering away and obstructing business—the very pump it is trying to prime.”

Adams urged a reformation of the taxing system which would reduce or eliminate the large proportion of hidden taxes and increase the proportion of income taxes.

“Only about 3,000,000 individuals out of some 40,000,000 gainfully employed pay direct taxes on personal income,” he said. “It must be apparent that under this situation there is lack of appreciation on the part of the great mass of the people as to the extent of their contributions to the cost of government. Can we believe that the people would permit of further extravagances in government, of further waste of money, if they realized that they were footing the bill?”

“Just Where We Were in '33.”

He said that President Roosevelt was on sound ground in the policies he set forth in his 1932 campaign addresses and in his first message to congress.

“Mr. Roosevelt then had taken a definite position on the necessity of economy in government,” Adams said. “If proof were needed of the soundness of the views expressed during the campaign of 1932 and by President Roosevelt in his message to congress on March 10, 1933, then that proof has been abundantly furnished by experience of the last five years.

“We have continued to pile deficit on deficit; we have materially impaired the value of the savings of our people, of their insurance policies; we have built up enormous vested interests in tax spending; we have been obliged largely to monopolize the market for bank funds in order to permit of continued borrowing by government; we have added sixteen billions of dollars to our accumulated deficits, and we are just were we were in 1933, except that we have this added debt loaded upon our shoulders.”

Auto Makers Cut Output Earlier than Expected

Detroit, Mich., May 13.—[Special.]—Ward's Automotive Reports today asserted that a tapering of auto production, usual near the end of the model year, had been started by manufacturers earlier than had been expected. The current week's assemblies of cars and trucks were estimated at 47,415, against 53,385 last week and 139,507 a year ago. Output for May was estimated at about 190,000, against 540,357 a year ago.

Bond Stores' April Sales Run Far Above Year Ago

Bond Stores, Inc., yesterday reported that April sales amounted to $2,380,306, an increase of 38.1 per cent over the April, 1937, sales of $1,723,052. Easter buying boosted sales this year. The holiday was in March last year. Sales in the first four months this year were $5,848,584, or 4.5 per cent less than $6,126,255 total in the corresponding period last year.

RAIL OPERATING REVENUES FALL 24.5 PER CENT

Some Lines Show Dip in Net Incomes.

Eighty-nine class 1 railroads, representing 79.3 per cent of total operating revenues of all class 1 lines, reported a combined drop of 24.5 per cent in operating revenues in April, from those in April, 1937, the Association of American Railroads announced yesterday. Lower net incomes for March were reported yesterday by a number of roads.

The association said that the 89 roads in April had estimated operating revenues of $212,144,437, compared with $280,840,733 in April, 1937, and $358,988,143 in the corresponding 1930 month.

Passenger Revenues Hold Up.

Passenger revenues for the month held up much better than freight receipts, the compilation showed. Estimated April freight revenues of the roads reporting amounted to $165,780,624, a decrease of 27.8 per cent. Passenger revenues dipped only 5.3 per cent to $25,943,513.

Atlantic Coast Line railroad's net income in March slipped to $574,701 from $787,946 in March, 1937. For the first three months the road had net income of $1,659,563, or $2.01 a common share, compared with $2,717,604, or $3.30 a share, in the 1937 period.

A March net loss of $178,463 was reported by the Delaware and Hudson. It had net profit of $154,581 a year ago.

Reports Favorable Developments.

Hale Holden, chairman of the Southern Pacific company, told stockholders in his annual report for 1937 that favorable crop conditions, reduction in merchandise inventories, and provision for federal loans to finance private building were factors which held promise of recovery and expanding purchasing power in the company's operating territory. At present, however, he said that there are many uncertainties and “the outlook for 1938 is obscure.”

As previously reported, consolidated net income of the Southern Pacific for 1937 declined to $756,793 from $14,503,330 in 1936.

March.	1938.	1937.
Atl Coast Line	$ 574,701	$ 787,946
Del & Hud	*178,463	154,581

RADIO-KEITH PLAN CALLS FOR ONLY TWO SECURITIES

New York, May 13.—(AP)—An amended plan of reorganization for Radio-Keith-Orpheum corporation calling for a capitalization of only two classes of securities will be filed with the United States District court Monday by Atlas corporation, Floyd B. Odlum, Atlas president, announced today.

The capital structure would be made up of $12,718,500 of new 6 per cent cumulative preferred stock and 2,365,518 new common shares, exclusive of common which would be sold to provide $1,500,000 additional cash for the company and such common shares as the court may authorize as payment to Atlas corporation “for services rendered in connection with the reorganization proceedings.”

“Under the amended plan the reorganized corporation will be free of debt and will not have preferred stock dividend charges during the first year,” Odlum said.

APRIL OUTPUT OF NEWSPRINT SAGS IN CANADA

MONTREAL, May 13.—(AP)—April newsprint production in Canada was 200,794 tons, a reduction of 32.3 per cent from the 296,624 ton total reported a year ago and 23,810 tons under March output of 224,182 tons, it was announced today.

Shipments from the dominion, totaling 214,182 tons, were considerably higher than the 182,687 tons shipped during March, but represented a drop of 30.5 per cent from the April, 1937, figure.

During the month the newsprint industry operated at 56.7 per cent of rated capacity, compared with 61.1 per cent in March, 62 per cent in February, and 65.4 per cent in January.

NATIONAL POWER ACTS MONDAY ON TVA'S UTILITY BID

New York, May 13.—(AP)—A meeting of directors of National Power and Light company has been called for next Monday afternoon to consider an offer of $7,500,000 by the Tennessee Valley authority and the city of Knoxville, Tenn., for the electric properties of Tennessee Public Service company, a National Power subsidiary.

The TVA-Knoxville bid was made yesterday, and National Power's directors were given until next Wednesday to accept or reject the offer.

Department Stores Report Sales Are Below Year Ago

Sales of approximately 250 department stores located throughout the United States averaged 13 per cent lower in the week ended May 7 than in the corresponding week of 1937, according to a report yesterday by the federal reserve board.

Rush of New Financing Is Likely Soon

Although security offerings in the week ended yesterday showed a big decline, a decided rise in new financing is expected in the next few weeks, especially during June.

New York City will soon sell $50,000,000 of bonds and corporate stock, it is believed. Reconstruction Finance corporation is offering $25,000,000 of Federal National Mortgage association notes. The United States Steel corporation is expected to sell $100,000,000 of debentures and the Commonwealth Edison company plans the sale of $73,000,000 of bonds and debentures. Pennsylvania is likely to market $60,000,000 of tax anticipation notes next week.

New York City plans to offer about $40,000,000 of one to forty year serial bonds and about $10,000,000 of corporate stock maturing in forty years. Proceeds will be used for rapid transit construction, water supply, schools, and various other uses.

Offer 2 Per Cent Notes.

The Federal National Mortgage issue consists of series A 2 per cent notes, dated May 16, and maturing in 5 years. Subscriptions will be received at the Washington, D. C., office of the RFC and all its loan agencies until May 18. The purpose of the financing is to provide additional funds to be used in purchasing mortgages insured by the Federal Housing administration and in making loans secured by such mortgages.

Libby, McNeill & Libby officials are reported to be giving consideration to proposals for refunding the company's present mortgage debt. The company, in August 1935, had plans under way for offering $12,500,000 of new bonds at 4 per cent, but this financing was dropped when the bond market weakened.

W. F. Hall Printing company is reported to be considering refunding less than $6,000,000 of its 6 per cent first mortgage and collateral trust sinking fund bonds.

Plan 20 Million Issue.

The Celanese corporation, rayon manufacturer, will hold a meeting of stockholders on June 3 to ask approval of a new issue of debentures not to exceed $20,000,000.

New financing in the last week totaled $13,179,130 against $31,992,000 in the preceding week and $36,600,645 in the like 1937 week according to a compilation made by Poor's Publishing company. Figures follow:

CITY OF HARVEY CHARGES FRAUD IN FINANCE DEAL

The city of Harvey filed suit in the Superior court yesterday asking that A. C. Allyn & Co. and Stifel Nicolaus & Co., banking investment firms, be restrained from transferring or disposing of water certificates issued by the city in 1927 for the erection of a water works. The suit also seeks an accounting.

The city says in its petition that after it had negotiated on Feb. 24, 1936, with Roy D. O'Brien to buy up the outstanding certificates at the lowest possible figures, O'Brien made a deal with Allyn & Co. to buy the paper at 70, and that thereafter the city dealt directly with the Allyn company.

The city charges that by Jan. 25, 1937, when the city authorized a refunding issue of $464,000, the Allyn company had bought up $224,000 of the certificates. But instead of selling them to the city, the suit charges, the company fraudulently sold the paper, supposedly at 95, to the Nicolaus company, which seeks to recover the par value and accrued interest in excess of $344,000.

CLEVELAND BANK DEPOSITORS GET $33,000,000 TODAY

Cleveland, O., May 13.—(AP)—More than $33,000,000 in checks will flood Cleveland post offices tomorrow. This sum, the largest ever distributed in Cleveland on a single occasion, represents payments to nearly 100,000 depositors of the defunct Union Trust company, and paves the way for the opening of the new Union Bank of Commerce Monday.

G. H. Robertson, special deputy superintendent of banks in charge of the payoff, said an additional $5,000,000 remains to be paid as soon as depositors send in their certificates of claim.

Depositors whose claims are $50 or less will receive payment in full, and approximately $25,500,000 will go to 79,083 depositors with claims of $50 to $25,000. About $12,000,000 goes to 413 depositors whose claims, when the bank closed, were $25,000 or more.

Payments to the majority are 35 per cent, or a total of 80 per cent return of their deposits.

EASTERN RAILS ASK I. C. C. TO RECONSIDER PLEA FOR FARE BOOST

Washington, D. C., May 13.—[Special.]—Eastern railroads today petitioned the interstate commerce commission for reconsideration of the recent decision barring an increase in passenger coach fares from 2 to 2½ cents a mile. The commission denied the earlier petition in April by a 6 to 5 decision, saying that the higher rate would reduce passenger travel and result in a revenue loss by the carriers.

The new petition contended that evidence showed “a very substantial number of passengers is willing and able” to pay a higher coach fare. The roads predicted an aggregated increase in revenues would result from the higher coach fare.

DRIVE TO SLASH OIL PRODUCTION GAINS HEADWAY

States Try to Avoid Price Collapse.

Further cutting of petroleum production quotas in the midcontinent area to avoid oversupply of crude oil stocks and consequent price breaks was indicated yesterday. Gov. C. E. Bailey of Arkansas called a conference of the state's conservation board to take coöperative action for the control of production.

Gov. C. E. Bailey.

The Kansas corporation commission yesterday fixed the allowable crude oil production for May at 160,000 barrels daily, 13,000 below the present rate and 5 per cent lower than the United States bureau of mines monthly estimate for the state.

The problem of oversupply was not limited to the midcontinent area, however. Art L. Walker, secretary of the interstate oil compact commission, reported the New Mexico oil commission and the California central prorating committee planned to work out reductions in the crude flow.

Asks Voluntary Curtailment.

Another development in California, where reduced production is voluntary because of the absence of any control law, was an appeal to all independent producers in California by Lloyd Williamson, president of the Oil Producers' agency, who asked each producer to curtail crude oil output to allowable quotas set by the central committee.

These developments, following drastic cuts in production earlier this week by Texas and Oklahoma and a reduction in the crude oil price by the Kanotex Refining company, small Kansas refiner, further intensified the effort to prevent a price collapse.

Although no large refiners in the midcontinent area have yet taken steps to cut crude oil prices, which have been at the present level since January, 1937, oil men have confessed that the piling up of heavy fuel oil stocks for industrial use has depressed prices for this product and constitutes a threat to the crude oil price structure.

Stocks Above Year Ago.

Although consumption of gasoline in the first quarter of this year was 4 per cent higher than in 1937 and prices for gasoline have held fairly steady in the last six months, stocks of crude oil, gasoline, and fuel oils are higher than a year ago.

The declining demand for industrial fuel oils has brought an increase in these stocks of about 30 per cent in the last six months, and in hard hit industrial areas the weak demand has caused a drop of as much as 25 per cent in prices.

This situation has struck the small refiner heavily. He buys his crude oil and operates normally on a small margin of profit. With the drop in price of a principal refined product—heavy fuel oil—his profit has been turned to loss. Larger companies, operating in both producing and refining, have been able to run more efficiently, in many instances, than the small refiners, and to show a profit because gasoline prices have held up.

Week's Production Falls

National Crude oil production for week ended May 7 dropped 18,667 barrels daily to a daily average of 3,347,375 barrels, but this fell short of curtailment needs by about 100,000 barrels, according to estimates. Crude oil stocks in the week ended April 30 declined 507,000 barrels to 307,147,000, only about 2 per cent higher than on the same 1937 date.

Rigid state control of oil production is not possible under state laws of all producing areas, oil men pointed out yesterday. In California no state control is provided by law, and in Arkansas the law sets up a semi-voluntary system for restriction.

In Texas, which has the most ironclad state control law, a court suit was threatened yesterday against the railroad commission which on Tuesday put production on a five day instead of a six day week, thus effecting a 16 2-3 per cent cut in output.

Association Opposes Plan.

John C. Schroder, president of the East Texas Petroleum association, plaintif in the proposed suit, said that a petition would probably be filed in court today. The suit, he declared, may involve the whole question of oil pro rating as now practiced. Oil men pointed out yesterday that such broad restrictive powers are given to the railroad commission under Texas laws that probably a declaration of the unconstitutionality of the statute would be necessary to upset the pro rating system.

Independent operators, who oppose closing the wells for two days a week, assert that in the face of forced curtailment of production the railroad commission continues to encourage the drilling of new wells both in proved areas and in potential territories.

Proposes Government Pay Full Rate on Rail Trafic

Washington, D. C., May 13.—[Special.]—Chairman Lea of the house interstate commerce committee today introduced a bill providing that government property transported over land grant railroads shall pay the same rate as other trafic.

Stocks, Bonds

New York Stocks.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 13.—In a continuation of the reactionary tendencies that prevailed throughout Thursday's session, stock market prices were pushed lower again today, although support in the late trading reduced early losses. Trading was light.

A good part of the selling today was attributed to profit-taking and week-end evening-up operations by professionals. Utility shares, recent favorites, were under the most pressure as operators waited for the Tennessee Valley Authority-National Power and Light Utility deal to develop. At their lowest, common shares in the group lost up to about one point, but at the close fractional losses prevailed.

Unfavorable business news depressed industrial shares, a number of which were actively supplied. This news included a contraseasonal decline in car loadings, a large decrease in automobile production, poor retail trade figures, and unfavorable dividend actions by another group of companies.

Motors were in large supply, Chrysler, selling ex dividend, slumped two points before coming back to 43½ for a net loss of 1 point. General Motors lost ⅝. Steels gave a relatively good showing, U. S. Steel common, Bethlehem, and Republic advancing fractions.

Copper shares had mostly fractional losses, although American Smelting dropped 1½ points. Carrier shares excited little interest and closed unchanged to fractions lower.

In the oils, Ohio Oil was active around the year's lowest quotation. Standard of New Jersey ruled firm but others edged fractionally lower. Allied, in the chemicals, gave up all of yesterday's 2½ point gain and more, with du Pont and Union Carbide close behind. Aviation issues joined in the decline with small losses.

New York Bonds.

New York, May 13.—(AP)—The forward push in the bond market was halted today by fairly active selling in rail loans. It was assumed a considerable part of the offerings came from traders who had accumulated profits on the April-May upturn. A peak was reached Wednesday with the Associated Press rail average showing a rise of about 8 points from the March low.

Other corporate groups fared better, although moderate losses predominated at the close. Some utilities which wavered yesterday resumed their climb and finished fractionally higher. Bonds of New York traction companies moved ahead to new high levels on unusually active buying. Issues of Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit, Brooklyn City Railroad, Manhattan Elevated, and Interborough Rapid Transit rose 1 to more than 4.

United States government loans were mixed. Federal farm mortgage issues made the best showing with some gains running up to ⅛ of a point. Treasuries were 8-32ds higher to 3-32ds lower.

Chicago Stocks.

Stocks declined moderately in quiet trading yesterday on the Chicago exchange. Volume contracted to 13,000 shares. THE TRIBUNE average of 20 stocks slipped 0.16 to 8.69. Only 50 issues were traded, of which 23 closed lower, 12 advanced, and 15 held unchanged.

Utility issues were prominent among the more active stocks. Commonwealth Edison common lost ⅜, closing at 26⅝. Middle West capital stock closed ⅛ lower at 6¼. Central and South West Utilities also finished ⅛ lower at 1⅞.

A membership was sold at $1,800 yesterday, up $100 from the last sale and up $200 from the all time low reached earlier in the year.

Bank Stocks.

Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company stock declined $1.50 a share yesterday, being quoted at $59.50 bid, $60.50 asked. First National shares also declined $1 to $177 bid, $180 asked. Other loop bank stocks were unchanged from Friday.

COTTON

Reports of an aggressive demand for cotton goods, unwanted rains, trade buying, and firmness in Liverpool combined to boost cotton futures prices in American markets yesterday. Prices on the Chicago Board of Trade were up .07 to .13 cent a pound at the close. Other markets were .08 to .12 cent a pound higher on the active futures. Trading in May cotton in Chicago and New York ended at noon yesterday.

Sales of cotton goods in New York on Thursday were estimated at 15,000,000 yards. As much more was reported purchased yesterday. Prices were slightly higher. A factor in the activity was the fact that WPA orders for about 50,000,000 yards, expected to be received shortly, would strengthen the market.

Spot cotton closed .10 cent higher, with New Orleans, 8.90 cents; New York, 8.75 cents; Galveston, 8.60 cents, and Houston, 8.65 cents a pound. Prices follow:

Commodities

Commodity prices continued to drift yesterday with few important changes. Cottonseed oil futures followed the rise in the grain and cotton markets, but most other future markets finished slightly lower.

Several other companies followed the lead of the Great Western Sugar company in reducing the price of refined sugar 0.15 cent to 4½ cents a pound in Chicago and the territory west to the Rocky mountains. No changes were made east of Chicago or on the Pacific coast. Sugar futures closed 0.01 to 0.03 cent lower in New York, but the spot price for raw sugar held steady at 2.75 cents a pound.

Crude rubber futures closed 0.03 to 0.11 cent lower, the July delivery slipping 0.06 cent to close at 12.10 cents a pound. The spot price for the smoked ribbed article was 12.02 cents a pound. Raw hides were down 0.14 to 0.17 cent at the close on fairly heavy selling.

Cocoa futures lost 0.03 to 0.05 cent a pound and raw silk futures were unchanged to 1½ cents lower. Wool tops were easy under liquidation, closing 0.03 cent to a cent lower. The spot price dropped a cent to 79 cents a pound.

Cottonseed oil futures steadied in the late trading to close 0.02 to 0.09 cent higher.

The export copper price ranged between 9.66 and 9.71 cents a pound, final sales being made at the bottom of the range with less than 1,000 tons reported sold. Copper futures were 0.06 to 0.09 cent lower and tin futures declined 0.15 cent a pound. Lead and zinc continued unchanged.

The Dow-Jones commodity futures index closed 0.03 higher at 48.80. The Associated Press weighted index of 35 wholesale commodity prices, based on 1926 as 100, advanced to 66.67, the fourth consecutive daily rise, and compared with 66.55 on Thursday.

MOTOR WHEEL CO. OMITS DIVIDEND AS SALES DROP

Reynolds Metal Fails to Vote Common Payment.

Directors of the Motor Wheel corporation voted yesterday to omit the dividend due June 10. Harry F. Harper, president, said the omission is because of the marked decline in automotive sales, which resulted in a net loss of $69,416 in the first quarter of this year, and the fact that sales to date in the second quarter have not shown any large increase. The company paid a dividend of 20 cents a share on March 10, halving the rate of 40 cents quarterly which was maintained during 1937.

The Reynolds Metals company also failed to declare a common dividend for the second quarter. Its March 1 payment was cut to 15 cents, after 40 cents quarterly had been paid last year. The company ordered its usual preferred dividend.

Cuts Dividend Second Time.

The Hawaiian-Sumatra Plantations reduced its dividend for the second time this year, a payment of 15 cents being declared for June 1. The company paid 25 cents on March 1 and $2 during 1937, including 60 cents on Dec. 1.

A special dividend of 30 cents will be paid on May 25 by the Standard Wholesale Phosphate and Acid works, whose stock is on a regular 30 cent quarterly basis. The company declared a special of 60 cents a year ago.

The City Ice and Fuel company declared another 40 cent interim payment, the same as on March 31, when the company abandoned a 50 cent quarterly basis in favor of interim and year-end payments depending on earnings.

Wright Hargreaves Mines, Ltd., will pay its usual 5 cent extra and regular 10 cent quarterly dividends on July 1.

Standard Oil of California.

Investors' Guide: I would like a copy of your report on the Standard Oil Company of California.—B. C.

Answer: The Standard Oil Company of California is one of the leaders of the American petroleum industry. It holds the dominant position among oil companies operating on the Pacific coast, it is strong financially, and it has developed petroleum reserves in leading producing areas of the world. The company has paid dividends regularly since 1911.

Standard of California distributes its products principally in California, Arizona, Nevada, Washington, Idaho, Utah, Oregon, Alaska, Hawaii, New Mexico, Texas, Canada, and Mexico. More than 2,000 retail outlets are maintained, including units leased to private operators.

The company held approximately 1,794,512 acres of developed and undeveloped oil lands in the United States and Alaska at the end of 1937. Within the United States the property is located in California, New Mexico, Texas, and various parts of the Rocky mountain area.

Foreign holdings at the end of 1937 were 107,586,503 acres, located chiefly in Colombia, Venezuela, Arabia, Bahrein Island in the Persian gulf, Java, Sumatra, and Mexico. The Mexican holdings, since expropriated along with other foreign oil property, aggregated 426,984 acres.

Domestic production of crude oil in 1937 totaled 48,147,870 barrels. At the end of 1937 the company was operating 3,387 oil and 49 gas wells in California, 10 oil wells in New Mexico, 439 oil and five gas wells in Texas, and 60 oil and four gas wells in the Rocky mountain area.

In line with many other units in the industry Standard of California's net income turned down in the first quarter of this year to $7,130,486, or 55 cents a common share, from $7,889,489, or 60 cents a share, in the corresponding period a year before. The record of earnings in recent years follows:

	Sales.	Net income.	Earned per com. shr.
1937	$192,145,982	$41,254,778	$3.17
1936	153,252,545	23,310,223	1.79
1935	134,772,110	18,594,330	1.43
1932	*	13,994,992	1.07
1929	*	46,633,490	3.63

*Not reported.

Standard of California has 13,014,753 shares of no par capital stock outstanding. The regular dividend rate is $1 a year, but extra dividends usually are paid. Dividends in 1937 totaled $2 a share. Two extras of 10 cents each have been declared so far this year. The stock deserves a good rating.
